Want to retain full-time mayor

City manager plan facing objections from committee

Plans to create the position of city manager for Des Plaines may run into tough sledding if reaction to the proposal at a city council committee meeting this week remains the same.

Four aldermen voiced objections to a proposal to reduce the position of mayor to a part-time job and hire a city manager to handle the day-to-day operation of the city.

The proposal to create the position of city manager was made Monday by Ald. Alan Abrams, 8th, who heads the council's city code and judiciary committee. The committee has been conducting a study of a number of different governmental changes for the city.

Several councilmen, including Ald. Charles Bolek, 3rd, Ald. George Olen, 2nd, Ald. Arthur Erbach, 5th, and Ald. Irene Birchfield endorsed the city's present form of government.

BOLEK CONTENDED that a full-time mayor is a more responsive type of government. He also said a city manager would need at least a year to get to know the city.

The study into possible changes in local government was sparked after Mayor Herbert Behrel indicated he would not seek reelection when his present term expires in 1977. Behrel has said he is not opposed to the creation of the post of city manager, but said Tuesday he believes a full-time mayor operation is the best way to run the city.

Behrel also said Tuesday that he believes a full-time administrative assistant is needed in his office now, but the city lacks the space for such an assistant. The mayor noted that plans already have been made to include office space for an administrative assistant to the mayor or city manager in the new municipal building.

ABRAMS SAID that by making the mayor's position part-time, more local residents would be able to run for the post.

He added that few residents would be interested in stepping away from their regular jobs for four or eight years to run the city.

"The other problem with the present system is that we are not going to find another Herb Behrel," Abrams said, noting Behrel, who has been mayor since 1961, has grown with the city as the complexity of the position increased.

HOWEVER, OTHER aldermen said they believe the current system of government should be retained.

"To me this seems a little like the new math, we have a good system here that works and I really don't see a need to change," said Mrs. Birchfield.

Erbach also said that he could not see the advantage to making the mayor's position part-time and creating the city manager's post.

It is expected Abrams' committee will make a number of recommendations concerning possible changes in city government to the full city council later this summer for consideration.

Man killed as car hits trailer truck

A Melrose Park man was killed when his auto collided with a semi-trailer truck early Wednesday near Touhy Avenue and Wolf Road, Des Plaines.

The victim had to be pulled from his demolished car with ropes by fire department rescue crews, according to reports.

He was identified as Robert James Hammer, 31, of 10023 Lindale in the near western suburb. He was pronounced dead on arrival at 3:15 a.m. Wednesday at Holy Family Hospital. He died from massive head injuries.

The driver of the truck, Harvey Lee, 39, of 97 W. 157th in south suburban Harvey was treated at Holy Family for minor head injuries.

Des Plaines police reports said the accident occurred when Hammer, who was driving his 1967 Chevrolet eastbound on Touhy, hit the truck from the rear as Lee was pulling away from a traffic light just east of Wolf.

Police said the impact caused the front end of Hammer's auto to become lodged under the trailer.

Fire department crews had to cut holes in the roof of the car and tie ropes around Hammer's shoulders to pull him out.

Lee, a driver for Dominick's Food Stores, told police he was pulling away from the light when he felt a hard jolt but heard no horn or warning before his truck was hit.

Police said they also received reports that Hammer was working as an ambulance driver for a private suburban company the last few years.

The body was released to Matz Funeral Home, Chicago.

Environment group may face new fight

by STEVE BROWN

The often-controversial Des Plaines Environmental Commission may be getting ready for another round of combat with the city fathers later this month over the panel's future.

Mayor Herbert H. Behrel said he has been asked to meet with the commission later this month to explain his concept of the role and function of the commission for the present and future.

The meeting, which is slated for July 31, may give the mayor an opportunity to voice his opinion about the activities of the commission.

During his regular weekly press conference Behrel said he would attend the meeting, but reiterated his pledge not to reappoint commission chairman Richard Tabatt.

THE BEHREL-TABATT feud started last spring when the commission issued a report stating the proposed Superblock downtown redevelopment project could cause environmental problems for the city.

At that point Behrel said he did not believe the commission was acting responsibly and that it was overstepping its jurisdiction.

Behrel said he would not reappoint Tabatt. Since the controversy started last March, Behrel has not made any appointments to the commission and Tabatt has continued to serve on the panel.

Behrel was critical Tuesday of an apparent move by the commission to get involved in a study of abandoned automobiles in Des Plaines.

"We have one of the finest systems for handling abandoned autos and I don't see why they want to study this," Behrel said.

THE MAYOR AGREED that other commissions and boards in the city are not as active or as controversial as the environmental commission has been.

"The rest have more sense. No one told them they have to save the lives of the people of Des Plaines," the mayor said.

He also noted that the commission while possibly overstepping its responsibilities in some areas has not been active in several environmental projects including the city's efforts to reduce noise problems caused by trains and planes and a new program to revitalize the recycling center.

"The commission has had nothing to do with the recent breakthrough on the airplane noise situation," Behrel said referring to plans formulated by U.S. Sen. Adlai Stevenson, D-Ill., with the help of some Des Plaines officials to reduce airplane noise.

"They act like if they can't get before the public with their activities then they are not accomplishing anything," he said.

"If I thought they were helping then I'd be behind them 100 per cent," Behrel said.

Fourth visit by 13-member unit weighing space

Study group to visit Feehanville

A citizens' committee studying space needs at schools in River Trails Dist. 26 will continue its schedule of building tours with a visit to Feehanville School Monday, July 22.

Feehanville will be the fourth school to be toured by the 13-member group. Park View, Bond and Indian Grove schools already have been scrutinized by the committee. Yet to be scheduled for a visit is Euclid School.

Committee chairman Marsha Lupton said the tour of Indian Grove was somewhat routine because the school, unlike others in the district, is not as severely plagued by space problems. However, Indian Grove will still receive the committee's attention, Mrs. Lupton said, to determine if ways can be found to improve space use at the school.

AS AT THE other three schools, Mrs. Lupton said the committee will be accompanied in its tour of Feehanville by both the school principal, James Ackley, and Supt. John Fridlund. Feehanville already was toured on an individual basis by committee members but the upcoming visit will be the first made to the school by the group as a whole.

The committee, organized in June, has been charged with the task of developing recommendations for improving space use at the schools so facilities can better meet the needs of educational programs and curriculum.

Mrs. Lupton said the committee plans to present to the board of education suggestions which will hopefully provide options for both open and self-contained classrooms at each school.

One of the committee's biggest challenges, Mrs. Lupton said, will be to develop for the board's consideration a list of priorities which will benefit the entire district without favoring certain schools.

MRS. LUPTON said the committee favors continuation of the neighborhood school concept, which will be kept in mind when recommendations are developed and forwarded to the board.

Following the completion of school tours, which Mrs. Lupton said should be done next month, the committee will begin discussions aimed at developing specific school-by-school recommendations.

In addition to Euclid, the committee also will make a second tour of Park View, which suffers most from lack of space, before it begins discussing possible solutions.

Ex-convict found dead near tollway

by JOHN MAES and JOE SWICKARD

An ex-convict was found dead in the front seat of an automobile early Wednesday morning in the parking lot of the Des Plaines Oasis on the Northwest Tollway.

A preliminary report by the County Coroner's office said the death of the man, tentatively identified as Robert Owca, 41, was caused by an undetermined chemical. Police said Owca may have been living in Rolling Meadows within the past year under an assumed name.

The body was found slumped in a 1972

Buick by Illinois State Trooper Cpl. William Kearney at about 3 a.m. while on routine patrol.

State tollway police tentatively identified him as Owca, whose last known address was 3200 Lake Shore Dr., Chicago, a high-rise apartment in Belmont Harbor area. Police said they had information indicating Owca lived at 1535 Plum Grove Rd., Rolling Meadows, under the name of Mark J. Terrarra.

ROLLING MEADOWS police said they served a traffic summons on a man by that name living at that address last Jan. 22.

No marks of violence were found on the body and an autopsy Wednesday afternoon revealed that unidentified chemicals caused Owca's death, said Sgt. Donald Jobe of the state police.

A quantity of the "drug-like material" also was found in the trunk of the car, Jobe said. He declined to identify the substance, pending a chemical analysis.

Although Owca's death apparently was drug-related, police still have not ruled out foul play. Jobe said the state police crime laboratory would be called into the continuing investigation.

IT IS UNCERTAIN how long Owca was dead, but the car's engine was still hot, indicating that it could not have been parked long, Jobe said.

Owca was wearing white pants and a plaid sports shirt when his body was discovered. Police said a pair of white shoes also was found in the car.

He was pronounced dead on arrival at Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights, at 4 a.m. Wednesday. The body later was taken to the coroner's office in Chicago for further examination.

Jobe described Owca as an ex-convict with an extensive criminal record dating to 1956. Owca had one conviction on federal counterfeiting charges and three counts of auto theft in the Chicago area, Jobe said.

Clerks' walkout delays races

Parimutuel clerks at Arlington Park Race Track staged a wildcat walkout Wednesday, delaying the start of the first race by about 10 minutes. The clerks, many of whom work at Sportsman's Park in Cicero in the evenings, were protesting recently lengthened racing programs at Arlington. A track spokesman said the brief walkout caused no serious problem other than the first-race delay.

Transit plan needs hearings

A Chicago regional transportation plan endorsed recently by the Chicago Area Transportation System (CATS) will have to go through public hearings as a result of action Wednesday by the Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission. The NIPC executive committee approved the plan solely for the purpose of having the hearing and public briefings. The plan includes freeway links, inter-suburban bus routes, airports and rail lines. Robert DuCharme, consulting executive director for NIPC, said the NIPC staff has several reservations about the needs and priorities of portions of the plan, partly because of recent decreased estimates of projected suburban population growth. Some NIPC members are also skeptical about the future of Melges Field in Chicago, even though it is included in the plan.

Sewage treatment grants set

The U.S. Environmental Protection Agency announced Wednesday it will distribute $2.5 billion in sewage treatment grants to six Midwest states in the next two years. The $232 million allocated to Illinois for fiscal 1975 will include funds for the Northwest suburban Poplar Creek and Salt Creek water treatment plants and auxiliary sewer systems, according to the Metropolitan Sanitary District.

Suspended cop's pay halted

The fire and police commission of Buffalo Grove has cut off the salary of suspended Patrolman Floyd Merenkov, pending the outcome of its hearing on departmental charges asking for his dismissal. Merenkov was suspended Friday by Chief Harry Walsh, who accused the patrolman of insubordination and discrediting the department. Merenkov in turn charged that some department members are guilty of theft and misconduct. Since his suspension, Merenkov has been given a part-time job in the fire department.

Rob Roy battle flares anew

The controversy over the proposed 2,350-unit Rob Roy Golf Course development has boiled over in Mount Prospect. A marathon 4½-hour zoning board hearing Tuesday brought opposing statements from more than a dozen members of the large crowd present. Proposals for the property by the developer, Kenroy Inc. of Skokie, also prompted sharp attacks from Carolyn Krause, zoning board chairman. Kenroy will present a rebuttal at a scheduled Aug. 7 zoning board hearing, when a vote is expected on the project.

Two atomic blasts, theirs and ours

From United Press International

Both the United States and the Soviet Union set off nuclear blasts Wednesday a week after both nations pledged to limit underground atomic testing.

The Swedish Seismological Institute in Stockholm registered an underground explosion located in the Semipalatinsk area of the Soviet Union's Kazakhstan Republic as did the Norwegian seismological station Norsar in Oslo.

The U.S. Atomic Energy Commission reported a nuclear blast of 20 to 200 kilotons in the Nevada desert, setting chandeliers swaying 90 miles away in Las Vegas.

There was no confirmation of any Soviet explosion from the Soviet government.

"The underground explosion was registered at 4:03 a.m. and had a 5.2 Richter magnitude," Markus Baath of the Swedish seismic institute said.

The Norwegian Seismological station Norsar said only that the blast was in eastern Kazakhstan, which could put it in the Semipalatinsk area. The area of the Soviet blast apparently was in a region near a common border of the Soviet Union, Mongolia and China.

The American blast was the 259th underground explosion to be publicly announced since the 1963 atmospheric ban agreement with the Russians.

The Atomic Energy Commission would say only that it was a "weapons related" device in the range of 20 to 200 kilotons and that no radiation leakage was detected after the explosion.

The California Institute of Technology seismological laboratory said it was a "pretty good blast" measuring 5.5 on the Richter scale. The 1971 earthquake in the San Fernando Valley measured 6.4.

The test device, with the code name "Escabosa," was detonated by 11 a.m. CDT.

Although there were no scientific comparisons available, amateur test bomb experts in Las Vegas, 90 miles away from the Yucca Flat site, rated it above some of the previous blasts but well below others.

August Nogar, the host at the Top of the Strip restaurant at the Dunes Hotel, said the 10 chandeliers in the room began swaying and that water sloshed in a glass he was holding.

The AEC said the device was related to the nation's weapons arsenal and not part of the "Plowshare" program for development of peaceful use of nuclear explosives.

Only eight days ago, on July 3, in Moscow, President Nixon and Soviet Communist party leader Leonid I. Brezhnev signed an agreement limiting underground nuclear tests to weapons up to 150 kilotons starting March 31, 1976, limiting the number of tests to an unspecified minimum and providing for continued negotiations with a view to eventual total ban of underground testing.

THE ATOMIC AGE reasserted itself on the Richter scale as the two giant superpowers each flexed their nuclear muscles — underground. In Nevada and in the far reaches of Central Asia, the United States and the Soviet Union each set off a blast which shook the scales.

Washington: a day of controversy

• Tapes

White House lawyer James St. Clair said President Richard Nixon did not previously release transcripts of a tape in which he urged aides to conceal their involvement in Watergate, because, St. Clair maintains, the tapes are not relevant. The latest controversial tapes in which the President is reported as instructing his aides to "plead the Fifth Amendment, cover up or anything else, if it will save it, save the plan," was made public when the House Judiciary Committee released its own version of the original tapes.

• Ehrlichman

In the trial of former White House aide John Ehrlichman, Secretary of State Henry Kissinger testified Wednesday that he never ordered or knew of a 1971 psychological profile of Pentagon papers defendant Daniel Ellsberg. Kissinger was on the stand but 90-seconds to answer three questions about his involvement in the case. Following Kissinger, the court released a written reply from President Nixon to six questions from the judge sent on behalf of Ehrlichman's defense attorneys. Nixon said he never authorized White House operatives to burglarize the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist.

• Impeachment

Former Atty. General John Mitchell told the House Judiciary Committee he never discussed paying "hush money" with President Nixon and never discussed such money at all with former White House aide H. R. Haldeman. One member of the committee, a Democrat, called Mitchell "a genius at not recollecting." Meanwhile, two pro-impeachment members of the House committee, charged that Nixon's Watergate tape transcripts were "deliberately" altered to cloak the President's involvement in a Watergate coverup.

• Bugging

Atty. General William Saxbe appeared before a closed door session of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee to testify about the question of Sec. Kissinger's role, if any, in wiretappings. Saxbe refused to talk to reporters after appearing in an angry outburst before reporters in Salzburg, Austria threatened to resign unless the Senate Committee clears him of allegations that he played a part in the wiretappings. Saxbe refused to talk to reporters after appearing behind closed doors.

• Howard Hughes

The Senate Watergate Committee's report released Wednesday suggests that President Nixon used more than $50,000 in campaign funds — including some contributions from billionaire Howard Hughes — to improve his Key Biscayne property and buy diamond earrings for Pat Nixon's birthday present. Under orders from Watergate committee Chairman Sen. Sam Ervin, the report was not allowed to draw conclusions on where the funds came from, but the report says long-time Nixon friend Charles "Bebe" Rebozo was instrumental in channeling the money through a secret fund. The White House had no immediate response, although Mrs. Nixon acknowledged receiving the earrings for her 60th birthday.

18-20 year old drinking widespread

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Drinking among young people aged 18 to 20 now is almost universal, even outstripping marijuana use, according to a report presented to Congress Wednesday.

The conclusion resulted from a study conducted by a special panel for the Department of Health, Education and Welfare. It was the second in a series of government reports on alcohol and health.

The report said the economic cost of alcohol abuse is estimated at $25 billion a year and that excessive use, especially when combined with tobacco, has been implicated in development of cancer.

Among other conclusions in the 219-page report:

- The national system of alcohol controls is a chaotic relic that not only provides little support in solving problems but may induce a counterproductive ambivalence toward alcohol among the public.

- Moderate consumption of alcohol generally is not harmful. In some cases, for example among the elderly, it may have beneficial physical, social or psychological effects.

- The death rate from heart ailments among moderate drinkers is lower than that of abstainers and ex-drinkers.

The report said studies show a substantial proportion of teenagers drink, with beer the most preferred beverage and wine-drinking on the increase.

"Preliminary findings from the 1974 national survey of junior and senior high school students indicates that among seventh graders, 63 per cent boys and 54 per cent of girls have had a drink and the proportion of teenage drinkers increased with grade in school to 93 per cent of 12th grade boys and 87 per cent of 12th grade girls," the report said.

'Old blue eyes' stranded in Australia

FRANK SINATRA

- Outraged union members forced Frank Sinatra to cancel his $50,000 Australian concert tour Wednesday, blocked him from leaving the country and cut off his hotel room service after his bodyguards roughed up television newsmen and the singer himself called women reporters "15.50 hookers." Sinatra, who has had a long history of troubles with the press, called off the projected five-concert tour after one performance but indignant union members said he would never get out from Down Under until he apologized for his conduct. "Who the hell does this man Sinatra think he is?" asked Neville Wran, leader of the Labor opposition in New South Wales parliament.

- That's show biz: Guenter Kaufmann will portray Stanley Kowalski in "A Streetcar Named Desire" at West Berlin's Freie Volksbuehne Theater after all. Playwright Tennessee Williams had objected to the actor because he was black, but a court ruled Tuesday that Kaufmann can play the part if he puts on makeup that gives him the appearance of a white man.

- Ever since he jumped from his fishing vessel 12 miles off the Oregon coast July 4, Polish sailor Jerzy Konrad has been staying with Rev. Chester Wrzesniewski of Portland while his appeal for political asylum is considered. But the U.S. Immigration and Naturalization Service recommended Tuesday that Konrad be returned to Poland because it has not been established that he's likely to be persecuted if he returns to his homeland. A ruling from the State Department is expected within a few days either upholding the recommendation or granting Konrad asylum.

Company named in FTC proposed complaint

Sears accused of bait-and-switch ads

Sears, Roebuck and Co., the largest merchandising organization in the nation, was accused Wednesday by the Federal Trade Commission of using deceptive bait-and-switch tactics in its advertising and sales of major appliances.

Sears, headquartered in Chicago, was named in a proposed complaint announced by Stephanie W. Kanwit, director of the FTC's Chicago regional office.

According to the FTC, Sears' advertisements for certain lower-priced models of major home appliances are not bona fide but are intended to lure customers into the store.

Then, the FTC charged, Sears' salesmen are encouraged through a compensation system to switch the customer to higher-priced items.

No company officials were available Wednesday to comment on the matter. The company will have the option of settling the case by agreeing to the FTC order, or it may choose to contest the allegations.

SALESMEN, THE FTC alleged, are rewarded for selling higher-priced models and disciplined for selling the lower-priced advertised items.

The FTC's proposed complaint gave as an example of "bait-and-switch" tactics Sears' advertisements for sewing machines: "Sewing Machine Sale . . . Zig Zag . . . Portable . . . Your Choice $58 . . . Sews straight stitches forward and reverse, even over seams . . . Sews on buttons, sews buttonholes . . ."

The complaint alleged that salesmen disparage the advertised sewing machines as "noisy, will not sew buttonholes . . . will not sew straight stitch, zig zag stitch or in reverse . . ."

The FTC plans to order Sears to stop making "sales offers that are not bona fide and disparaging or refusing to sell advertised major home appliances." The order also would require Sears to disclose in all future ads that the company was named in a cease and desist order involving "bait-and-switch" violations.

IN ADDITION Sears would be forbidden to use any compensation system that discriminates against low-margin advertised items or induces employees to use "bait-and-switch" tactics.

One FTC commissioner dissented, arguing that "there has been no showing of probable consumer injury." He said that would depend on how the quality and price of the items a customer is switched to compare to similar products offered by competitors.

But FTC Chairman Lewis A. Engman declared that "bait-and-switch" tactics such as those alleged in the Sears case constitute a violation of the Federal Trade Commission Act.

State paychecks 'coming out on time'

by BOB LAHEY

State employees and public aid recipients appear assured of receiving their state checks on time next week, despite a substantial question concerning the legality of issuing the money.

State Comptroller George W. Lindberg said yesterday he will approve payrolls that begin coming due on Monday although the laws appropriating the money will still not be on the books.

A spokesman for Lindberg's office said that the comptroller had received assurances from Gov. Daniel Walker Wednesday morning that he would not veto any items affecting payrolls when the appropriations measures reach his desk.

He added, however, that there is "absolutely no possibility" of issuing the checks until the appropriations have been approved by both houses of the Illinois General Assembly.

THE LEGISLATURE was to reconvene late yesterday, and prompt action on the appropriations — barring further political shenanigans — was expected.

After the measures are passed, however, they must go to the state printer for "enrolling and engrossing" before being sent to the governor, a matter requiring several days.

The Lindberg spokesman acknowledged the legal question of issuing checks before the appropriations process is completed. But, he said, it appeared unreasonable to allow "bureaucratic fogery" over a "mechanical matter" to deprive literally thousands of families of paychecks on which they depend from week to week.

Considering the number of people involved, he said, Lindberg will act on the governor's assurance.

"When the governor looks you in the eye and assures you he is not going to do something to make what you did illegal — in this situation, you just have to believe him," he said.

BOB HOLLAND, right, completes the backstroke as part of his certification as an advanced beginning swimmer. Although Bob is totally sightless, he

by JOE SWICKARD

The girl with the large blue eyes looked up and said, "Hi. You're the one who invented this, aren't you?" Kevin Kendrigan looked down, smiled and gave the girl a conspiratorial wink. "Yes. But don't tell anyone. It's a secret."

The "secret" Kendrigan was winking about is the Northwest Special Recreation Assn. Summer Day Camp. As director of the six-month-old association, Kendrigan could be called the man who "invented" the summer activities program in the Northwest suburbs.

The camp, which began in June and runs six weeks, provides recreational opportunities for children with handicaps or learning disabilities. Its main purpose, Kendrigan said, is to help the children "express themselves in activities as close to the normal population as possible."

THE ASSOCIATION is funded by nine area park districts for its administrative expenses. Wheeling and Palatine townships have given $15,000 and $10,000, respectively, to the association. Elk Grove Township has made a tentative commitment of $15,000.

The township's monies are used to pay for the activities such as the camp in summer and after-school and weekend programs during the fall and winter.

Five special camps serve 120 children this summer. The camps, at different locations throughout the three townships, offer programs for the visually handicapped, the physically handicapped and a joint camp for youngsters and children with learning disabilities.

Nonambulatory youths have a Saturday-only program at the Kirk Center in Palatine. All the other camps operate five days a week for six hours.

"One reason it's that long is to give the parents a chance to be by themselves for a while. It gives them a chance to go shopping or run errands or whatever without taking their child along," Kendrigan said.

THE CAMPS hardly are glorified babysitters, though.

At Recreation Park in Arlington Heights children were making full use of the facilities.

Because of the heat wave, the visually impaired youngsters were taking an extra-long session in the swimming pool. Jody Sticken, an instructor of the visually impaired during the school year, was testing the children in the pool.

Bob Holland, totally sightless, was going through his paces for a certificate as an advanced beginning swimmer. Treading water and the frontal float offered no problem for him, but there was some difficulty with the backstroke.

Using the pool-diving rope as a touch point, Bob completed his necessary 1 1/2 widths to pass, with a minimum of straying and course corrections.

Part of the camp for the sightless to the legally blind was in the pool, diving, splashing or practicing on kickboards.

"IT'S IMPORTANT to them. Many of them have never had their head under water before," Kendrigan said. To illustrate the point a boy leaped in the pool and started turning waterborne somersaults.

Prior to swimming these children had been tumbling and working out on the mats in the park field house.

Instructor Ed Guttman had the other campers under the trees for rest period after relay races. The children rest about as much as any child will on a beautiful summer day.

There are swings nearby, coloring books and tales to be discussed from the earlier story hour. Later it would be their turn in the pool followed by arts and crafts.

The activities are designed to strengthen their skills and coordination. Softball and tumbling improves body development while arts and crafts work on eye and hand coordination.

"Their self worth is improved. We have some competition for the same reason, but not for setting one against the other," Kendrigan said.

THE GAMES AND programs also give the children an opportunity to socialize, something that may not be readily available within their own neighborhood.

"Children are quick to pick up that these kids are not normal in some way. And kids can be cruel. The camp gives them a place where they can get together with other kids and have some fun," Kendrigan said.

"This is a preventive program, too. It makes them more sure of themselves, and more likely to succeed later."

And like any other summer day camp, there is a lot of setting under the trees and splashing in the pools. As the supervisors said, it is a place to give the kids a chance.

Day camp offers unhandicapped fun for youths

Bicentennial a 'buy-centennial'?

It's not quite two years away but already the 1976 American Bicentennial is showing signs of becoming a billion-dollar boondoggle. And maybe it's merely a proper reflection of what's happened to this country in the last 200 years.

The People's Bicentennial Commission — which is the little man's answer to the Federal Bicentennial Commission — has been grinding out pamphlets on what's allegedly going on behind the scenes during party planning.

If they're right, the grassroots commemoration of the birth of our nation will be nothing more than a capitalistic heyday, a gigantic national ripoff.

WHAT WE CAN expect at this point: Bicentennial ice cream, Bicentennial cake, Bicentennial soft drinks, Bicentennial bumper stickers, decals, coins, plates, pennants, movies, plays, parks, posters... you name it.

The presidentially-appointed commission calls it "bicentennialization" according to the People. It's also called make a buck, turn a profit, cash in on a good thing.

The formal plans for the celebration still are being put together during executive sessions of the federal commission. But a look at some plans suggested and discarded or suggested and still being studied can give you an idea of the mentality on the commission.

The commission has hashed over tying the Bicentennial celebration into the Orange Bowl Parade, the Ringling Brothers circus, the Miss America Pageant and McDonald's hamburgers.

Private corporations are seeking permission from the commission to manufacture "official" cuff links, lapel pins, cigarette lighters, balloons, baseball bats, cars, bank accounts, cards, songs, books, and television specials as well as the foods, pennants and other paraphernalia.

One commission brainstorm was to build 50 parks — one per state — at a cost of $25 million each. The Bicentennial Parks would feature restaurants, snack bars, exhibition centers, gardens, aviaries as well as a red, white and blue exposition center.

A series of television special emphasizing the heritage of America but glossing over a part of life in the last 200 years which also made the country great — its blunders, mistakes and bad moments.

ONE LITTLE-KNOWN fact should be pointed out. The Bicentennial originally was conceived by Congress to run from 1976 to 1983, the years of the Revolutionary War. In a quick turn around, President Richard Nixon announced July 4, 1971, without the knowledge of Congress, that the official celebration would run during his last four years in office — 1971 through 1976.

The new chairman of the commission said, shortly after being appointed this year, that he saw no reason why the historical celebration also should not be a money-maker. From everything I've read, it will be a little more than that.

Before Dave Wolf, chairman of the Des Plaines commission, chokes on his morning coffee, I should point out that what is planned locally bares no resemblance to the national celebration.

Commissioners are working towards saving a virgin Illinois prairie and turning it into a nature center, planning parades and dances, writing a history of the town and concentrating giving people a new found pride about this country and their community.

The contrast is great. The national commission can keep their crass, commercial celebration, their ash trays and pennants, their propaganda and their schemes. I love this country too much to take part.

Police arrest youth, 17, for chase on motorcycle

A local youth, 17, was arrested after reportedly leading police on a chase down Des Plaines streets and through the Lake Opeka golf course.

According to police reports, an estimated $250 damage was caused to the golf course grounds from the motorcycle the youth was riding during part of the chase. Patrolman Thomas Richard had to be treated for a puncture wound on his hand. He received the wound while trying to climb a fence in pursuit of the youth.

The youth was identified as Kenneth Mills, 518 Dorothy Ln.

Police said the chase began at about 12:35 p.m. Monday when Patrolman Stephen Truver reported noticing Mills driving his cycle down Touhy Avenue without license plates.

TRUVER TRIED to pull the youth over, but Mills disregarded police signals and turned onto Wolf Road where he drove up onto a sidewalk, said police.

Mills then turned south down Webster Ln. where police said he drove up onto two lawns and turned eastbound into the westbound lanes of Touhy.

He fell off his cycle but got back on and continued on through the golf course tearing up greens and fairways, police said.

Other policemen, including Richard, joined the chase while Mills ditched the motorcycle, ran through the golf course and through some yards before finally being collared by Patrolman Ronald Robinson, in the 200 block of Westview Drive.

Police charged the youth with reckless driving, attempting to elude police, having no vehicle registration and violation of a driver's license classification. He will appear in the Des Plaines branch of Circuit Court Aug. 1.

Holiday Cleaners comes up $90 and seven shirts short Burglars stole $90 in cash and the shirt off the back of the Holiday Cleaners, 632 Algonquin Rd., after breaking into the establishment, said Des Plaines police.

The burglars reached under a front counter of the store sometime during the weekend, helped themselves to the cash in an envelope and took seven shirts worth $33.

An undetermined amount of other articles also were taken, police reported.

The burglars entered through an adjacent office building, Arthur and Associates, 630 Algonquin. Both buildings are located in the Colonial Plaza Shopping Center.

Furniture stolen from mobile home

Burglars carted off $375 in furniture after breaking into a mobile home in a Des Plaines mobile home sales lot, police said.

According to reports, the trailer belonged to O'Hare Mobile Homes, Mannheim Road.

Police said the burglars forced open a storm door on the trailer and removed a couch, a chair, two lamps and three tables.

Added students would crowd 'only John Jay'

by FRANK SLIMMER
Already overcrowded John Jay School in Mount Prospect is the only Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 school that would suffer from additional students from new and planned apartment complexes within its boundaries, district boundary committee members agreed Tuesday.

A boundary change would be one way to solve the problem, a committee member said, although another also suggested mobile classrooms. Committee members will present alternatives and may select one at the next meeting, Tuesday, July 16, at 7:30 p.m. at the Dist. 59 administration building.

Six complexes are expected to be built within Jay School's boundaries during the next two years, and could provide between 100 and 200 new students. Erwin Poklacki, committee vice chairman, computed the number using multipliers — figuring, for example, six-tenths of a child for every three-and four-bedroom apartment.

The school's capacity is 590 students, and its principal predicts an enrollment of 617, without new construction, for the 1974-75 school year. Committee members figured maximum enrollment for the following two years, both with and without construction, and in all cases found it exceeded capacity.

IF KINDERGARTEN enrollment remained stable for the next few years, there could be 618 students in 1975-76 and 719 with new construction, the committee estimated. There could be 636 students the following year, 806 with new construction.

"These are definitely worse-case figures," Committee Member Emil Bahmaier said.

"There's no way a school with a 600 capacity could handle 800 students," Committee Secretary Jan Schulz said. She is also assistant secretary at Jay.

"Some boundary change is in order," she suggested.

However, she said, the change should only be around the new apartment complexes, to be built near Algonquin and Busse roads.

The children aren't there yet, so they wouldn't be switching schools, Mrs. Schulz said. Only three Jay students live in that area, in the partially finished Crystal Towers complex, she said, and they could be given options to finish at Jay or go to another school.

THE STUDENTS who would live in that area would be bused anyway, because it would be too dangerous for them to cross busy Busse or Algonquin roads, another committee member, Mary Kloster said. Students could be bused to Jay or another less crowded school, she said.

At least seven other complexes are planned within the boundaries of four other schools: Robert Frost and Forest View in Mount Prospect and Mark Hopkins and Rupley in Elk Grove Village. However, when the committee predicted maximum enrollment for the next three years, none of the four were over capacity.

Poklacki adjourned the meeting, asking members to come up with alternatives to overcrowding at Jay. After the adjournment, however, members discussed using mobile classrooms at Jay and moving the mobiles to other schools later if they become overcrowded. Members decided to check into costs and try to find teachers or administrators in the district who have had experience with mobile classrooms.

Michael W. Buckley, a member of the Mount Prospect Park District Board of Commissioners for more than five years, resigned this week, "with regret."

Buckley stated in a letter to other board members: "My personal obligations are such that I find it almost impossible to attend the meeting nights. Rather than have a non-attending member, I will step down and vacate my chair, with the confidence you will find an adequate man to replace me on the board and fill the unexpired term of my office."

Buckley, 40, of 1408 Pennsylvania Ave., Des Plaines, is a lieutenant with the Des Plaines Fire Dept. and is studying fire science at Harper College. His resignation confirmed a Herald report June 27 indicating he planned to leave.

Board Pres. Robert T. Jackson said the park board will accept applications for the vacancy, and said particular interest would be shown in applicants from "the same general area of the park district" as Buckley. One resident, William M. Hickey, 1110 Lomquist Blvd., Mount Prospect, already has expressed interest in the position.

During his five years on the park board, Buckley served as chairman of the building and grounds committee and assistant treasurer. His successor will serve until the next regular election in spring, 1975.

Ford to speak at Hyde dinner Aug. 19

Vice President Gerald R. Ford will return to the Chicago area for the fourth time since taking office last December. He will speak at a dinner for State Rep. Henry Hyde, R-Chicago.

Hyde is the Republican candidate for Congress in the 6th Congressional District, which borders Elk Grove and Maine townships on the south.

The dinner will be held at the Marriott O'Hare Hotel Aug. 19. U. S. Rep. Harold Collier, who is retiring as 6th District congressman, will be honorary chairman for the event.

Gerald Ford

Burditt supporters ride on Supporters of George Burditt, Republican candidate for the U.S. Senate, will stage a bike-a-thon Saturday, journeying from five points in the metropolitan area to a rally at LaGrange.

One group of bike riders will leave from Harper College parking lot 3-A, Palatine, at 9 a.m. Saturday for the trip of approximately 25 miles.

John Pappas, director of special events for Illinois Youth for Burditt, said 200 riders are expected to participate in the event. Each rider has been asked to locate sponsors to contribute by the mile.

Following an address by Burditt and refreshments at Sedgwick Park, LaGrange, the riders will be returned to their starting points by bus and truck. Other groups will begin the trek at Glen Ellyn, Matteson, Evanston and LaGrange.

Paramedics gain legal status

Paramedics will be given permanent legal status under legislation passed last week by the Illinois General Assembly and sent to Gov. Daniel Walker for his approval.

The paramedic program, which authorized trained firemen and ambulance drivers to aid doctors and nurses in the delivery of emergency medical care, was authorized on a trial basis in 1972.

State Sen. John A. Graham, R-Barrington, assistant Senate majority leader and chief sponsor of the legislation, said the paramedic program was credited with saving 26 lives during its first year at Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights. The hospital was the first in the state to initiate the emergency service.

Success of the pilot program led to enthusiastic support of continuing it by the ron Jaffe, D-Skokie; Diana Hunter and Norman Dachman, County board candidates; Patton Lee Feichter, 4th District senatorial candidate; and Donald Norman, Wheeling Township Democratic committeeman.

Party for Bensinger Sunday

Peter Bensinger, Republican candidate for Cook County sheriff, will appear at a cocktail party at 4 p.m. Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Garry, 256 N. Inverway, Palatine.

Bensinger, former executive director of the Chicago Crime Commission, resigned that post last November for his campaign for sheriff.

Bar Assn. officers map plans

Newly elected officers of Northwest Suburban Bar Assn. attended a planning luncheon recently at Park Ridge Country Club.

They include president John E. Owens, Park Ridge; Robert A. Bush, Mount Prospect, first vice president; Edward A. Wiraugh Jr., Arlington Heights, second vice president; John P. Blesiek Jr., Arlington Heights, secretary, and Dennis Nudo, Park Ridge, treasurer and the new board of governors will be officially installed at NWSBA's Sept. 21 dinner dance at Park Ridge Country Club.

American Medical Assn., Illinois Hospital Assn. and Department of Public Health, Graham said.

Elrod, Flynn to open office

Thomas Flynn, Democratic candidate for state representative from the 4th District, will open a joint suburban headquarters with Cook County Sheriff Richard Elrod July 27.

Public opening of the headquarters, 8074 N. Milwaukee Ave., Niles, will be held from 2 to 4 p.m., with food, refreshments and a band. Special guests will include former U. S. Rep. Abner Mikva, candidate for the 10th District, and former U. S. Rep. Roman Pucinski, now a Chicago alderman.

Invited guests include State Rep. A-Win at bridge

by Oswald and James Jacoby

Poor play abounds in two bid

South's opening spade bid was made because his opponents were vulnerable and he had a part score of 40 points acquired the hand before. His two heart rebid was based on that same reason. He had bid because 60 points would give him game and it seemed silly to stop at a 40 point contract.

West led his king of diamonds and continued with the ace and a small one. South had to lose a club in any event so he decided to lose it right then and there and proceeded to discard one.

East shifted to the deuce of hearts. West won with the ace. An immediate heart return would have allowed East to give him a ruff and set the contract but West led a club.

South went up with dummy's king and proceeded to lead out three rounds of trumps. When both opponents followed to all three leads South was able to knock out the king of hearts and make his contract.

South was right proud of himself for his brilliant bidding and play. We don't want to take anything away from him. He had done right well but the way the cards lay he could have ruffed the third diamond, drawn trumps, discarded his losing club when the defenders cashed

Charities falling short of goals

Bike-a-thons rise, pledges fall

by NANCY NORTH

Fund-raising is not an easy game to play — so learned six local sponsors of bike-a-thons and walk-a-thons this spring.

With twice as many bike-and walk-a-thons this year as last, competition for people and pledges was keen. Most of the sponsoring agencies fell short of their monetary goals.

It was the old story of "first come, first served." Of the more than $90,000 earned by 3,000 local residents in the six hikes this spring, nearly $60,000 was earned in the first two hikes.

Following are the six fund-raising hikes held in Northwest suburban area this spring:

• April 28, a second annual Northwest suburban walk-a-thon was sponsored by the March of Dimes. About 1,050 hikers earned $27,640 in pledges. Although this was the second-highest fund-raising hike this spring, it earned about $2,500 less than last year.

• May 3, 800 riders participated in a bike-a-thon sponsored for the first time by the Northwest Branch of the Diabetes Assn. of Chicago. The diabetes bike-a-thon earned more than any other hike this spring — $38,110 in pledges.

• May 3, the Northwest Opportunity Center in Rolling Meadows held its sixth annual walk-a-thon. Only 200 hikers participated this spring, down from 900 in last year's hike. Because of low participation, the hikers

"It just stands to reason that when you have more bike-a-thons, each group is going to get less . . ."

—Virginia Hunter, director, North Cook County Heart Assn.

"I think the bike-a-thon idea, as such, has been worn out . . ."

earned only $4,000 of the anticipated $15,000 for this year.

• May 19, the Northwest Suburban Unit of the American Cancer Society held its first bike-a-thon. With 400 riders, pledges exceeded $10,000. Officials at the Northwest Suburban Unit said they had hoped to pledge $15,000 and recover about $10,000.

• May 17-19 the Presbyterian men of Arlington Heights sponsored a long-distance bike-a-thon to Saugatuck, Mich. Twenty-three riders earned $400 on the hike. Originally they had hoped to have 100 riders earn $3,000 for Christopher House, a community youth center in Chicago. Richard Hammerli, chairman of the bike-a-thon, said.

• June 2, the Heart Assn. of North

Cook County sponsored their third annual bike-a-thon in conjunction with the Wheeling Wheelmen Bicycle Club. More than 250 riders earned $8,500 in pledges on the hike. This figure is down from earnings of $11,000 in 1973 and $9,000 in 1972.

SPOKESMEN FOR agencies who did not earn their objectives or experienced dropoffs in earnings agreed the reason was that the Northwest area was saturated with hikes.

"It just stands to reason," said Virginia Hunter, director of the North Cook County Division of the Heart Assn., "that when you have more bike-a-thons, each group is going to get less."

"It's possible that hikes have reached their peak," said Bruce

Newton, director of the Northwest Opportunity Center. "Bike-a-thons were more in this year. They attract a much broader concept of age group."

Many agency spokesmen said they plan to try another hike this fall.

The Northwest Unit of the American Cancer Society may be running a bike-a-thon again this fall, said David DeVore, executive director of the unit, "because the weather is more reliable and there's less competitive activity."

DESPITE THE increased competition and reduced profit most agency spokesmen said they planned to continue some kind of hike next year.

Bike-a-thons are an on-going thing" for the American Heart Assn., said Mrs. Hunter. "They push a point to the public about exercise."

The first fund-raising bike-a-thon was originated by the San Diego County Heart Assn. in 1969. It began as an exercise "cyclothon," which later acquired a fund-raising function.

Although the diabetes bike-a-thon was a tremendous success this spring, Mrs. Raymond Wiltgen, president of the Northwest Branch of the Diabetes Assn. of Chicago, said their bike-a-thon will probably be continued for only one more year. "I think the bike-a-thon idea, as such, has been worn out," Mrs. Wiltgen says.

Chest pain not always sign of heart problems

by Dr. Lawrence E. Lamb

My husband and I are 65. We were in the hospital for tests. I was taken in the life squad for chest pain. The doctor said it was only nerves. I spent about five days there for tests. He said I have a hiatal hernia and that was the reason it's hard to swallow. What is this and can it be treated? Also, what is hydronephrosis and hydronephrosis? I need a medical dictionary. This is what he had on my hospital bill for $400, and he told me my tests were all right.

My husband's bill was $600 and it said spastic colitis, A.S.H.D. and myocardial ischemia. He has been a heart patient for several years. Now neither of us knows what's wrong or if we can be helped. I've always done all my own housework, and it makes me nervous not to be able to do it and help others.

Chest pain is a symptom. Many medical problems can cause it other than heart attacks. The problem is that frequently you can't tell whether it is a heart attack or not without testing and observing the patient for a period of time. The prudent thing to do is to put the patient in the hospital and do this. If it is a heart attack, immediate help can be given if any life threatening complications occur.

One of the causes of chest pain resembling a heart attack is hiatal hernia. There is a normal hole in the diaphragm where the esophagus passes through to the stomach. Ordinarily, the diaphragm separates the chest cavity from the abdominal organs.

Often, particularly after 40, this hole enlarges and lets part of the stomach form a hernia through the enlarged hole into the chest cavity. This is associated with burning pain in the pit of the stomach and spasm of the esophagus, which can cause the chest pain. HYDRONEPHROSIS REFERS to dilatation of the part of the kidney where the urine is collected. Hydronephrosis means dilatation of the ureter tube that drains the urine from the kidney to the bladder. Often the dilatation is from an obstruction to the drainage of urine. It also can occur during pregnancy from the pressure of the baby. Your tests mean that the doctor didn't think you had any important obstruction or problems with this finding and no doubt it was not considered too important in your case.

All of this means that you probably can continue to do a lot of things you have been doing, provided you change your habits to eliminate the problems you have had with your hiatal hernia.

The term A.S.H.D. is an abbreviation for arteriosclerotic heart disease, the problem of fatty deposits in the arteries to the heart. These are the cause of his previous heart attack. Myocardial ischemia refers to inadequate flow of blood to the heart muscle, from the same cause. So, since he has been a heart patient for years, I would presume this is merely the documentation of these problems he has had for sometime.

The spastic colon is another and separate problem, referring to cramps of the colon and bowel problems. These can often be improved with good bowel training and proper dietary patterns.

Faulty health insurance charged

Some unions and employers that provide group health insurance have allowed inferior coverage to be written, charged a chiropractic leader in Chicago this week.

Dr. Henry G. West Jr., of Pocatello, Idaho, speaking at the annual convention of the American Chiropractic Assn., said patients assume they are covered by group health insurance only to discover that they cannot collect compensation for services of a chiropractor or other professional. West is president of the ACA council of delegates.

He charged that some unions, employers and insurance companies have succumbed to the organized medical pressure that seeks to funnel all insurance cases to the medical practitioner's office.

"Since insurance companies merely indemnify against loss, it should be the patient's prerogative to select the healing art practitioner of his choice — and be justly reimbursed," he said.

BW seeks higher earnings

Improved earnings for the second quarter are expected by Borg Warner Corp., reports James Bere, president and chief executive officer. Bere said a strong performance by the chemicals group and improvement in problem areas should enable the firm to offset first quarter earnings decline. Earnings in the first quarter were down 7.5 per cent on a sales increase of 8 per cent. Bere said second quarter earnings are expected to rise 10 to 15 per cent, for an overall 3 to 5 per cent increase in the first half of the year. The company's Roy C. Ingersoll Research Center is located in Des Plaines.

Combined Insurance dividend up

Combined Insurance Co. of America today declared a regular third quarter cash dividend of 13 cents a share payable Aug. 16 to shareholders of record July 26.

This is the Chicago-based company's first dividend payment to reflect the increase of 18 per cent in the rate of quarterly cash dividend payments that was announced at the annual meeting in April. It was also announced that an extra cash dividend would be paid in the fourth quarter, the sum to be determined later.

Plea for pennies issued

The seven Northwest suburban member banks of the Suburban Bank group urge penny savers to bring in their collections to ease the penny shortage. Each person or group turning in $25 worth of pennies will receive a special U.S. Treasury Exceptional public service certificate, said Gerald Fitzgerald, chairman of the banks.

Business today

AMC reported in good shape

by EDWARD S. LECHTIZIN
DETROIT — Despite an impending battle for the small car market with its two largest competitors, the top executive of American Motors thinks his company will do well.

With predictions of a 1980 car market 80 per cent dominated by cars smaller than standard size, AMC Chairman Roy D. Chapin Jr. figures the smallest of the "Big Four" is in a good position.

"Our optimism lies in our approach to product design — our philosophy of difference," says Chapin. "We will find areas of uniqueness and develop products for them."

"WE DON'T believe we'll have to lock horns directly with General Motors and Ford, despite their approaching emphasis on smaller cars," he says.

In 1973, AMC captured 4.1 per cent of the domestic sales. With the energy crisis that hit during the winter, Americans rushed to small cars and AMC's share of the market through June stood at 5.3 per cent of the domestic market, mainly because GM, Ford and Chrysler sales have slumped sharply.

Through most of the winter, AMC sales ran ahead of 1973, but parts shortages, distribution problems and generally lagging sales caught up with AMC.

Its 1974 sales trail last year by 2.2 per cent, but that's nowhere near the industry average of just over 24 per cent.

CHAPIN EXPECTS to sell 400,000 cars this year — about the limit for its production facilities — and will have the room to build and sell 480,000 in 1975.

AMC was in the perfect spot for the shift to small cars. In 1973, small cars — those below standard size — accounted for 74 per cent of AMC sales while at GM the same type of cars accounted for 21 per cent of sales, Ford 38 per cent and Chrysler 44 per cent.

Now, Ford and GM are rushing into the 1975 market with new small cars. Ford will offer the luxury compact Mercury Monarch and Ford Granada while GM offers four new subcompacts — the sporty Chevrolet Monza Two-plus-Two that will be offered by Buick as the Skyhawk and by Oldsmobile as the Starfire. Pontiac gets a regular version of the Vega that will be tagged the Astre.

AMC is ready to counter with the Pacer, a luxury small car that will debut early next year. Designed for a rotary engine, it will be offered with conventional engines until AMC can buy a rotary.

Four years ago, AMC introduced the subcompact Gremlin with a price tag of $1,999. It now is the lowest-priced U.S. car at $2,481, but should go up another $200 when the 1975 models debut.

"We no longer price small cars so that they are in effect subsidized by margins on bigger cars, principally because we no longer are faced with unrealistic foreign car prices," Chapin says. "American Motors has already demonstrated that small cars are profitable."

State may study cost of 'cleaning up'

by LEA TONKIN

Putting a price tag on cleanup measures: It's the aim of Senate Bill 589, recently passed by state legislators. If the final version is approved by Gov. Daniel Walker, the Illinois Institute of Environmental Quality would be required to study the economic impact of all proposed and pending state environmental regulations.

Taking a bow for efforts in the passage of the unique state law, Illinois State Chamber of Commerce president Lester W. Brann Jr. said, "As drafter of this important bill, the Illinois State Chamber of Commerce lauds the Illinois General Assembly for its realistic approach to energy and environmental problems in approving Senate Bill 589."

The fuel crisis might have been minimized had environmental legislation been studied for its effect upon the economic framework of the state. Effects of proposed environmental regulations on employment, dislocations and shutdowns of industry, profitability, price and economic development will now be considered under provisions of this measure.

The high cost of pollution also must be considered, environmentalists groups counter. Mrs. Leo Botts, president of the Lake Michigan Federation of Chicago, said of the legislation, "This is clearly undercutting environmental regulations. It's very unfortunate for the people of Illinois. There is no evidence that environmental regulations have adversely affected the state's economic condition." The bill is aimed at delaying environmental reform, she said.

Peter Loquercio, deputy director of the Institute of Environmental Quality, said the economic impact statements for proposed and pending environmental regulations would be submitted to the Illinois Pollution Control Board for consideration. The Institute previously conducted impact studies on an informal basis, he added.

Clean water gets boost

The fight for clean water — stalled during the past year while federal, state and local governments sorted out regulations of the 1972 Water Pollution Amendments — soon will get an additional boost.

Francis T. Mayo, Midwest regional administrator for the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, said Wednesday that $2.5 billion will be available during fiscal 1975 to municipalities for wastewater treatment projects in the Midwest region. The area includes Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Minnesota, Ohio and Wisconsin. Mayo said $110 million in remaining 1973 funds would be obligated in Illinois, Indiana and Wisconsin.

"Here in the Midwest we are going to do our darndest to get every possible dollar out during the coming fiscal year," Mayo said. In Illinois, unobligated fiscal year 1974 money totals $185,268,925. Fiscal 1975 funds provided for Illinois total $252,311,700. For construction of sewage treatment plants in Illinois, $187,467,000 has been allocated in fiscal 1974.

Atomic power plant opposed

Citizens for A Better Environment group filed a petition to intervene in the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission licensing hearings for Commonwealth Edison Co.'s proposed Braidwood station. The group is appealing the Illinois Commerce Commission's decision to grant a construction permit for the nuclear power station. CBE also challenged the Edison application permit for a construction permit from the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency. Radiation hazards from the impact of high voltage transmission lines are cited by the group.

Directories being revised

Revision of the Illinois Institute of Environmental Quality directories is under way. Information about organizations and facilities in the Directory of Markets for Recyclable Materials, the Directory of Neighborhood Recycling Centers in Illinois and the Directory of Environmental Groups in Illinois should be sent to Annie Engelhardt, 6912 W. Dohson St., Niles, Ill. 60648.

Technology session slated

Illinois Pollution Control Board slated a hearing on sulphur dioxide removal technology and regulations for July 22-23. The sessions will be conducted at the Peoria Public Library, starting at 10 a.m.

Herald opinion

What's so bad about being a weed?

Has it seemed as if there are a few more weeds along Illinois roadsides this summer?

Well, there are — a lot more weeds. It's the result of a policy decision at the Illinois Division of Highways, and — all things considered — it's a pretty good idea.

Actually, the change began setting in a couple summers ago when the highway people began to review their traditional weed-cutting practice — a tradition that dictated regular adherence to "fence to fence" manicuring of weeds along state roads.

In practice, that meant close cropping of just about all right-of-way property in the state several times a summer, a mammoth job that would send shivers through your average weekend lawn-trimmer.

Apparently, somebody finally asked the question: is all this necessary? It isn't necessary, and that's the answer that came back in a new policy aimed at work along the state's primary road systems.

A lot of cutting continued, primarily in urban areas, but a lot of cutting was eliminated, and that didn't seem to bother many people.

Mostly, the cutback was concentrated in rural areas, where shoulders and intersections still would get trimmed, but the mowers would stop at the ditch line, leaving the weeds on the steep and hazardous slopes and in those vast expanses between shoulder and field.

The policy was extended this summer to the interstate roads, with the mowers basically following a policy of not going more than eight feet off the shoulder point or eight feet into the wider medians.

The department of conservation also joined in reducing the mowing along roadsides and adjacent areas in many of the state parks.

Both the highway and conservation people cite fuel economy as a major factor in the policy, and no doubt that is a worthy consideration. The new policy on the interstate roads alone is supposed to save 40,000 gallons of gasoline this summer.

But there are a lot more reasons than that to like the idea.

It will save the state money, though there's no estimate yet of how much. It should be considerable, when you add up the dollars not spent on man-hours and gasoline that won't have to be used.

The environmental gains also should be considerable, as the conservation department noted in announcing its part in the policy.

A small portion of the environmental consideration is in protecting the roadsides: the more weeds, the better the root system and the less the erosion.

The larger part is the proven fact that in a heavily-agricultural state like Illinois — where most of the land has been tilled — roadsides can be havens for wildlife. Song birds and small game like pheasants, rabbit and quail can thrive on the roadsides, in some areas it being the only habitat they have left. In east-central Illinois — the state's great pheasant bowl — the conservation department has taken the idea a step further, planting the roadsides with a brome-alfalfa mix to build up nesting sites.

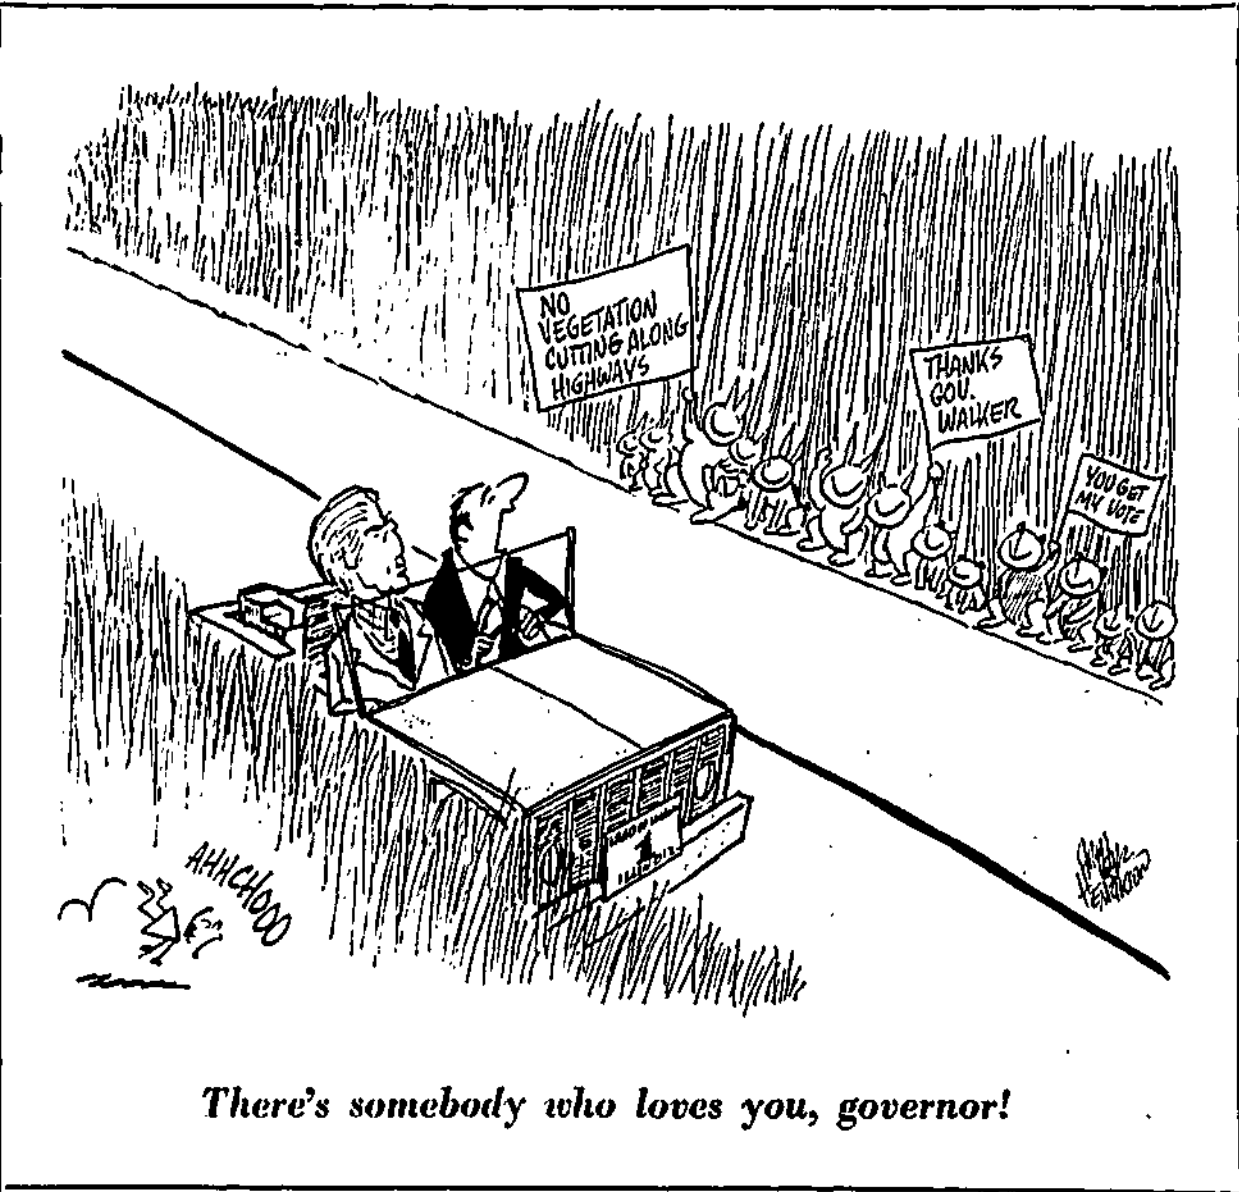

But beyond all that, are weedy roadsides all that ugly? We think the opposite — that these little strips of the vanished prairie are beauty in themselves.

We'd rather have splashes of blue chicory, daisies, Indian paintbrush, black-eyed Susans, wild tiger lilies and even goldenrod than miles of crewcut lawn or ground-up weeds along the highways. Give us a stand of foxtail rolling under an August breeze, and keep the tractors in the garage.

So thank you, Illinois, for NOT cutting your weeds, and long may they wave.

No miniconvention fight for Wallace

by ARNOLD B. SAWISLAK

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Gov. George Wallace has given up his fledgling campaign to win a political prize no one else really wanted nor could understand his reasons for seeking.

The Alabama governor quietly let it be known that he no longer is trying to gain control of the Democratic Party's "miniconvention" next Dec. 6-8 at Kansas City.

Wallace had never personally committed himself to a mini-convention takeover, but his campaign organization — the only operation of its type now in place — made no secret of the effort.

The idea was to use the party's newly-amended delegate selection rules — which require state parties to give delegates to all candidates proportional to their rank-and-file support above 10 per cent — to seek voting control of the Kansas City meeting. Wallace's campaign strategists, led by Hall Timmons of Texas, believed the effort would be a marvelous way to organize the governor's supporters nationwide and start the momentum for a 1976 Democratic presidential nomination drive.

They also said the miniconvention itself was worth the effort, because Wallace was concerned that the party's liberal wing might adopt a party charter at Kansas City that would effectively freeze out other factions.

Wallace, who was reportedly busy during this time building his landslide victory in the Alabama Democratic gubernatorial primary, interposed no objection to the miniconvention plan.

The delegate selection process began with party caucuses at the precinct and county levels in the spring and it quickly became evident that Wallace was not going to storm the heights simply because he was the only climber. Local party organizations did not take well to takeover efforts, and the Wallace delegate campaign fell apart in Texas, Mississippi, South Carolina and Tennessee. Having done little in the South, even the governor's most enthusiastic supporters could not see how they could win elsewhere, and the campaign stalled.

Wallace gets a bit of a bloody nose out of his withdrawal from the campaign, but nothing compared to the body blow he would have taken had the effort continued and flopped nationwide.

Now, by holding back until the real delegate search begins in 1976, Wallace will be able to use the weapon of suspense on Democratic politicians in many states who don't have a clear idea of the Alabama governor's rank and file strength and who will have to keep watching their flanks carefully until the showdowns come.

Bob Lahey's column

Children's hour in Springfield

It is customary at critical times in the Illinois legislature to see various elected and appointed officials, functionaries and "go-fers" prowling the halls of the Capitol.

They buttonhole legislators, getting the latest vote count on pet projects of their office, wheedling, cajoling and promising to swing reluctant votes.

Prominent among those hovering about under the rotunda during the silliness which was supposed to have been the closing days of the General Assembly prior to June 30 were Lt. Gov. Neil Hartigan and Attorney General William J. Scott.

Both Democrat Hartigan and Republican Scott were at odds with Gov. Daniel Walker over legislative programs to enhance their offices.

While Hartigan wooed anti-Walker Democrats for help in pressuring the governor into naming his lieutenant as vice-chairman of an Energy Resources Council, Scott was huddling with Republicans to shore up support for amendments on appropriations bill which would relegate to him "sole and exclusive" authority to represent state agencies in legal matters.

Walker charged that Scott, 99 and 44/100 per cent a candidate for Walker's job in 1976, was attempting to create a huge patronage army of lawyers infiltrated throughout his, Walker's, administrative agencies.

Scott charged that Walker's own legal advisers had bungled a number of legal affairs and had failed to recognize the constitutional duties of his, Scott's, office.

Scott supporters charge, for instance, that in 18 months as governor, Walker has not sent one legal inquiry to the attorney general, relying instead on his staff attorneys. The result, they claim, has been that Scott has had to pull the state's legal chestnuts out of the fire on several occasions.

So while Scott prowled the halls rallying support, Walker turned to his favorite weapon in a political brouhaha, summoning the television cameras for a press conference.

Now both are accepted tactics in the Capitol.

What is not considered cricket is crashing somebody else's press conference. For one thing, it leads to disorderly debate to allow your opponent to stick his nose into your press conference. For another thing, he might come off looking better than you.

But when Scott got word of the impending press conference, he trotted to the newsroom outside the governor's office and stationed himself in front of the cameras, in what his sympathizers described as a "good faith" attempt to meet with the governor and discuss their differences.

The governor was not having any, however. Instead he invited the TV cameras into his inner sanctum and left Scott alone like a small boy locked out of the clubhouse.

Later, he labeled Scott's attempted invasion "childish."

That seems a reasonable assessment, but one wonders when the governor arrived at that judgment.

Presumably it was some time since the eve of the primary election in 1972 when Walker and his primary opponent for governor, Lt. Gov. Paul Simon made the traditional 11-3 trips around the state for their last-gasp press conferences.

By an extraordinary coincidence, Walker showed up moments before or after Simon's scheduled TV conferences at a number of stops, and in East St. Louis, Simon's last stop on the tour, his campaign aides had to stand holding the door to the conference room against Walker helpers who were trying to force it open and clear a path for Walker to "accidentally" crash Simon's TV appearance. Childish.

Rep. Porter explains stand on officials' pension vote

Recently in a front page news story the Chicago Tribune reported that the General Assembly voted to repeal sections of the pension code which deny pension benefits to a state official convicted of a felony. The Tribune named the representatives who voted against repeal. I was one of 29 representatives who voted no but was not named in the article.

Perhaps this was because at the time the original roll call was taken I was seeking recognition to discuss several relevant provisions of the new Illinois Constitution.

Article XIII, Section 5, provides in part: "Membership in any pension system of the State . . . shall be an enforceable contractual relationship, the benefits of which shall not be diminished or impaired." This wording would appear to indicate that any state official in the pension system has a vested right to his pension benefits, and, therefore, they are part of his estate.

Article I, Section 11, the Bill of Rights, provides in part that, "No conviction shall work corruption of blood or forfeiture of estate."

These provisions read together seem to form a solid basis for opinion that the sections being repealed violate the Constitution.

Sexes are different

The ERA fanatics would have us believe that cows would do as well as bulls at the bull fights except for "cultural conditioning." Our common experience, visible differences and statistical evidence (women drivers are safer, for instance) make the ERA view of no difference between the sexes as foolish. The ERA constitutional fiat will for all time eliminate any ability to deal with real and honest sex differences under the law. The ERA is a "Pandora's Box."

situation and should, in fact, be repealed.

Nevertheless, I believe that the issue of constitutionality is one for the courts, and until a final decision has been rendered, the provisions of the law should not be changed legislatively.

'Landmark' case may not bring much help for poor

For school officials everywhere, the name of the case Serrano vs. Priest is as well known as Brown vs. Board of Education, the decision that required school integration.

Serrano vs. Priest is the name of a case decided three years ago by the California Supreme Court that held that relying on local property taxes to finance schools was unconstitutional because it resulted in vast inequities in funds among school districts.

One of the basic arguments before the California court was that the children of poor parents were deprived of equal educational opportunity when they lived in school districts that could not, because of low property values, raise as much tax money as richer school districts.

The U. S. Supreme Court later decided against extending the Serrano decision to the whole nation by ruling against a similar contention by the State of Texas. The ruling, however, did not affect Serrano and the State of California is now working to implement that decision.

SCHOOL OFFICIALS from around the nation have been watching California to see how the decision works in practice because, even though it's not the law of the land, most of them think school financing will move toward eliminating the inequities pointed out by the case. In Illinois, in fact, the General Assembly last year passed the "resource equalizer" state school-aid formula designed to eliminate many of the inequities ruled out by Serrano.

Now, from California comes an interesting news item. It seems that the people who pressed for the suit, including the lawyers who were interested in bettering the lot of poor people, have discovered that Serrano vs. Priest may not help poor people very much.

by Wandalyn Rice

The state of California, it seems, has used a computer to determine the incomes of residents of various school districts. And the study has found that the majority of poor children live in rich districts which have the opportunity for large revenues from property taxes because of industry and commercial business.

WHAT THAT DISCOVERY means is that, as the state implements the Serrano decision, "poor" school districts with fairly wealthy residents will benefit perhaps more than districts with many poor residents.

This discovery has made some people unhappy in California, since, in the words of the attorney who argued the Serrano case, "We assumed more poor people than rich people lived in low-wealth districts."

However, it seems that the findings really shouldn't have surprised them so much. Anyone who, for example, took a good look at some suburban districts in our area probably could have figured out the truth.

The fact is the things that give a school district a lot of "wealth" in terms of property taxes are large industrial properties — like U.S. Steel. And I have yet to see a wealthy neighborhood next door to a steel mill.

IF THE LAWYERS arguing the Serrano case probably rano case had thought about it, they probably could have figured that out. One of the characteristics of a poor family is a lack of options — and people who have options usually don't choose to live near industry.

All this does not, however, mean the Serrano decision is not going to help California schools, or that applying the Serrano case in other states will be harmful. The general principal that no one, rich or poor, should be penalized for where he lives by higher taxes for schools is probably as sound now as it was when the California Supreme Court made its ruling.

In addition, the discovery that poor children live in rich districts (and yet still do poorly in school, in general) may serve to focus discussion on ways to improve their education that do not necessarily mean vast infusion of funds.

MORE AND MORE educators are beginning to wonder if the long-believed adage "give me the money and I can do anything" is really true. A school district can be very wealthy, spend a lot of money and still fail its students, just as a poor district, through dedication and imagination, sometimes can work wonders.

What the Serrano decision will mean for California schools, and what, hopefully, the new state school aid formula in Illinois will ultimately mean, is that school districts, both failing and imaginative, will have roughly the same amount of money to work with — and failures won't be able to use money as an alibi.

That would be a gain the original proponents of the Serrano case probably

Postpone threat of boycott; full field for Women's Open

The United States Women's Open to be held at LaGrange Country Club, July 18-21, will have a full field of players from the Ladies Professional Golf Association (LPGA), in attendance. Thus, a boycott of the tourney has been avoided.

The entry list has exceeded 170 for the championship, the largest list of players ever to sign up for the tournament. The field will be limited to 150 players.

The large list points out one of the problem areas concerning the United States Golf Association (USGA) event that raised questions some weeks back as to whether there might be a boycott of the event by LPGA players. In case of an entry list in excess of 150, a draw for spots in the tournament is held for non-exempt players, which means that a number of spots could be granted to amateurs, while a touring professional might not have a chance to compete for some of the $10,000 prize money.

The USGA has assured the LPGA that this qualifying procedure will be reviewed and changed for 1975, according to LPGA recommendations, so as to be more equitable for all. Perhaps a qualifying round, either at the site or in designated areas, will be the solution.

The LPGA officially requested on two occasions that the USGA raise the purse for the 1974 event but was advised that no change in the purse was possible for this year. The USGA did agree to distribute the entire $10,000 purse to professionals who survive the cut after two rounds of play.

As a result of these concessions, and an apparent willingness on the part of the USGA to continue to meet with the LPGA on a regular basis, the membership of the LPGA agreed that it would not undertake any group action that would be detrimental to the 1974 championship. It was felt that the members of the LaGrange Country Club would be unfairly penalized if a lesser field competed for the title.

Arrangements have been made for the USGA Executive Committee to attend the annual meeting of the LPGA (date and site not yet selected) to hear and respond to the questions and queries of individual LPGA members. The USGA has also agreed that it will schedule a meeting of its own Executive Committee to discuss the 1975 Open so that questions concerning the purse structure, qualifying, etc. may be considered in advance of its own annual meeting in January.

There has been a strong indication from the membership to the Executive Board of the LPGA that unless there is a substantial increase in the prize money of the championship for 1975 that they in fact will not support the 1975 USGA Women's Open which is scheduled for Atlantic City C.C. in July, 1975.

The LPGA and USGA have had several fruitful meetings in recent weeks that have resulted in an improving relationship. We hope that this genuine interest in the Women's Open will continue so that it can assume its deserved role as one of the truly great prestige events in women's golf.

Practice rounds are being held this Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday with daily grounds tickets costing $3 and regular grounds tickets for the official tournament days — July 18 through 21 — costing $5.

Tickets are on sale at the gates of the LaGrange Country Club, one block south of 47th Street on Brainerd Avenue in LaGrange.

Norwood forfeits to Prospect, 7-4

Mount Prospect's American Legion team continued its savage hitting for three innings against Norwood Park Tuesday and then had the effort washed out by thunderstorms.

A decision by Norwood, however, to forfeit the game gave Prospect a 7-4 victory that extended their Ninth District record to 8-4 and moved them ahead of Arlington into second place, only a game and a half behind league leading Wheeling.

The decision to forfeit made by Norwood was an indication the Chicago team would not travel out to the suburbs in the future and cast doubts about the status of an upcoming game with Logan Square. League commissioner Gene Sackett said that it was his belief that Norwood would forfeit that game also.

Prospect jumped on Norwood pitchers for four runs in the first inning with Mike Quade's triple keying the burst. They followed with a run in the second that Ken Butzen's double set off and another two runs in the third.

Buddy Hughes handled the mound for Prospect and served up four runs in the first two innings. Jack Fulara took the abbreviated loss for Norwood.

Prospect's formerly anemic bats have come suddenly to life in the last three games. With a team batting average of .214 and only two players hitting over .200, Prospect had been previously relying on steady defense and outstanding pitching.

In the last three games, however, Prospect has scored 37 runs in just 16 innings. With the regular season beginning to wind down, Prospect seems to be reaching a peak just in time for the American Legion tournament.

Ridge loses to Arlington

Paul Kastner hurled his second straight complete-game victory in Ninth District legion action as the Arlington Heights entry downed Park Ridge, 6-1, Tuesday at Maine South High School.

Lloyd Meyer's Arlington crew went right to work in the first inning, stringing together four hits and a squeeze bunt for three runs. Jerry DeSimone led off with a single, advanced to second on a grounder, and scored on a hit by Brett Frase, who took an extra base on the throw to the plate. Tom Good drove in Frase with a single, and, after Bruce Hanson singled to put runners at first and third, Rance Aguirre laid down a perfect bunt to bring home Good.

Kastner had allowed only two hits when the game was halted after six innings because of rain. The only run Park Ridge managed off the tall Arlington lefty came in the sixth on a leadoff walk, a passed ball, a wild pitch, and a single.

'All in the Family'—Oakland A's style

by MURRAY OLDERMAN
(Second of Two Related Articles)

OAKLAND — (NEA) — In the victory party celebrating the second straight World Series triumph of the Oakland Athletics last October, Reggie Jackson and Blue Moon Odom had to be separated when they got into a spat.

This spring, when centerfielder Bill North didn't run out a grounder, Jackson hopped on him verbally when he got back to the dugout.

"You're not No. 5," snarled North, referring to Manager Alvin Dark's uniform. "I only take orders from No. 5."

They haven't spoken to each other civilly since and resumed the argument, physically, on a road trip in Detroit, with Jackson bruising his right shoulder.

"I can't believe these guys," says Ron Bergman of the Oakland Tribune, the only writer who travels with the club. "You'll be talking to a guy about other players, and he'll say, 'That guy is a bleep.' And the subject is sitting right next to him and you know he's got to hear it."

To Catfish Hunter, the star pitcher of the A's, a 20-game winner each of the last three years, it's quite normal. "When you look over in a corner and you think, 'That S.O.B. is loafing,' you tell him. You don't have ball players sitting in a corner moody. You think a lot better with everything off your mind."

"We have a lot of fights, yeah, and they get in the paper, but it's the type of club where everything gets out in the open. On a road trip, there are five and six guys together all the time so you can't say we don't get along. When we get on the field, we produce."

Hunter's 10-year tenure on the team has been exceeded only by shortstop Bert Campaneris (miffed because teammate Reggie Jackson was designated the most valuable player in the '73 World Series) and second baseman Dick Green.

"The one characteristic of this club," says Green, "is that they say what's on their mind. It isn't always good, but they say it."

"We don't have any leaders," says Sal Bando, the burly third baseman who comes as close as anyone to being the players' spokesman, "because we grew up together and can't be awed by any man. We never had any veterans. Dick Green was our leader. He's flakier than the rest of us."

The championship A's don't even claim team collectivity of purpose. Vida Blue once pointed to the outfield and said, "There's three cliques on this team and you can see all of them out there." In left field was Joe Rudi, white; in center, Angel Mangual, a Latin-American; in right, Reggie Jackson, representing the blacks.

"The way they write about us every place we go," says Jackson. "Here Come the Feudin' A's. I'm tired of it."

Time Magazine did a cover piece on the brilliant slugger. "How come," he says plaintively, "they didn't write about my infielders and my pitchers, only about me?"

The Time piece, it's pointed out, did sidebar stories on owner Charlie Finley and manager Dark. "Bleep Finley," exclaims Reggie, "bleep Dark. What'd they ever do?"

The inescapable fact about the A's is that despite their bluntness and their hassles, they do win. A plausible theory has been advanced that the core of the club has been the same since it was

by AIT MUGALIAN

The first time you set foot on the lush, green turf of Wrigley Field, you understand why Ernie Banks calls it "the friendly confines."

Indeed, Ernie is still marveling at the joys of playing in the major leagues. "Isn't this just the most beautiful day for baseball you've ever seen?" asks Mr. Cub, and it isn't really a question.

Banks, now a hitting instructor for the Cubs and their minor league teams, chats amiably with players and reporters standing around the batting cage before the game. For him, Wrigley Field has been a way of life since 1953.

Here on the field, the vine-covered walls are much closer to home plate than they seem to be on television. And the paying customers in the box seats are only a few feet away from the action. These really are "friendly confines."

It is a beautiful day, too. The sun shines brightly, the temperature is in the 70's, and a light breeze refreshes the park. This is the way baseball was meant to be played, and in Chicago on this particular day, the Cubs and the Braves will play two.

Nearly 40,000 fans will push their way through the turnstiles on this most brilliant day for baseball. The reason for the excitement on this Friday afternoon is wearing a blue and white No. 44 Braves' jersey. His name is Henry Aaron.

Here, in the park that Babe Ruth once hit a home run when and where he said he would, Henry Aaron is living history. In 21 seasons, Aaron has watched three generations of ballplayers come and go, as he hammered away at record after record. Seven hundred and fifteen home runs speak only a portion of the Aaron legend.

The large ladies' day crowd will want Aaron to hit a homer today — rather, they will expect it. Hammerin' Hank has blasted 50 of them at the friendly confines since 1954.

Aaron hit his first Wrigley Field home run off Hal Jeffcoat. Over the years, he has faced Glen Hobbie and Jim Brosnan, Larry Jackson and Bill Paul, Don Elston and Bob Anderson. Those Cub pitchers, like Jeffcoat, are gone.

Now Henry Aaron has come to Wrigley Field for the last time. It is a new bunch of Cub players he sees — Bill Madlock, Steve Swisher, Ray Burris. Players such as Vic Harris, Jerry Morales, and Jim Todd were not here last year.

Time passes. And the years, so good to Aaron, have not been kind to the Cubs or their fans. Failure and frustration have followed the Chicagoans for three long decades. It is the hope of these new, young Cubs to produce a winning spirit on the North Side.

They must start practically from scratch. Billy Williams and Don Kessinger are the only players left from the Cubs of the 1960's. Both past 30, Williams and Kessinger strike a sharp contrast on this 1974 team.

The new third baseman is Madlock, acquired in a trade with the Texas Rangers. He has all the potential of a star major leaguer. He is just 23.

Harris, currently on the disabled list, came in the same trade with Madlock and is in his second big league season. He is playing second base on a regular basis in the majors for the first time. He is 24.

The foundation of the Cub pitching staff — Rick Reuschel, Burt Hooton, and Bill Bonham — is 25 and under.

This is a youthful team. Jose Cardenal and Rick Monday are veterans on this club. Cardenal is 30 and Monday is 28. Williams, at 36, is literally of another generation.

They all play together on the same field. The boundaries which separate the players — age, race, temperament — fade on the field. Winning is a common goal.

Henry Aaron, age 40, hits a line drive to deep left field and the thousands of fans rise to their feet. But the ball is caught and the crowd settles back, disappointed.

But Aaron will bat again.

And, just as certain, there will be other Aarons in Wrigley Field. Will Bill Madlock be remembered 20 years from now? Will Steve Swisher? They are a part of the future.

And, still, the ghosts of the past haunt Wrigley Field. They all came through here — the Hank Sauers and Randy Jackson of another day.

They all trod over this grass. They all dashed down to first base. They all sat on the long dugout bench. And, at one time or another, they all must have wondered at the beauty of the day. Because the friendly confines have always been the friendly confines.

And even if Ernie Banks and Billy Williams and Henry Aaron aren't in the lineup, we can still play three games today.

struggling in last place — virtually all the stars are organization-sponsored — that it has been unutilized by philosophies of other veterans from other organizations and that in the tell-it-like-it-is atmosphere for young people in the '70s, the A's grew up together and learned to speak out together.

Third baseman Bando feels they achieve through common adversity. He lists problems with management, a bad stadium, cold weather, poor attendance and miserable travel conditions. "We win despite it all," he says. "We're all striving for financial rewards. We only get 'em by performing. We were the World Champions of baseball and salary arbitration. The players are tired of being taken advantage of. That's why we take it to the public and tell it like it is."

And that, by inference, is why their tensions sometimes erupt into fights among themselves, bound as they are by six months of close playing confinement.
 The A's have also expressed their independence as individuals by pioneering mustaches and long hair in the big leagues.

At baseball gatherings to which he's invited, Catfish Hunter likes to tell the people:

"We got long hair. So naturally we think like women. No wonder we talk and fight so much."

Devon-Higgins All-Stars in slugfest

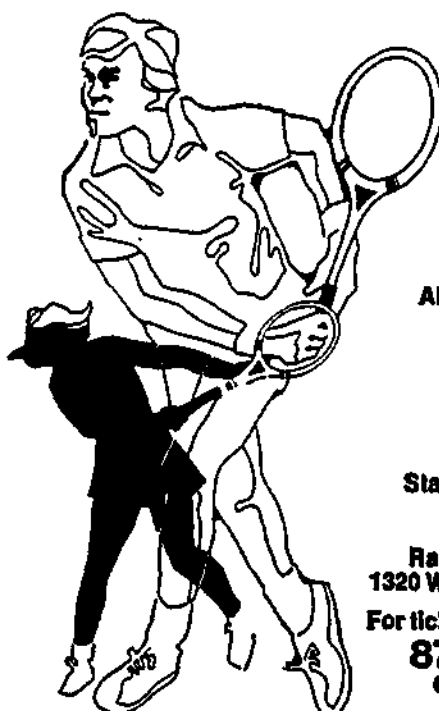

The National Division held off late inning threats by the American Division as it scored a 17-13 win in the annual Devon-Higgins Little League Inter-Division All-Star game at Seminole Park.
 Although the Nationals outbit the Americans, 16-13, in the nine inning struggle, the big bat was wielded by Mike Henning of the American Stars. He drove in six runs with a double and a pair of home runs.

A five run explosion by the Nationals in the seventh inning put the game out of reach.
 In the Babe Ruth League All-Star game Devon-Higgins solidly outbit West Cicero in the District V tournament in South Cicero but awarded too many walks to prevent a 10-15 defeat.
 Devon-Higgins walked four batters in the final inning to push in the winning run, scored by Cicero pitcher Bob Sujak.

PLANS FOR NEW products and services were formulated when the Second National Philatelic Symposium, sponsored by the U.S. Postal Service, met in Chicago May 23-24. Among them:

- A new line of topical stamp collecting kits slated for distribution in the fall. Subjects include space, sports, the animal kingdom, birds, etc.

- Full implementation of a subscription service similar to ones now offered by many countries to provide new issues automatically to collectors. The first items offered will be the new issues in the American Commemorative Panel Series.

- Centralized processing of first day covers in Washington, D.C. Scheduled to begin "soon" the new system is intended to provide better cancellations and to eliminate the many complaints from first-day cover collectors. Local cancellations in first-day cities would still be available to those collectors who prefer them.

- The initiation of a "small" fee for servicing first day covers probably to begin when centralized processing is put into effect.

- An experimental, large, pre-addressed envelope which collectors may purchase and use to order first day covers. They will contain instructions for preparing and ordering first day covers and will be used to return canceled covers to the collector.

- A proposed new format for sheets of stamps designed to reduce the number a collector needs to purchase to obtain plate blocks, marginal inscriptions and plate numbers. Further information on the new format will be announced after testing by the Postal Service.

Additionally, the Postal Service plans to conduct extensive market research to determine the attitudes and wishes of collectors and to spend $5 million on a national advertising program to foster stamp collecting.

The program, which breaks with full-page ads and TV commercials in July, was successfully tested for 18 months in Boston, Columbus and St. Louis where stamp collecting reportedly increased by 33 per cent.

Buying coins by trade-in advisable

Any desire to take up the challenge of coin collecting will certainly find satisfaction in the U.S. quarter-dollar series, authorized by the Act of April 2, 1792. Although it was a very popular value, it wasn't struck until 1796 and discontinued until 1804 with a slightly different Liberty on the obverse and completely different reverse.

Robert Scott designed U.S. Coin No. 52 the Type I Quarter and John Reich, his successor, designed No. 53 or the Type II.

The collectability of the quarter dollar is hampered by the ever-present high-value factor in the two draped-bust designs issued from 1796 through 1807 with an eight-year lapse between the two. Obtaining them poses somewhat of a cost problem for the type and consecutive series collector, but makes an interesting long-term investment for the investor.

WHEN ANY coin of extremely low mintage finds itself in a rarity position, the collector should exert every effort to obtain the best-conditioned specimen possible before trying to complete the series. It serves the purpose as an acceptable filler until such time as it would be economically feasible to trade it in on a more desirable piece.

The rate of development for a high-value coin in any lesser condition is equal to the rate of development for a coin of a higher grade, which is to the collector's advantage. Better it should increase its value in the collector's cabinet than in the dealer's showcase.

This suggestion has been advanced before, and a study of the Red Book shows the idea to be practicable. In 1963, for instance, the estimated value of a 1796 Type I draped-bust quarter dollar was $900 in Very Good condition. The same piece in the same condition is valued in the 1973 Red Book at $1,200, a 33 per cent increase that certainly would go a long way toward the purchase of the same Type in Fine Condition, estimated to be worth $2,100.

BUYING AND trading temporary fillers is a common practice with some coin firms, especially if purchases are made with such an understanding from the beginning. As a matter of fact, the process is encouraged to help the collector and the investor better his holdings.

This allows the customer to devote his attention to completing his set or series, knowing that when he is financially able he may return the filler at its normal market price in exchange for a more choice coin with the difference in cash.

"COINS/An Investors & Collectors Guide" shows a 20-year estimated value profile for the Type I Quarter as follows:

A GRAPHIC example is what could have been gained had a collector or investor purchased a fine specimen in 1952 and held it until 1962 or 1972. Progressive enhancement is the name of the game, so it is always advisable to trade UP, never down.

The same principle applies to any form of coin collecting. Circulated Mint sets are always traded in on Uncirculated Mint sets just as Uncirculated Mint sets are exchanged for Proofs. Always, of course, with the cash difference being paid much the same as trading automobiles.

Graduation speech hit

Board member criticized

Open letter to the board of education of Palatine High School. It has always been a pleasant experience to see my former graduation exercises from Algonquin Junior High School. It has always been a pleasant experience to see my former students graduated.

Last night, however, I was embarrassed for the board of education, Dist. 62. In the midst of the exercises, Mrs. Selez, a representative from the board, came forward to deliver a political address to the parents of the graduates. Unfortunately the bulk of her message dealt with how much the board of education has accomplished without asking the taxpayers for more money. Instead of directing specific remarks to the graduates themselves.

It was obvious by the noise level of the audience during the speech and the comments made afterward, that many people felt the remarks were not appropriate for the occasion. Perhaps the Dist. 62 board of education owes the parents and children of the Algonquin Class of 1974 an apology for their poor taste in using a graduation program as a springboard for their propaganda.

Rob Roy information urged

I am writing to suggest that Paddock Publications in its newspapers throughout the area offer detailed information about the negotiations now in progress over the Rob Roy Country Club land. What happens to this extensive piece of property should be of interest to readers in nearby towns, not in Mount Prospect alone. The final decision clearly will have an impact upon our entire area.

The League of Women Voters has been studying land use policies for several years, and we believe that input from an informed public can assist in bringing about orderly, equitable growth. Such input should be welcomed. We wish to know all sides to the discussion presently going on and will want to attend the public meetings to keep up with the propos-

Cigaret tax hit

I read with great interest the editorial, "Cigaret tax burns us." It was extremely well written and I hope "drove home the point."

I am the executive director of the Illinois Association of Tobacco and Candy Distributors, and represent the tobacco industry in Illinois. If there is anything I can do for your paper or anything I can do to help knock out the proposed five cents tax in Mount Prospect, please feel free to call on me. Again, it was a beautiful editorial.

She's pleased by Surgicare Center

Recently there was an article in The Herald about our new Surgicare Center here in Arlington Heights and I was so pleased to see it.

My six-year-old daughter recently underwent minor surgery over there and it was truly 100 per cent more personal than an operation could ever be in any hospital. The staff of people they have chosen, in my book are tops!! I'm not putting down hospitals, but they are so big, so busy, and so scary!! The individual time each and every person on that "aff" spent with my daughter, my husband and myself made her operation as pleasurable as any could be. When we left the Surgicare Center five hours later, every person on that staff (even Fred) meant something to me and my family. There was compassion, which there is so little of left in this world it seems.

Abortion: 'murder'

To get a license to practice medicine is a fantastic feat. Any human being so gifted should thank his lucky stars or God or whatever his beliefs are.

These people took vows to preserve life. I believe. Abortion destroys life.

I have known men in my time who were abortionists when in our country it was illegal. I'll grant you, they were not professional M.D.'s. I am not to judge their actions. I also cannot judge professional M.D. abortionists.

God will judge us all some day.

Dick Druding

P.S. My opinion — murder.

Village board lauded

The members of our association (South Scarsdale Homeowners Assn) were much impressed by the thoroughness and consideration shown to us during a recent proposed rezoning petition.

The petition called for rezoning of existing residential property (east of Arlington Heights Road on the south side of Central Road) to a commercial status.

The Arlington Heights village board under president John Walsh was extremely courteous and conscious of our opposition to the issue. The village zoning board of appeals and the plan commission were also most courteous.

Too often, the people who volunteer long hours of effort to community projects are not recognized for their contributions.

Our group, certainly, appreciates their labors.

Paramedics get praise

On two separate occasions this past month we have had the need to call for help.

In both instances we felt compelled to call the Elk Grove Village Fire Department because a broken bone was feared.

The response was positively excellent. Your staff of paramedics came to our help rapidly, prepared, and compassionate.

They were very careful with our injured children, and showed a great deal of training.

Out of the two incidents we did have one child with a broken arm. But thanks to their care she is healing well.

We are extremely grateful for this service and the competent staff you employ for our community.

Little League boosted

The heart of Little League Baseball is what happens between manager and boy. It is your manager more than any other single individual who makes your program a success or failure. He controls the situation in which the players may be benefitted or harmed. We have all seen managers who exerted a wonderful influence on their boys. Unfortunately, we have also observed a few managers who were a menace to their boys.

There is a vast amount to be learned before a man can become an excellent manager for the Little League. Your manager needs to know the purposes of the program and how to evaluate progress toward attaining them. He should be acquainted with the best ways of imparting to his players what he knows about baseball. Then, too, there is the critically important matter of understanding boys and how to relate to them and himself to them most effectively.

Better than any other sports activity, baseball expresses the heart and character of the nation to those who play it, watch it and take satisfaction in it. The Little League is a program of service to the youth. It is geared to provide an outlet of healthful activity and a training under good leadership in the atmosphere of wholesome community participation.

Little League has had many managers of the finest caliber. It is often surprising that we have had as many excellent managers and coaches as we have had. But despite our good managers and coaches, we are forced to admit that we have had too many poor ones. Many have done harm to their players and have given critics a chance to blast our fine program. The best we can do for these youngsters is to try to find them a good manager and once selected provide with some indoctrination and in-service training.

Comm Edison praised

My hat is off to Fence Post for being instrumental in having the Commonwealth Edison easement cleared of the mounds of dirt that have been eyesores since last winter.

Congratulations are also in order to the Commonwealth Edison Co. for the genuine interest in once again, restoring the property that was disrupted, to its original natural condition.

'Dad a wonderful man'

Dad was a wonderful man, to his children he was friend, teacher, mender of toys, but, above all, a father whom we respected and loved. He died when I was nine years old.

Being a fireman had its limitations both monetary and time off from duty to spend with his family. We would wait dad's homecoming with anticipation, standing at the window and or weather permitting would walk to the allotted blocks to meet him. He would give each of us a big hug and kiss, often swinging the youngest one to his shoulders, pretending to gallop like a horse. Sometimes we would meet him with our wagon, pile in and he would pull us home.

Dad had a way of making the simplest outings times to remember. He would plan and tell us a week or so in advance about a day to be spent in the forest preserves, games we would play and the plants we would study. He loved all wild flowers, ferns and trees. Our outings consisted of a study in botany and fun games.

Christmastime dad not only thought of his little family, but of the many poor children that would awake on Christmas morning without a toy to play with. Dad and the men at the fire station where he worked would beg broken toys from people, then would paint, mend, and fix them into good condition. Many a child awoke Christmas morning with a toy, not new, but one they could love and cherish.

Dad loved Christmas, and looked forward to it with great anticipation. The last Halloween dad was with us, he decorated the basement with cardboard witches, ghosts and pumpkins. He arranged games as bobbing for apples in mom's wash tub, pin the tail on the donkey, and lotto. We each received a little five cent prize which we treasured.

Dad was only 39 years old when he died. Had he lived our lives would have been made that much richer for having had him with us. His grave was born witness to many spring rains and winter's snows. Although his face has faded from our memory, but the man that was our dad for so short a time, will never be forgotten.

Hits job shifts

Wake up, Elk Grove! Something strange is going on in our park district. A few years back, Mr. Von Schaumburg resigned from the park board.

The park board started to move ahead, it got a fairly good president and parks are starting to become developed, almost too slowly though.

Now a member resigns, several very well qualified and very interested candidates apply for the position and here comes Von Schaumburg again.

It will be very interesting to see if the board will be impartial and choose for qualifications or personal past friendship.

Let's get some new, qualified people on the board and get moving.

Barton Stull Realty, Inc.

"We're Not #1 — You Are . . ." is the motto of Barton Stull Realty, Inc. To Barton N. Stull, president, and John B. Stull, vice-president, to sales managers and sales associates, it is more than a motto — it reflects their desire to provide professional assistance to both buyers and sellers in their relocation needs.

All managers and sales associates undergo an extensive training program in residential relocation, commercial and investment property with the Stulls and experts in the related fields of financing and appraisals. "It is through these efforts that this is a company of highly trained professionals working as a team to help in relocations," Stull said.

MAP, Multiple Listing Service, national referral services, extensive newspaper, radio and billboard advertising are all used to present the client's home to the public, in addition to several sources which are the company's alone.

Barton Stull Realty, Inc.'s brochure "It's your move — that's our business . . ." contains information on the northwest suburban area and tips for both buyers and sellers on what to look for when buying and how to prepare for a successful sale.

Along with the brochure, the firm also publishes its own monthly newspaper "The Suburban Relocator" which describes and pictures homes available. "The Suburban Relocator" is distributed through direct mail and is displayed in situations frequented by transferees into this area.

Barton Stull Realty, Inc., also works closely with personnel directors of national and local companies in assisting transferred employees with their relocation needs.

The success of the agency's determination to service its clients is reflected in the company's growth record. Starting in 1964 with a single office in Prospect Heights, Stull has added and expanded three additional offices in Arlington Heights, Hoffman Estates and Buffalo Grove. The Hoffman Estates new office opened recently.

The company's expansion plans include the 1974 opening of new offices in Schaumburg and Lake Zurich.

"Barton Stull Realty, Inc.'s success is based on a simple formula: well-trained professional sales associates and managers, dynamic, far-reaching advertising and, most important, dedication to making relocation a satisfactory achievement," Stull said.

THE ARCHITECT'S image of the new office building being partly financed by Massachusetts Mutual Life Insurance Co. has five stories and 151 thousand square

Massachusetts Mutual Life gives $6 million to building

Massachusetts Mutual Life Insurance Co. today announced it has issued a commitment in excess of $6 million to provide a major portion of the construction cost of a five-story, 151 thousand square-foot office building under construction in Des Plaines.

The commitment was issued to the LaSalle National Bank as trustee for the developer. The aluminum and solar bronze plate glass office building will be fully air conditioned, electrically heated and serviced by three elevators. Its contemporary exterior will be enhanced by architecturally planned landscaping, featuring a sculpture and fountain. On-site paved parking will be provided for 481 cars and all parking and sidewalk areas will be lighted.

The five-acre site fronts approximately 750 feet on Touhy Ave. at the intersection of Route 72, south of the Northwest Tollway. Its close proximity to O'Hare International Airport and the continuing development of a commercial environment of comparable high quality in the immediate neighborhood make prospects for continued success for the area excellent, according to the developers.

The new commitment brings mortgage loans and commitments and other investments in Illinois by the Springfield, Mass., Insurance company to more than $220 million, according to Glenn Smith, supervisor of the Company's Chicago mortgage loan office. Local cooperating correspondent for the loan is the Greenbaum Mortgage Co. of Chicago. The Henry C. Beck Co. is the general contractor.

Massachusetts Mutual, now in its 123rd year of operation, is the tenth largest life insurance company in the U.S. and Canada in terms of assets. It is licensed to do business in all 50 states, Puerto Rico and the District of Columbia.

The suburbanite: he likes the open space, friendliness

Once a suburbanite, always a suburbanite.

Suburban living is more than just a matter of physical location; it's an attitude.

So observes Marshall C. Dennison, president and chief executive officer of Associated Mortgage Companies, Inc., a Philadelphia-based national real estate financing and servicing organization.

"It is simply a case of being born with a love for the outer fringes of the city — and never losing it," Dennison observes.

Dennison's typical suburbanite profile is as follows:

- Born in the suburbs, he finishes school elsewhere and seeks his fortune in the city's canyons, but he secretly yearns to return. Return he does, after marriage.

- He is approximately 27 years old — his wife, 23, usually with a baby on the way.
- He believes he gets more for his money in the suburbs. Houses are generally less expensive, and sometimes utilities are, too.

- He and his family prefer shopping in convenient, easy-to-park-in malls and shopping centers. He finds more of a selection in merchandise and appreciates the "personal" touch of salespeople who know him.

- His yard and patio are big weekend pleasures. The open spaces give him that "man and his castle" feeling.

- Peace, quiet and privacy of suburban living rank high on his preference list.

- He approves of education in the suburbs where kids receive individual attention in newer, less crowded schools.

- He gets involved in community affairs. He is, in essence, a "big fish in a little pond."

- He loves his car and likes to know it will "weather the weather" in a warm garage — a prohibitive, cost-wise, luxury in the city.

A one sentence description of the typical suburbanite? "He wouldn't change places with anybody."

"If you don't think this is true of a suburbanite, ask one. Remember, it takes one to know one," Dennison concludes.

We gift wrap your home with lots of ribbon... and no red tape.

know-how... plus.

Get out the ribbon and forget the red tape. We can make selling a home easier than most people would believe, because we know how to show it... to buyers... not "lookers".

Our lookers are buyers because they've done their browsing with our Homes For Living magazine. They've already seen your home, pictured clearly on a page of our monthly magazine. They know what features it has to offer, and they know your price. It's all right there in print.

And we find our buyers in places you wouldn't think to look. Hundreds of our magazines are distributed locally. And copies are sent to our offices in all 50 states, so that out-of-town buyers, who are relocating here, can get a good look at your home before they arrive.

We show your home to interested "lookers" across the country. We bring you the "buyers" to wrap up the deal.

It's "ribbon" and not "red tape" when we sell a home... because we've got the Know-how... Plus!

Effective Communications' to be presented by NIREB safe place for investment funds and return on the dollar is not always the primary factor for a potential investor. More than likely, two out of three stars are looking for the satisfaction of a kind of emotional and social in addition to a sound return. A person who doesn't recognize these of life might find a great deal of ration in having any number of good certifies turned down because the buyer isn't satisfied.

Solving the problem of fitting the investor to the investment property is the primary purpose of "Effective Communications for Commercial-Investment Real Estate Brokerage," the newest educational offering from the National Institute of Real Estate Brokers (NIREB), the largest professional affiliate of the National Association of Realtors. Known as Course E, "Effective Communications" will be presented at the Continental Plaza Hotel in Chicago, July 29-August 3 and will be co-sponsored by the Chicago Real Estate Board. In Course E, the salesman's creative skills of observation are improved so that he may more fully evaluate the human motivation of the investor, as well as his own motivation as a seller. In realistically presented material, he is taught to recognize the social and emotional needs of the investor and how they play an important role in determining what will be accepted as a suitable vehicle for investment funds — it isn't always money that counts. The course is open to those who hold the C.C.I.M. designation or who have successfully completed NIREB's Course A — "Fundamentals of Real Estate Investment and Taxation." "Effective Communications" is one of many educational opportunities offered by the National Institute of Real Estate Brokers. Registration for Course E may be made through the NIREB Registration Coordinator, 155 E. Superior St., Chicago, Illinois 60611 or further information may be obtained from Rodger Wunderlich, Chicago Real Estate Board, 18 S. Michigan Ave., Chicago, Illinois 60603.

Construction to begin soon on Westlake's shopping plaza

Ground will be broken shortly by Naredel of Illinois, Inc. for the first shopping center in Westlake, the rapidly growing planned unit development being constructed in Bloomingdale and Glendale Heights by Hoffman Rosner Corp., development and construction company.

Eagle Supermarket and DeKoven Drugs are leasing from Naredel 26,500 and 20,134 square feet, respectively, as the major tenants of the convenience center on the eight-acre site at the southwest corner of Bloomingdale and Army Trail Roads. A free-standing restaurant may be built on another part of the site.

The land was acquired by Naredel from HR Properties, the real estate division of Hoffman Rosner Corp. It is one of several sites which have been set aside for commercial development as part of the over-all plan for Westlake, one of three planned communities concurrently being developed by Hoffman Rosner in the Chicagoland area.

WOOD CASEMENT windows open the living room to the outdoors. The center sash is fixed while the flanking windows open to provide ventilation. This ponderosa pine unit has removable grilles which snap out for easy cleaning.

Insulation, durability, looks—key factors in windows

Insulation, durability and appearance are the three most important qualities consumers look for in windows, according to a survey conducted for the Ponderosa Pine Woodwork Association by an independent research firm.

These three factors take on added importance when they involve such consistently favored styles as bow and angle bay windows — traditional with Early American and Colonial architecture and increasingly popular with contemporary homes.

Today's quality bow and angle bay windows of ponderosa pine fitted with insulating glass — two panes of glass with an insulating air space between — combine graceful design with modern convenience and low-maintenance.

A handsome bow window, for example, can be fashioned from operating casements that offer excellent ventilation in addition to wide views. Dramatic angle bays can be created by flanking fixed sash with casements or double-hung units.

Removable grilles, available as an option, create an authentic small pane appearance and snap out for easy window washing. All elements of wood window units are preservative treated to guard against weather abuse.

In addition to dramatically reducing heating costs, the combination of wood sash and frame and insulating glass substantially reduces summer heat gain through the window areas. The result is lower air conditioning costs.

Available in stock sizes at local building supply dealers, ponderosa pine angle bay and bow windows are preassembled and ready to install.

GUARANTEED HOME PROTECTION

How the NHIS Guaranteed Home Protects You!

An NHIS Guaranteed Home is a resale home which has been inspected and warranted by National Home Inspection Service, Inc. Since its founding in 1968 NHIS has inspected over 10,000 homes and is acknowledged to be the country's foremost independent home inspection service.

The NHIS Inspection Warranty includes: 1. The CENTRAL HEATING SYSTEM and its components. 2. The CENTRAL COOLING SYSTEM and its components. 3. The PLUMBING SYSTEM and its components. 4. The ELECTRICAL SYSTEM and its components. 5. The structural soundness and absence of water penetration of the ROOF. 6. The structural soundness of the EXTERIOR AND INTERIOR WALLS, CEILING AND FLOORS. 7. The structural soundness of the FOUNDATION. 8. The structural soundness and the absence of chronic water penetration of the BASEMENT.

Should NHIS fail to detect any defect in these major structural mechanical and electrical elements of the house, NHIS will be liable to the home owner for payments up to $25,000.00. Undetected defects, which cost in excess of $100.00 to repair or replace, discovered within either eighteen months of the inspection date or twelve months of the closing of the sale of the home will be covered by the NHIS Inspection Warranty.

Who Makes NHIS Inspections?

Extreme care is exercised by NHIS to secure highly qualified professional inspectors. All NHIS inspectors are carefully screened and selected on the basis of their educational and professional experience. Each inspector is fully trained by NHIS to perform inspections employing proven detection and evaluation techniques pioneered and perfected by NHIS. Inspectors are continually updated on the latest developments in the home construction maintenance field by the NHIS technical training staff.

What is included in the NHIS Report?

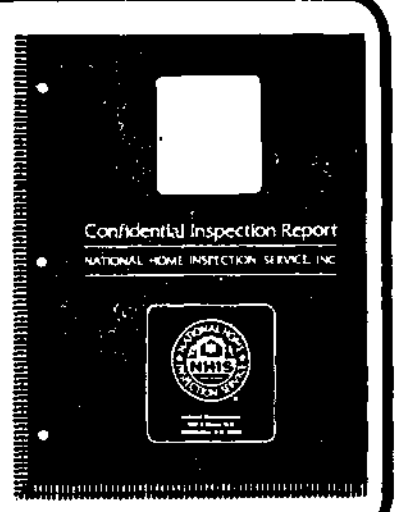

Each customer is presented with the copyrighted NHIS CONFIDENTIAL INSPECTION REPORT which includes: • The NHIS Inspection Warranty. • A Thorough Evaluation of the major elements of the home. • A Certificate of Termite Inspection. • Exclusive NHIS Homeowner's Information Guide which contains invaluable information on preventive maintenance, cutting heating and cooling costs, fire prevention, home security and other related items.

Benefits to the Home Seller

The NHIS inspected and warranted home is more attractive to the prospective buyer. In addition, the NHIS Guaranteed Home Protection Plan provides important protection for the seller against any low bid bought by a disgruntled buyer since the prospective buyer is apprised of the true condition of the property before the sale. Since the Warranty is effective as of the inspection date, it also protects the home seller against major repair expenses during the interim between the inspection date and the actual date of closing.

Benefits to the Home Buyer

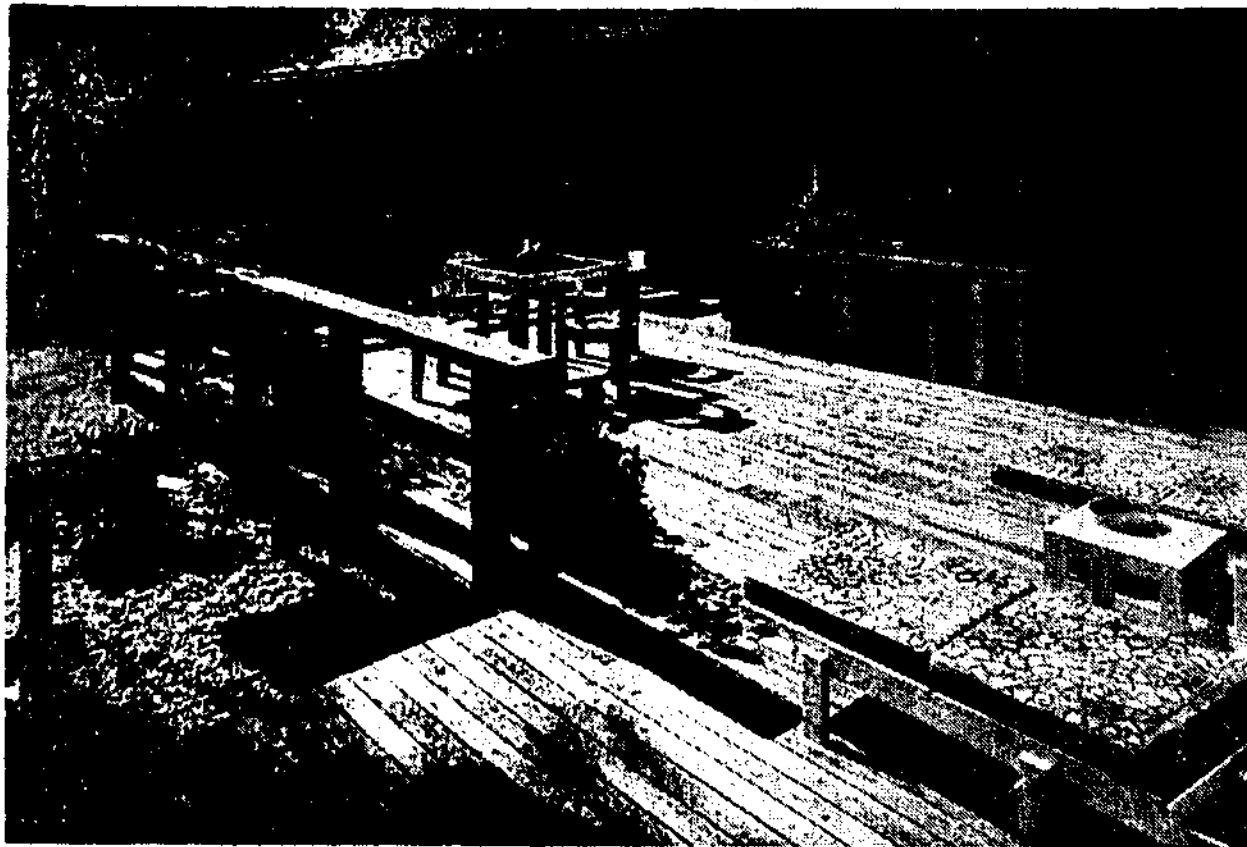

The NHIS Guaranteed Home Protection Plan provides peace of mind for the home buyer by revealing the exact condition of the home to be purchased and by assuring that the home buyer will not incur any major unforeseen expenses for repairs for a period of one year after title is assumed from the previous owners.

THE RUSTIC, KNOTTY APPEARANCE of garden grade redwood lends a "country" feeling to the deck of this comfortable suburban home. Garden redwood — also known as redwood "commons" — is the name for the lower priced grades of California's luxury lumber.

Outdoor redwood deck adds living space at little expense

If you've thought long and hard about adding living space to your home, but have been put off by the difficulty and expense of building an extra room, you may have overlooked a very attractive alternative.

A redwood deck can add lots of living area at a fraction of the cost of a four-walled, ceilinged room and will probably prove to be a more versatile tool. It can serve as a play area for the kids, an ideal setting for warm weather entertaining, a comfortable place to read or relax, even a sleeping area for your "back to nature" crew on those sultry summer evenings.

Happily, the least expensive grades of California redwood, the garden grades (commons), are suited perfectly to deck construction. The garden grades are priced lower because they contain knots, but knots actually enhance the appearance of a deck by lending an "outdoorsy" rustic feeling to the structure. These economical grades couple the traditional beauty of redwood with its unsurpassed weatherability at a budget-wise price.

Planning your deck can be almost as exciting as using it. Whether you intend to design the deck yourself, use or modify an existing plan or hire an architect or contractor to custom design one for you, the basic steps — such as deciding where the deck will go — are best performed by you and your family.

Although free-standing decks work very well in special situations, most decks are designed to be natural extensions of the home. An ideal location often is adjacent to a door to the kitchen or family room.

The exposure of the deck plays a big part of the way you will use it. Do you want to capture as much sun as possible? Is comfortable shade more important to you? Or would you prefer something in between? Whichever exposure you choose, take care not to site the deck so that the natural seating arrangement has you squinting into the sunset.

Wind is another factor that should be considered as you plan your deck location. If your home is in the path of a prevailing wind, decide early in the game how placement of the deck or allowance for a screen or planting can help shield you from the wind's full impact.

You'll find that economical garden grade redwood is adaptable to nearly any deck design you choose. It's easy to install and requires little, if any, maintenance. Redwood decking is most often left in its natural state, although water repellents, bleaches, stains and other finishes can be used to produce a desired color effect without hiding the natural grain of the wood.

Lesson one in the basic redwood course is that the all-red heartwood should be used for portions of the deck that come in contact with the ground, while grades containing sapwood can be used anywhere else. While redwood sapwood's durability is on a par with other white woods, the heartwood contains a superb natural resistance to insects and the decay which contact with the ground ordinarily hastens.

Lesson two, these days, is that it's important to plan ahead with your lumber dealer to be sure that the redwood you need will be available when you're ready to begin your project. If there's more than one dealer in your area it often pays to shop around for the best choice of materials.

Heat evenly from floor to ceiling

Is your house wrapped in heating comfort? Or are you and your family bothered by a torrid head-chilly ankle type of heating?

A minimum difference in temperature between floors and ceiling is vital to home comfort, and to attain it, heating outlets should be located on outside walls, especially under windows. This is based on the perimeter heating principle developed by heating experts.

Perimeter heating actually provides a protective curtain of warmth against the cold outside walls of the home, and, is generally associated with hydronic baseboard heating. Installed at ankle height along the outside walls, hydronic baseboard panels will provide uniform heat distribution.

From research at the University of Illinois it has been demonstrated that there is only a minimum difference in temperature (two or three degrees) between floors and ceilings in hydronically heated homes. With other heating systems, variations in floor-to-ceiling temperatures ranged as high as ten degrees.

HOW COULD I MISS? Easily. Kickball never has been my forte and after an 18-year lag in practice my fielding ability had grown worse — slower and less accurate. The game came to a quick halt as Renee slid into home plate and skinned her elbow. Our team lost, even though I made only one out.

Day camp revisited

by KAREN THOMPSON

Who would have guessed that after an 18-year lapse I would be, once again, at day camp roasting marshmallows for S'mores, playing SPUD and wading in the creek?

Day camp is crawladdies, skinned elbows, arguments, Elmer's glue, T-shirts and dirt — dirt under the fingernails, between the toes and just about everywhere. As I reminisced, this is what I remembered and nothing has changed.

I joined seven fifth grade girls from the Northwest Suburban YMCA program and their counselor, Diane Teters, for my day at camp. We boarded buses, hot dogs in hand, and were on our way to Deer Grove Forest Preserve in Palatine, a ride of about a half hour.

Everybody wanted to sit next to their counselor. The scramble for the honored seats made it quite evident that hero worship is not a thing of the past.

UPON ARRIVAL, we filed off the buses and set about our first and only task of the day — collecting wood to fire our lunches. The gathering gave us no trouble at all, but getting a fire going was nearly impossible.

Our counselor tried her darnedest, but every time flames appeared the seven girls were on all sides snuffing out the barely lit fire with their raw hot dogs. I guess they were as hungry as I. We asked one of our fellow campers if we could use her lunch bag for the fire, but she replied matter-of-factly, "No, I have to save it; there's a paper shortage."

Being the retired Girl Scout that I am, I tried my hand at the pile of crisp kindling. After I almost set my pants cuff on fire, we decided to call one of the male counselors. Much to the disgust of our female pride, he had flames shooting skyward in no time. We were ravenous by this time anyway.

LUNCH CONVERSATION ranged from diaries to "I wish my mom would give me more to eat."

For dessert, we had my all-time favorite — S'mores. Anyone who's been to day camp recalls these gooey, chocolate treats. Burned marshmallows, Hershey bars and graham crackers meld to become a most delectable campfire fare.

After lunch, although I could have used a nap already, we chose up sides for a game of kickball. "Are you a good kicker?" the girls asked me. I didn't know what to tell them. The last time I played the silly game was in junior high school and I was always last to be chosen.

My ability had improved with age, however, and I made only one out. Our game came to a crashing halt when Renee slid in to home plate and skinned her elbow. Day campers take their games seriously and so do the counselors. News traveled through camp that one of the male football fanatics threw his shoulder out of joint.

After a few games of SPUD — it took me a while to catch on — with the "spanking machine" the reward for the losers, we hit the winding paths of the preserve for a hike. I lost my pen somewhere in the tangled maze, but I think I can remember, vividly, the rest of the day.

The girls were enchanted by the grimy, polluted stream that runs along the wooded paths. Soon, all seven of them were wading knee deep in the murky mess, talking about what mom, dad or grandma would say when they got home.

Diane told me that during morning swimming lessons at the Y, the girls find every excuse in the book to avoid the lessons and the water. But, there's a big difference between a cement swimming pool and a filthy creek. The girls were in their glory and this is where my complete participation halted.

We met some male troops along the way. It looks as if there will always be rivalry between the sexes. A group of boys dared one of our fifth graders to sit in a pile of muck. She did it, singing, "I can do anything you can do better." The cries of "You male chauvinist pigs" were met by retorts of, "Shut up, you libbers." I guess it's a sign of the times.

The whole camp, about 200 strong, congregated at the picnic shelter late in the afternoon for a boat judging. There were fat kids, skinny kids, blondes, brunettes, loud mouths and quiet kids. Our boat lost. We didn't spend much time on it anyway and as one of the girls said, "Big deal, all they get is a blue ribbon."

That about ended the day camp fun. We picked up leftover hot dogs and chocolate bar wrappers from our site and returning to the real world, bought ice cream bars from a Good Humor Man parked right next to the buses.

I went home, showered and took a nap.

THE GREAT boat-building contest drew most of its support from male day campers, who, by the way, were much quieter than the girls. Here, a staff member gives a helping hand on one of the real winners.

Court split on sex discrimination

by CHARLOTTE MOULTON

Sex discrimination cases continue to plague the Supreme Court, which is in disagreement over how to rule on them.

The latest problem concerns Social Security benefits for men and women with minor children whose spouses have died. The law provides benefits for widows but not widowers.

A special three-judge federal court in New Jersey found the statute unconstitutional on Jan. 28. The court barred Caspar W. Weinberger, Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare, from denying benefits to widowers "solely on the basis of sex."

The panel stayed its own order to allow an appeal to the Supreme Court. The appeal has been filed by the Justice Department, but the court is unlikely to act on it until fall.

The successful challenge to the law was made by Stephen C. Wisenfeld, whose wife had been a teacher in Edison, N. J. She died during childbirth on June 5, 1972, leaving her husband with the care of an infant son.

Wisenfeld worked for a Springfield, N.J., firm for part of 1973 but at the time his case was heard was unemployed. He has master's degrees both in mathematics and business administration.

THE SOCIAL Security Office in New Brunswick, N. J., allowed him insurance benefits for the child but none for himself, although maximum contributions had been deducted from his wife's salary during her years as a teacher.

The government argued in the lower court there is no constitutional defect in the federal program because it is harder for the survivors to replace income when a husband dies than when a wife dies.

This reasoning governed the Supreme Court's decision in April upholding a Florida tax law granting an annual $500 exemption to widows — but not widowers. The ruling came after the New Jersey court's action in the Wisenfeld case.

The panel found that, while Congress might have intended to rectify past and present discrimination against women, the effect is just the opposite because Paula Wisenfeld's surviving spouse and child receive smaller Social Security benefits than would the family of a deceased male teacher who earned the same salary and made the same payments.

IN SO RULING, the panel said classifications based on sex are "inherently suspect" — as are those based on race — and must pass a test of "close judicial scrutiny" to gain approval.

Women's rights advocates have been urging the Supreme Court for several years to take this approach, but until now it has declined to do so.

The Social Security Administration has estimated that the cost of father's benefits under the lower court's decision would be $20 million for fiscal 1974.

In another recent sex discrimination case the court ruled 6 to 3 on June 17 that states can deny disability insurance payments for normal pregnancies while granting it for males incapacitated by prostate trouble or circumcision, which affect only members of their sex.

Justices William J. Brennan Jr., William O. Douglas and Thurgood Marshall viewed the decision as a "retreat" from recent decisions in this area, which tended to give women a somewhat better break without actually finding sex a "suspect classification."

FOR INSTANCE, in 1971 in an Idaho case the court ruled that states may not give preference to males in providing for appointment of estate administrators. And last year it required the military to accord women in the armed forces the same dependency benefits as male members.

Brennan, Douglas, Marshall and Justice Byron R. White have urged the court to place gender-based laws in a "suspect classification," but have been unable to win the one more vote to gain a court majority for this viewpoint.

The argument rests on the Constitution's guarantee of "equal protection of the laws" — the provision on which have rested so many decisions in favor of blacks.

Meantime the Equal Rights Amendment, which bars governmental discrimination based on sex, is making the rounds of state legislatures and could settle all the disputes eventually. Thirty-three of the necessary 38 states now have ratified the amendment, but Nebraska and Tennessee later rescinded their action. Legal opinions differ as to whether rescinding is permissible.

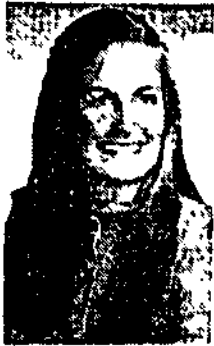

The court has accepted two women's rights cases for consideration next fall. One attacks Louisiana's scheme of keeping women off juries unless they ask in writing to serve. The other questions whether the Navy is unconstitutionally favoring women officers in connection with promotions and dismissals.

Coughlin-Harnesk rites in Mt. Prospect

Mr. and Mrs. Guy Harnesk

Roxanne A. Coughlin of Long Grove returned to her home town of Mount Prospect for her June 15 marriage to Guy E. Harnesk.

Roxanne and her family, the Lawrence J. Coughlins, had lived in Mount Prospect until she graduated from Forest View High School and just last year moved to Long Grove. Guy is the son of Barrington residents, Mr. and Mrs. Emory Harnesk, and attended Barrington High.

The couple exchanged vows in a mid-afternoon ceremony in St. Mark Lutheran Church, Mount Prospect. Later there was a dinner at Arlington Park Towers for 175 guests.

Roxanne chose a white English net over peau de sole gown lavishly embroidered with an Alencon lace motif. Her cathedral-length veil, also edged in lace, was caught by an open Camelot crown trimmed in pearls. The bridal bouquet was composed of white orchids, stephanotis and lavender baby's breath.

THE LAVENDER appeared again in the dresses worn by the bride's attendants and in their bouquets. The girls wore lavender voile halter gowns with matching bolero jackets trimmed with white lace. All six were made by a friend of the bride's mother.

The attendants carried crescent arrangements of white carnations with lavender daisies and baby's breath, all tied with lavender streamers.

Sue Janis of Mount Prospect was Roxanne's maid of honor. Bridesmaids were the bride's cousin, Debbie Logsdon, Chicago, and Diane Bryan, Arlington Heights. There were also two junior bridesmaids, Regina Coughlin, sister of the bride, and Kerrie Harnesk, Winfield, Ill., niece of the groom.

THE 4-YEAR-OLD flower girl, Laurie LaNasa of Mount Prospect, was attired exactly as the bridesmaids but carried a white basket of the lavender and white flowers. Laurie is a cousin of the bride.

Her brother, 6-year-old Ricky LaNasa, was ring bearer.

Attendants of the groom included Marcus Wicks, Barrington, as best man and four groomsmen: Dan Coughlin, the bride's brother; Randy and Rodney Seligmann, former Mount Prospect residents now living in New Jersey; and Brad Harnesk, Winfield, a nephew of the groom.

After the reception the newlyweds left for a week's honeymoon in Hawaii. Now back, they are living in Palatine while working in the local area. Roxanne is with Kemper Insurance Co., Long Grove, and Guy with Standard Oil Co., Arlington Heights.

Pre-marital testing a must

President, American Academy of Family Physicians

Up until just years ago, a couple preparing to get married would contact their family physician just long enough to have the necessary blood test for syphilis drawn. Other than this, medicine was asked to add almost nothing to the preparations for marriage.

The increased sophistication of the public and the general availability of medical advice concerning contraception today has created an important role for the physician in helping a couple prepare for a life together.

Most states still require a blood test for syphilis prior to applying for the marriage license. This necessitates the drawing of a small quantity of blood. It is done because undiagnosed and untreated syphilis can have a crippling effect upon a baby. With V.D. at an all time high in this country, this test is becoming increasingly more important.

SINCE THE three-day measles (rubella), if contracted during the first three months of a woman's pregnancy, can cause defects in the baby such as blindness and heart malformations, many states couple the test for syphilis with a test that indicates whether the woman has ever had three-day measles. Should a bride have escaped this as a child, she may be immunized against it before she gets pregnant, but in no case should this immunization be done while a person is pregnant since fatal abnormalities may result. It takes only a little more blood for the blood type of a couple to be determined in order to anticipate possible rh problems in babies as they come along. Inciently, most cases of rh difficulties in babies now are avoidable through the use of a new desensitizing shot which is given to the mother shortly after birth.

A thorough physical examination should be part of the premarital preparation of both partners, since some treatable defects may interfere with a normal happy life. This is particularly true of the pelvic examination where abnormalities of the reproductive system can be detected as can any condition likely to result in painful intercourse.

FAMILY PLANNING is an important part of every premarital examination. Appropriate means of contraception should be discussed and in some instances (such as the "pill") be begun a month or so before marriage. This is important if the bride expects to be protected against pregnancy during her honeymoon.

Counseling concerning attitudes about sex is quite important and can help prevent miserable honeymoons. Both bride and groom should be present during this counseling which is aimed at helping them understand the anatomy, physiology, feelings and expectations about sex of themselves and their partners. It's important for an inexperienced couple to recognize that normal males and females differ somewhat in their feelings about sex, and appreciation of these differences adds much to a solid basis on which to begin married life.

Genetic counseling may be indicated whenever either partner has some knowledge of a potential hereditary problem such as mongolism or other specific birth defects. In the absence of any recognized familial disease, genetic counseling, other than that normally done by the family physician, is probably an unnecessary expense.

Kid-proof bottles evoke complaints

Frustrated adults who find child-resistant bottle caps impossible to open may be interested to know that they can request their medicine in regular bottles.

The new law requiring medicines to be in child-proof containers mercifully leaves a loophole for those of us too uncoordinated to open these monstrosities. Either the patient or his doctor may request a "non-complying" (non-child-proof) container. Most pharmacies will require you to sign a statement releasing them from responsibility if a child were to be harmed by your non-complying medicine bottle.

Manufacturers of over-the-counter drugs, such as aspirin, are permitted by the law to produce one size of their product in a non-complying container, according to Judith Stone of the Consumer Product Safety Commission.

ASKED IF THE CPSC has received many complaints about the difficulty of opening the containers, Mrs. Stone conceded that she "has heard people say this," but added that it's mostly "a quality control problem — it happens with certain lots of bottles after they have been opened many times — the catches jam."

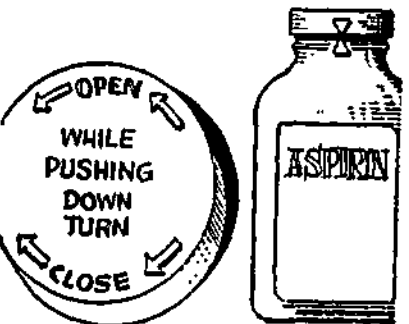

But several pharmacists in the area told this writer that a lot of people complain to them about the containers and request the non-complying ones.

"Especially older people," noted an Osco pharmacist in Arlington Heights, who added that he frequently asks elderly customers if they would prefer the non-child-proof containers, because "they get upset if you give them the other kind."

A Walgreen's pharmacist, said "more and more people are requesting" the non-child proof containers, "especially people with arthritis."

"THEY (THE child-proof containers) are not easy to open," he commented. "We had some liquid bottles, in fact, that were nearly impossible to open. We don't carry those anymore."

There are two basic designs of bottle caps which passed the child-proofing test — which means that they could NOT be opened by 85 per cent of the children tested, and COULD be opened by 80 per cent of the adults. (As Mrs. Stone so aptly observed, "Obviously, some adults can't open them!")

One kind requires matching an arrow on the cap to an arrow on the bottle rim (a feat that might prove troublesome to anyone with poor eyesight or bifocals); the other method requires pressing down on the lid while twisting it. Both kinds tend to vary in difficulty of operation.

The consumer

by Monica Wilch Perin

An informal test in the Herald newsroom indicated that either reporters tend to be in the 10 per cent group of adults referred to above or there are more than 10 per cent who are stymied by these lids. Amid all the struggling were comments like, "Oh yeah, those things! I hate them!" and "There's a trick to this, if I can just remember it."

ONE REPORTER recalled a not-so-humorous experience of being miserably ill and unable to open her child-proof medicine bottle, even after resorting to a can opener and kitchen knife. A neighbor finally had to be enlisted.

The child-proof medicine bottles may save the lives of some children, but they could very possibly cause serious problems for elderly or handicapped persons further weakened by illness, or persons susceptible to heart seizures or other medical emergencies, who need to get at their medication fast.

Such people should probably make a point of always requesting non-child-proof medicine containers.

Swift action vital to combat weevils

Weevil control has been the subject of a surprising number of letters these past few months. It may be that something has changed in packaging (which I doubt); it may be careless handling in the stores (which is entirely possible), or it may be simple unawareness on the part of new homemakers (which seems to be the most probable). It is not to be taken lightly because once there is an infestation everything in the cereal line often has to be thrown out of the home.

What every homemaker has to learn early is that where weevils are concerned swift action is vital. If a weevil is detected in a new package of cereal, take it back to the store immediately. If you spot any crawling on shelves, get going right then. Years ago I learned that the one best protection is to store everything in the cereal line in glass or metal containers with tight-fitting lids, and I've preached it ever since. Eternal vigilance is the price of a clean kitchen.

Dear Dorothy: Forgot I had apples cooking in an aluminum Dutch oven and the pan really got burned. No amount of scrubbing has helped. Is there any way to make it reusable?

—Marilyn Gerber

When this has happened here I put the pan outside in the direct sun, turning it occasionally so it gets the direct rays. It takes a while but finally the char can be wiped out with a damp cloth. While I haven't tried it yet, I'm told that soaking such a pan with an enzyme-active laundry product will do the job, too.

Dear Dorothy: I've been told to wipe off the large leaves of my rubber plant and philodendron with mineral oil, but I'm still a wee bit leery of the suggestion. What do you think?

—Mrs. Tim Moyes

by Dorothy Ritz

Don't do it. Never wipe leaves with any kind of oil. Only thing you should ever do is wipe them with a sudsy sponge — if they're dirty.

Lutheran General to present play treating alcoholism

"Lady on the Rocks," a play designed to increase understanding of alcoholism, will be presented next Tuesday at 8:30 p.m. in the chapel-auditorium of Lutheran General Hospital, 1775 Dempster, Park Ridge.

and has been presented throughout the country.

ALCOHOLISM IS ONE of the country's greatest health problems. It is estimated that there are between 9 and 12 million alcoholics in the U.S. today. "Lady on the Rocks" is designed to increase public awareness that alcoholism is a treatable illness and helps Lutheran General communicate information about the disease.

Tickets for Tuesday's program are free and may be obtained through Lutheran General Rehabilitation Center for Alcoholism.

Jaycee Wives give money, manpower

Several organizations in the community benefited this year as the Palatine Jaycee Wives depleted their treasury.
 The Wives spent $158, with manpower provided by the Jaycees to build sandboxes for Santa Teresita Day Care Center and Community Child Care Center of Palatine Township.
 The Jaycee Wives also donated $125 to Buchler YMCA, $50 to The Bridge and $100 to the Illinois Jaycee Camp for handicapped children.
 The Wives earned the money throughout the year by conducting a Halloween pumpkin sale, a fall auction and a spring Easter bunny luncheon. During the year the Jaycee Wives also donated their time and treasury to such projects as the Santa Teresita Day Care Center summer migrant children's program and parties for Maple Hill Nursing Home residents.

The preferred colors for sunglass lens are neutral gray and sage green.
 So say sunglass makers Ray-Ban, explaining these two colors are recommended for best acuity and color perception. Your eyes do not respond equally to all colors, and in fact they are quite a bit more sensitive to the green wave lengths than to those of other colors. A sensitivity curve of the eye rises from the blue, peaks in the green, and drops in the red.

Ways to make flowers last

As the lovely garden flowers come into bloom, you may want to know how to get them ready for a big flower show, or just simply keep them gracing your home longer.

If flowers start blooming a week or two early, you can try "pickling" them. Pick them in tight bud stage, and do not put them in water right away. First store them dry in a humid, cold (35 degrees) refrigerator, where it stays dark. Then pull them out prior to the show and put them in water. If you don't have a refrigerator tall enough to set flowers in, impose on a friend florist to keep them for you, as I have in the past. If he is not too loaded, the florist may oblige.

YOU CAN FORCE gladioli into opening their buds by "tipping" or breaking the top uncolored bits of spike of the stem, put the stem in warm water, give it light and spray lightly with a mist of water (an old Windex bottle will suffice). This suggestion is good for gracing your dining room table but not for competition, where an exhibitor could lose points by having missing tips. Gladioli are heavy drinkers, so fill the containers with medium to shallow water only. Roses on the other hand should be in deep water.

Cut rose stems on an angle; do not crush the stems. But to make stocks, lilies, and flowering branches last longer, cut, hammer and slightly crush the stems to allow them to absorb more water. Remove all foliage. For mums, break stems instead of cutting, then crush slightly.

by Mary B. Good

WITH THE EXCEPTION of spring flowers and roses, most garden flowers like to be in warm water (tepid, not hot). Fill a clean vase and put in florist preservative, set the flowers in water on the floor or table for two to four hours. Then put the container in the refrigerator for six to 12 hours or overnight. (I use a cool garage.) This setting out and cooling process is called hardening, and it is especially important to flower show exhibitors, where a droopy posy can mean getting scratched from competition. (Many perennial flower shows invest $25 in an old refrigerator just for this purpose.)

If showmen want to open roses that are tightly closed, they put the flowers in warm water instead of their usual cold water, and set them under a fluorescent light.

If you want to dye flowers for a special show schedule requirement, be sure flowers are dry or the floral spray paint you use may blotch the flowers. Allow paint on flowers to dry before setting flowers back in the refrigerator or the flowers may turn milky white. Flora Set is a preservative as well as a paint.

FLORIST TRICK: The professionals refer to an old carnation that has turned in its petals as "going to sleep." They repair the old age by trimming the edge of the carnation ever so slightly with a pinking shear, so it isn't noticeable.

Once mums start to lose petals, they cannot stop, so showmen would be wise to spray mums for competition with mum wax.

The difference between an amateur and a professional flower arranger is attention to mechanics — or the various devices used to keep flowers in place. A casual bunch of flowers picked from the garden or the roadside and placed in a container without wires, Oasis, etc. is called a "plunk-it" arrangement in the trade.

To make formal arrangements when you don't have any "mechanics" handy, make do with wet sand and gravel, brickbats or wads of wet newspaper to hold flowers in place.

For daisies and baby's breath, strip foliage before submerging in water and add a drop of oil of peppermint to the bucket of water. A copper penny does help tulips, but forget what people say about aspirins in flower water. Flowers do not get Excedrin headaches.

Mr. and Mrs. Gary Kohnke

Newlyweds begin careers, marriage at same time

Embarking on marriage and two new careers is a major transition this summer for Mr. and Mrs. Gary Alan Kohnke.

Gary and his bride of June 15, the former Mary Karen O'Leary, have both earned degrees in their field this year and are starting new jobs as well as a new life together.

Mary is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard E. O'Leary, 730 Kathleen Dr., Des Plaines. She graduated from Lutheran General Hospital School of Nursing in June and has just begun working at the hospital.

Gary, son of the Rudi R. Kohnkes, 528 Willow Lane, Elk Grove Village, is with Transamerica Insurance Group, Arlington Heights, since recently graduating from Northwestern Illinois University, Chicago.

MARY AND GARY attended Elk Grove High School, she in the class of 1971 and he in the class of '70.

They exchanged vows and rings in a three o'clock ceremony in St. Zachary Catholic Church, Des Plaines, and then greeted 180 guests at a dinner reception at Navarone Steak House, Elk Grove.

Six attendants preceded Mary down the church aisle. Her sister Kathleen served as maid of honor. Bridesmaids were another sister, Deborah; Maureen Kohnke, the bride's sister-in-law; Margaret Lamberg, Des Plaines; Sue Herbert, Arlington Heights; and Bernadine Radon, Park Ridge.

All the girls were gownned alike in powder blue voile and carried white wicker baskets filled with pink Garnet roses, white and blue French carnations and blue baby's breath.

THE BRIDE ENTERED the sanctuary in a white organza gown trimmed with Venetian lace. Her cathedral-length veil was edged in the lace and was attached to a lace cap. Her bouquet was of pink Garnet roses, white French carnations, stephanotis and baby's breath.

Brothers of the couple were in the wedding party, Rudi Kohnke as best man and Rick Kohnke and Richard O'Leary among the groomsmen. Three friends of the groom, Don Firnbach and John Ernst of Arlington Heights and John Olson, Barrington, were also groomsmen.

After a week's honeymoon in Jamaica and the West Indies, the bridal pair are at home in Des Plaines.

Brian Parker Westmoreland is the newcomer at 112 Bedford Ct., Hoffman Estates. He arrived June 19 at 6 pounds 10 ounces, the son of the Larry E. Westmorelands of that address. Jennifer, 4, is his sister. Grandparents include the Grover S. Westmorelands, Woodland Hills, Calif., and Mr. and Mrs. Ransom Birkins, Wilton, Conn.

Brent Douglas Porter's birth was recorded July 4 for Mr. and Mrs. Roger Porter, 1463 Winslow Dr., Palatine. Their first-born, he weighed 7 pounds 9 1/2 ounces. The Winfield Littfins, Lake Zurich, and Mrs. Ruth Porter, Safety Harbor, Fla., are Brent's grandparents.

ALEXIAN BROTHERS

Kristin Joy Brummer is the new resident at 1160 Berkenshire Ln., Elk Grove Village. The 6 pound 10 ounce baby girl was born June 29 to the Rev. and Mrs. H. David Brummer. Kristin was welcomed home by Mark, 8, and Erica, 6. Her grandparents are the Spencer Carl-sons, Sheboygan, Wis., and the O. M. Lundmans, Chicago.

Brian Michael Borgersen is the newest addition to the Lee Borgersen family, 943 Elmwood Ln., Elk Grove Village. Born June 27 weighing 10 pounds 14 ounces, Brian joins a brother Alan, 5. Grandparents are the Roy Coles of Arkansas and the Harry Borgersens, Chicago.

Cory Adam Hadaway was born July 4 to Mr. and Mrs. Dale Hadaway, 233 S. Arlington Heights Rd., Elk Grove Village. The 7 pound 8 ounce baby is a brother for Scott, 2. Grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Adam Mallak, Bradenton, Fla.

OTHER HOSPITALS

Bethany Diane Potter makes a girl and a boy for Mr. and Mrs. David Andrew Potter, 319 Cherrywood, Buffalo Grove. The baby was born June 30 at Lake Forest Hospital and she was welcomed home by Tommy, 3. Her grandparents are the Arne K. Makis and the Frank C. Potters, all of Gurnee, Ill.

Prospect grads wed June 7

Mr. and Mrs. John Lewis

Prospect High School graduates Dana E. Leo and John T. Lewis were married June 7 at the bride's home, 613 George St., Mount Prospect.

Dana, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Leo, chose Janet M. Quick of Lawrence, Kan., as her matron of honor. Rod Walker, Lafayette, Ind., served as best man.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl W. Lewis, also of Mount Prospect.

Following the ceremony, the couple greeted 60 guests at a lawn reception at the Leo home.

The bride is a psychology graduate of Illinois State University, Jack, a Vietnam veteran, has a degree in agricultural engineering from Oklahoma State University.

The couple will make their home in the vicinity of Hinsdale, where Jack is employed by International Harvester Farm Equipment and Engineering Research Center.

International Appetizers

HAWAIIAN PINEAPPLE BITES

Any man who delights in the unusual will want to try these international appetizers at his next cocktail party. Be adventurous — the days of chips and dips are over. Today's accompaniments to cocktails give testimony to the unity of the global village we live in. Favorite foods and flavors of other countries are no longer strangers to American party tables.

These international appetizers begin with Hawaiian Pineapple Bites. Tangy marmalade laced with rum adds zest to fresh pineapple. It is served with an island flair in its own natural shell.

Cocktail Weiners 'n Brew, a German inspiration, combines several unusual ingredients for unexpected eating pleasure. Cocktail franks become party fare with a spicy glaze of prepared mustard, vinegar, chili sauce, jam and beer.

Scandinavians are famous for their fruit soups and Viking Cherry Soup is a classic. The tart taste combination of cherries and cranberries is slightly sweetened with currant jelly for an icy summer refresher.

To satisfy larger appetites the Orient offers these hearty snacks — Teriyaki Appetizers. Sirloin cubes, pitted black olives and stuffed olives are threaded on wooden picks and marinated in a mixture of soy sauce, Tabasco, garlic and apricot preserves; then broiled til brown.

Calcutta Fruit Kabobs are served with a creamy dip subtly spiced with curry. This dip brings out the natural goodness of fruits without hiding their delicate flavors.

- 1 large pineapple
- 1/2 cup orange marmalade
- 1 teaspoon grated lemon rind
- 2 tablespoons dark rum
- 2 tablespoons chopped crystallized ginger

Cut pineapple in half lengthwise keeping leaves intact. Scoop out pineapple leaving a shell 1/2-inch thick. Remove core from cut-out pineapple and cut remaining pineapple into bite-size pieces. Pile pieces back into shells. In a bowl mix remaining ingredients and spoon over pineapple chunks. Chill until ready to serve. Garnish with mint sprigs. Serve with wooden picks. Makes 8 servings.

COCKTAIL WEINERS 'N BREW

- 1 cup concord grape jam
- 1/4 cup each prepared mustard and cider vinegar
- 1 bottle (12 oz.) chili sauce
- 1 can (12 oz.) light beer
- 1 large onion, finely chopped
- 2 1/2 pounds cocktail franks
- 1/2 pound bacon, fried crisp and crumbled*

In a large saucepan or skillet combine jam, mustard, vinegar, chili sauce, beer and onion. Simmer 5 minutes. Add cocktail franks and stir occasionally. Simmer 15 to 20 minutes or until franks are piping hot and well glazed. Serve sprinkled with crumbled crisp bacon. Serves 12 to 15.

VIKING CHERRY SOUP

- 3 cans (1 lb. each) pitted red sour cherries, drained
- 2 cans (1 lb., 4 oz. each) pie-sliced apples, drained and chopped
- 1 jar (10 oz.) currant jelly
- 1/4 cup lemon juice
- 2 cinnamon sticks
- 8 cups (2 qts.) cranberry juice cocktail
- 1/4 cup cornstarch
- 1/2 cup water

In a large saucepan combine cherries, apples, jelly, lemon juice, cinnamon sticks and cranberry juice; bring to a boil. In a small bowl mix cornstarch and water; stir into hot soup. Stir until mixture bubbles and thickens slightly; cool to room temperature. Remove cinnamon sticks and chill, covered, until ready to serve. Serve ice cold. If desired, top with slivered almonds or chopped crystallized ginger. Serves 12 to 15.

CALCUTTA FRUIT KABOBS

- 3 cups sour cream
- 1 tablespoon lime juice
- 1/2 cup orange marmalade
- 1 teaspoon curry powder
- 1/2 teaspoon ginger
- 24 fruit kabobs*

In a bowl mix sour cream, lime juice, marmalade, curry and ginger; chill. Spear desired fruit combinations on wooden picks. Place in refrigerator. When ready to serve, arrange kabobs on a platter around a bowl of the sour cream dip. Serves 12 to 15.

* Suggested combinations: whole strawberries and pineapple chunks, honeydew melon balls and orange sections, cantaloupe balls and banana chunks, seedless grapes and apricot halves, peach slices and grapefruit sections.

TERIYAKI APPETIZERS

- 1 cup apricot preserves
- 1/2 teaspoon Tabasco
- 1/2 cup soy sauce
- 2 cloves garlic, mashed
- 1/4 cup each sherry and lemon juice
- 1/2 teaspoon ginger
- 1 1/2 pounds boneless sirloin steak, cut into 3/4-inch cubes
- 24 stuffed olives
- 24 pitted black olives

In a bowl mix preserves, Tabasco, soy sauce, garlic, sherry, lemon juice and ginger. Spear steak cubes and olives alternately on wooden picks or short skewers. Place kabobs in a single layer into a shallow pan. Pour apricot mixture over kabobs and let stand at room temperature 2 hours. Drain and reserve marinade; place kabobs under broiler for 5 minutes. Turn and brush with marinade and broil another 5 minutes. Heat remaining marinade and serve with kabobs. Serves 12 to 15.

Summer menus with ease and flavor

by LOIS SEILER

During the summer months, Dr. and Mrs. Edward Burke of Mount Prospect and their four children enjoy eating outdoors as much as possible — either on their patio at home or on the porch of their lakeside cottage. Nancy minimizes culinary chores, keeping menus simple and doing all the food preparation in advance. This frees her from the kitchen to enjoy the weather and her guests.

One of the Burkes' favorite menus features Charcoal Broiled Shrimp. They first tasted this in Key West, then found a similar recipe. Nancy prepares a marinade and adds large, raw, shelled and deveined shrimp. She leaves the tails on, as they make a nice handle for eating. The shrimp marinate all day then are broiled over charcoal.

Nancy cooks the shrimp on foil which has been pierced with a fork. They take a mere six to eight minutes per side to turn a light brown color and acquire an appealing charcoal flavor.

Nancy likes to serve a fresh summer vegetable, especially sweet corn, hot homemade bread and marinated tomatoes with the shrimp.

The Burkes children, Ned, 11, Brendan, 10, Meghan, 8, and Caitlin, 5, grow their own tomatoes and Nancy picks the biggest ones she can find. Cut into thick rounds, they are marinated with thin onion slices and fresh mushrooms in an Italian dressing. Although easy to do, the results are remarkable. This cook drains off the dressing, saving it to use over and over again, and serves the ingredients on a bed of lettuce.

As with the shrimp and tomatoes, the dessert may also be prepared in the morning. It is uniquely simple yet most effective, consisting of green grapes coated with sour cream seasoned with a pinch of garlic salt. The grapes must be thoroughly dry for the sour cream to coat them properly, and any excess cream must be removed. The garlic adds a tiny bit of tartness, and the dessert looks especially pretty decorated with sprigs of mint.

Nancy's preference is for simple meals that are a little different and taste good. She likes to spend as much time as possible with her children. In addition to keeping up with her other activities, Nancy often helps out at the office of her husband, a psychiatrist, and both Nancy and Ed have been active on the board of the Northwest Suburban Montessori School since its founding, with Nancy now serving as chairman.

CHARCOAL BROILED SHRIMP

- 1 cup olive oil
- 1/4 cup lemon juice
- 3 finely-chopped shallots or green onions
- 2 cloves garlic, minced
- 1/4 cup finely-chopped fresh parsley

2 pounds large raw shrimp, shelled and deveined
Combine all ingredients and marinate shrimp for several hours in the refrigerator. Leave tails on shrimp to use as handle for eating.

Pierce a large piece of foil with a fork and place on grill over hot coals. Drain marinade off shrimp and place shrimp on foil. Cook 6 to 8 minutes on each side. Serves 4.

MARINATED TOMATOES

Large tomatoes
Bermuda or red onion, sliced thin
Fresh mushrooms, sliced
Bottled Italian-style dressing
Dip tomatoes in hot water for a half-minute and peel off skin. Cut into round slices 1-inch thick. Combine with onion slices and mushrooms. Pour dressing over all. Let marinate several hours. Drain off dressing and save to use again. Serve ingredients on a bed of lettuce.

GRAPES SUPREME

Green seedless grapes
1 cup commercial sour cream
1/8 teaspoon garlic salt
Stem and wash grapes. Dry them thoroughly.

Combine sour cream and garlic salt. Fold into grapes until they are well-coated. Remove any excess sour cream. Decorate with sprig of mint, if desired. Serve as a dessert or a side dish for cold meats.

Flavorful Cantonese dish is easy on the meat budget

Trying to beat the high cost of meat while still maintaining a semblance of normal diet in your home? A good solution is to use more recipes for Chinese, Cantonese or Japanese dishes.

For almost every such recipe the meat, beef or pork, is cubed, diced or sliced thin to make it go a long way, then tastily seasoned vegetables are added along with sauce. Such a dish is Mow Koo Steak, specialty of the Kowloon Cantonese restaurant in Los Angeles.

You'll need 1 pound of good quality beef, such as rib-eye or sirloin. Cut meat into 1-inch cubes. Prepare 8 ounces of fresh mushrooms, using both buttons and cut stems.

Put 1 tablespoon peanut oil in a wok or teflon lined skillet. Heat oil and salt slightly. When hot add beef and mushrooms, reduce heat and saute until red leaves the meat. Add 6-8 water chestnuts, sliced thin, 6 ounces of Chinese pea pods, either fresh or thawed if frozen, and 2 cups chicken broth. Bring mixture to boil, reduce heat and simmer 10 minutes, stirring occasionally with wooden spoon.

Mix 3 tablespoons cornstarch in 1/2 cup water. Add 1 teaspoon soy sauce and 1/2 teaspoon oyster sauce. (Oyster sauce is available in bottles in Chinese markets and most supermarkets). Cook mixture for 2 or 3 more minutes. Serve immediately on hot fluffy rice. Enough for 4.

WITH MOST dishes of this kind one doesn't serve dessert, although I really like a cold refreshing sweet. Since this is strawberry season, how about Southern Strawberry Chiffon Pie?

Wash, hull and mash 1 pint fresh strawberries. Add 3 tablespoons sugar and a pinch of salt. Blend thoroughly and save the juice. Soak 1 1/2 envelopes plain gelatin in cold water to cover, then dissolve over hot water. Cool slightly and mix gelatin with berries.

Beat 2 egg whites until stiff and fold into berry mixture, add 1/2 pint heavy cream, whipped, and 1 teaspoon vanilla. Pour into a baked, deep-dish (3-inch) pie shell, and chill until set.

When ready to serve, garnish with additional whole fresh strawberries which have been washed, hulled and dipped in powdered sugar. Cut into 6 generous pieces.

USDA regulation cited for meat product jars

The U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) has announced a change in regulations that will require lids of glass jars containing meat and poultry products to be designed to prevent the possibility of any dirt or insects entering the jar.

The change, effective in December, 1975, came in response to consumer complaints. Officials of USDA's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service (APHIS) said numerous complaints concerned the quick-twist, screw-on and snap-on-type lids on containers of meat food products.

APHIS officials said that because of the space between the inner edge of the lid's rim and the container itself, dirt and insects sometimes collect inside the lip of the jar lid. When the jar is opened and the vacuum seal broken, the in-rushing air may carry the dirt or insects into the jar.

Now, jar lids must be designed so that foreign matter cannot get to the inner part of the lid. This can be done by eliminating the space between the lid and the container, or by placing a seal over the space.

available at the price advertised — either right on the shelf or immediately upon request, reminds the Federal Trade Commission (FTC). If you don't find it, and there's no sign saying where it is, tell the manager. He may offer you a raincheck, but the FTC says, that's not enough. Consumers have a right to the product at the advertised price. If the store makes a habit of not having items as advertised, complain to the FTC.

The FTC also advises consumers to compare food prices, look for specials and shop at stores with the best buys.

Take the newspaper ad or the store's advertising flyer with you to the store to be sure you find the specials at the price advertised.

- 1 tablespoon mayonnaise
- 1 tablespoon prepared mustard
- 1/2 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
- 1/8 teaspoon curry powder
- 1/4 teaspoon salt

Dinner of frosty foods perks up summer appetites

When the thermometer begins to climb, many of us seem to lose our appetites, particularly when it comes to dining on the same kind of food we've been eating the year round.

Why not create a dinner of frosty foods to lure your family into being hungry again? It'll look so luscious and cool they won't be able to resist it. Start with a chilled fruit soup, have a cold seafood salad for an entree, and top it off with a combination drink-dessert of refreshing cranberry shrub.

FROSTY FRUIT SOUP

- 3 cups water
 - 1/2 cup pitted prunes
 - 1/2 cup raisins
 - 2 medium apples (pared, cored and thinly sliced)
 - 1 can pitted dark sweet cherries (8 oz.)
 - 1 medium orange (peeled, pitted, sliced)
 - 1 medium lemon (peeled, pitted, sliced)
 - 1/2 cup sugar
 - 1/2 cup quick cooking tapioca
 - 2 inch cinnamon stick
 - Dash of salt
 - 2 cups grape juice
- Combine water, prunes and raisins. Bring to a boil. Reduce heat and simmer covered for 10 minutes. Add fruits, sugar, tapioca, cinnamon and salt. Simmer covered for 12-15 minutes or until apples are tender and mixture is slightly thickened. Stir in grape juice. Remove cinnamon stick. Chill. Serves 8.

Garnish with a dollop of sour cream and sprinkle with a light dusting of cinnamon.

- 1/2 cup olive oil
- 1 tablespoon white vinegar
- 1/4 cup parsley, chopped
- 1/4 teaspoon oregano
- Juice of 2-3 lemons
- 1/2 teaspoon salt

Blanch fish in boiling water (two to three minutes). Remove from water and cool. Place in large mixing bowl and combine with remaining ingredients. Marinate two to three hours in refrigerator. Drain and serve on bed of greens, garnished with olives. Serves 6.

FROSTED CRANBERRY SHRUB

Meat prices showed general increases this week, according to a survey on Monday. Pork chops, up 22 cents, reflected the largest jump. Whole broiler-fryers and bacon increased five and nine cents, respectively. Ground beef, down five cents, and ocean perch fillets, down two cents, accounted for the only declines.

Dairy prices remained close to stable from a week ago with the exception of margarine, down four cents, and American cheese, up two cents.

Two-cent increases were recorded for lettuce and frozen orange juice concentrate. Canned pears and white potatoes decreased one and two cents.

No major changes were noted for cereals and dry groceries this week.

Food prices are based on averages obtained from four area stores on Monday of each week.

Plum Glazed Turkey Roast

Easy plum glaze for rotisserie turkey

Turkey is still one of the most economical meat buys for a menu-planner who is trying to keep food costs down. Turkey is high in protein and nutritionally rich in riboflavin, niacin and calcium. But, most surprising of all, turkey prices today are about the same as they were in 1945 in most areas, according to the National Turkey Federation.

A whole roast turkey will still be a family favorite, but for convenience and versatility, many homemakers are discovering turkey in other forms and sizes. Try a small turkey roast for an exciting new menu change. These fresh-frozen boneless roasts weigh in at 3 to 3 1/2 pounds. They may be all white meat or a combination of dark and light. They can be oven roasted or barbecued on a rotisserie and there's no waste.

Add elegance to an outdoor party with a rotisserie turkey basted in plum glaze. Skewer the thawed roast on the spit of an electric portable broiler (the usual outdoor broiler) or inside on the oven rotisserie unit. If you have one, brush with a glaze of plum preserves, Italian salad dressing and other ingredients that have been previously simmered.

The day before, make up a Jellied Summer Salad with lemon gelatin and garden-fresh cucumber, celery, onions and sliced radishes. It's a deliciously cool accompaniment to the glazed turkey roast, which can be sliced and served on an outdoor buffet table. It's a great warm-weather menu idea that just happens to be easy on the budget.

PLUM GLAZED TURKEY ROAST

1 frozen boned and netted turkey roast (3 to 3 1/2 pounds)
1 cup plum preserves
1/2 cup Italian salad dressing
1/2 envelope (1/4 cup) dry onion soup mix
1 1/2 teaspoons cornstarch
2 tablespoons cold water
Combine plum preserves, salad dressing and soup mix. Mix together cornstarch with cold water. Add to the plum preserve mixture. Simmer for about 5 to 8 minutes.

Mount the netted, boneless turkey roast on spit carefully, centering for balance. Check for even spin by cradling ends of the spit in upturned hands and gently rotate. Reposition food if necessary. Insert prongs fully in ends of turkey roast; tighten screws. Brush skin with melted butter, margarine, or salad oil if desired. Cook for 2 to 2 1/2 hours. Baste with Plum Glaze the last 45 minutes of cooking time.

Can also be roasted in a 325-degree oven for 2 hours, following basting procedure. Yield: 6 to 8 servings.

JELLIED SUMMER SALAD

2 3-ounce packages lemon-flavored gelatin
3 cups hot water
2 tablespoons lemon juice, freshly squeezed
2 tablespoons white vinegar
1 teaspoon salt
1 1/2 cups sliced cucumber
1 1/2 cups chopped celery
1/2 cup sliced green onions
1/2 cup sliced radishes

Prepare lemon-flavored gelatin according to package directions, using 3 cups hot water. Add lemon juice, vinegar and remaining ingredients. Pour into a 6-cup mold or 6 individual molds. Chill until firm or overnight. Serve with mayonnaise. Serves 6 to 8 or makes 6 individual molds.

Seek quality celery

The U. S. Department of Agriculture offers some tips on how to judge good quality celery. It should be fresh and crisp with solid, rigid stalks with a glossy surface. The leaflets should look fresh and predominantly green. Stalks should be light to medium green.

Avoid celery with spongy or hollow branches. Soft, mushy spots are often an indication of decay. Other signs of poor quality include black or brown discoloration in the small center branches or long thick seedstems in place of the usually small, tender heart branches.

Celery should be kept cool and moist. If it becomes slightly wilted, it can be revived by placing the fresh trimmed butt end in water. Severely wilted celery can never become really fresh again.

For more information on buying celery or other fresh vegetables write for "How to Buy Fresh Vegetables" (G-143). Single free copies are available from Office of Communication, U. S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C. 20250.

When meat's too high, try beans

Hit with high meat prices, budget-minded consumers are looking to other, less expensive foods to meet protein requirements. Beans are an excellent source of protein and can easily take the place of meat in your menu.

As meat substitutes, bean dishes make hearty and nutritious main courses for lunch or dinner. An old favorite like baked beans is simple to make and provides good eating at minimum cost.

This recipe for Orange Baked Beans is a refreshing variation of the traditional and it calls for orange juice concentrate to be added after simmering, to give the beans a unique tart-sweet flavor.

When cooking beans, always remember to add acid-containing ingredients, like salt or orange juice, after simmering. Otherwise the beans will be tough since the acid slows down the softening process.

With your baked beans you can serve a light salad of greens, orange slices and onion slices topped with Orange French Dressing. You make the dressing yourself so you know it's pure and fresh.

To complete the menu, have a glass of milk and an egg-rich custard. This makes a nutritious dinner that you can well afford.

saucepan; add 6 cups water. Simmer uncovered over low heat 1 1/2 hours or until tender. Turn beans with liquid into bean pot or 2-quart casserole. Add 1/2 cup additional water and remaining ingredients; mix well. Cover and bake in 325 degree oven for 4 hours, stirring occasionally. Yield: 6 to 8 servings.

ORANGE FRENCH DRESSING

1 can (6 ounces) frozen concentrated orange juice thawed, undiluted
1/2 cup salad oil
1/4 cup cider vinegar
3 to 4 tablespoons sugar
1/2 teaspoon dry mustard
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/8 teaspoon Tabasco

Combine undiluted concentrated orange juice, salad oil, vinegar, sugar, dry mustard, salt and Tabasco in jar or bowl. Shake or beat until blended, or mix in electric blender. Cover and store in refrigerator. Shake well before using. Serve with salad greens, orange slices and onion slices. Yield: 1 1/2 cups dressing.

ORANGE BAKED BEANS

1 box (1 pound) dried white beans
Water
1 can (8 ounces) tomato sauce
2 tablespoons soy sauce
1/2 cup packed brown sugar
1/4 cup frozen concentrated orange juice, thawed, undiluted

Three-Decker Carnie Sandwiches

Picnics on wheels deserve festive fare

What's more fun than a picnic? How about a "carnie"? Our personal dictionary of silly sayings defines a carnie as a picnic on wheels... goodies for the family to munch on while on route to a vacation hideaway... or it could be a leisurely rest and relaxation stop in a lush, grassy meadow you've discovered along the way... or it could simply mean pulling down the station wagon tailgate and using it as a lunch table once you've arrived at your destination.

Carniephiles (persons addicted to carnies) usually work up hearty appetites with all their pleasant scampering about. Best way to satisfy those appetites is to load up a basket filled with Carnie Sandwiches — what else? These are mini-round three-decker sandwiches stuffed with American cheese and bologna, with mayonnaise, mustard and Tabasco for added flavor and seasoning.

Corn and Tomato Chowder — made heartier, heartier and more delicious with green peppers and cheddar cheese, is an excellent choice. Serve it piping hot from the thermos jar or bottle.

THREE-DECKER CARNIE SANDWICHES

- Mustard Spread:
 1/2 teaspoon Tabasco
 3 tablespoons mayonnaise
 1/2 cup prepared mustard
 Stir Tabasco into mayonnaise. Blend in prepared mustard.
- To assemble sandwiches:
 12 slices rye bread
 12 slices white sandwich bread
 12 slices pumpernickel bread
 1 pound sliced American cheese (12 slices)
 1 1/2 pounds sliced bologna (12 slices)

With 3-inch crinkle-edge round cutter, cut rounds of bread, cheese and bologna from each slice. Spread rye rounds with Mustard Spread and top with cheese slices. Add rounds of white bread, spread on both sides with mustard spread. Top with 2 bologna rounds and pumpernickel rounds, spread on bottom side with mustard spread. Place in covered container or wrap in waxed paper, foil or plastic wrap. Chill until time to leave for picnic. Yield: 12 sandwiches.

Note: If desired, make regular club sandwiches with ingredients, without cutting rounds. Cut into quarters diagonally and hold sections together with food picks.

CORN AND TOMATO CHOWDER

- 1 can (1 pound) whole kernel corn
 1 can (1 pound) tomatoes
 2 cups chicken broth
 1 cup chopped celery
 1 teaspoon salt
 1/2 teaspoon Tabasco
 2 tablespoons butter or margarine
 3 tablespoons flour
 2 cups milk
 1/2 cup (4 ounces) shredded Cheddar cheese
 1 green pepper, chopped

In a medium saucepan combine corn, tomatoes, chicken broth, celery, salt and Tabasco. Bring to a boil, reduce heat, cover and simmer 30 minutes; remove from heat. Melt butter in a small saucepan and blend in flour; stir in milk. Cook, stirring constantly, until mixture thickens and comes to a boil. Stir into tomato and corn mixture; heat. Stir in cheese and green pepper. Stir over low heat until cheese melts. Pour into insulated container. Yield: 6 servings.

Note: To prepare ahead, do not add cheese. When ready to leave for picnic, heat chowder, add cheese and stir until melted.

If your family loves eating out on the patio, but the cost of the usual broilable foods is raising hob with your budget, why not cook indoors, serve outdoors, a savory, meal-in-a-dish and team it with your best salad and a plate of hot biscuits.

Russian Mushroom Fish Stew can be prepared in about 15 minutes, although you would start the whole potatoes before the stew. You could, of course, cut the potatoes in chunks and cook with the stew if you prefer.

The Savory Bread and Mushroom Pudding is another good, easy main dish, although it takes about an hour in a moderate oven. Serve sliced cucumber and onion rings in sour cream as an accompaniment.

RUSSIAN MUSHROOM FISH STEW

- 1 package (1 lb.) fresh mushrooms
 1/2 cup butter or margarine
 1/2 cup sliced onions
 1 can (1 lb.) tomatoes, broken up
 1 bottle (8 oz.) clam juice
 1/2 cup diced dill pickle
 1 teaspoon salt
 1/2 teaspoon ground black pepper
 1 1/2 pounds fish fillet, cut into 1-inch chunks
 1/4 cup chopped parsley
 6 whole boiled potatoes

Rinse, pat dry and slice mushrooms. In a large saucepan melt butter; add mushrooms and onions; saute for 3 minutes. Add tomatoes, clam juice, pickle, salt and black pepper. Bring to boiling point. Add fish; reduce heat. Cover and simmer for 8 minutes or until fish is cooked. (UPI)

Teacups for molds

Teacups, custard cups and muffin tins make good substitutes for individual salad molds.

Once for ounce, wheat germ contains more than twice as much protein as whole fresh eggs and more than twice the iron in beef steak or raisins.

Two pounds of fresh broccoli will make about six half cup servings.

Shish kabob and vegetables such as mushrooms, eggplant slices, onions, zucchini squash, tomatoes and green peppers will grill better over charcoal if you use separate skewers for the meat and vegetables. Otherwise, some of the food will be overdone before the rest is cooked.

Dip your fingers in powdered sugar before picking up bits of pie pastry or cookie dough to be rolled. The sugar will prevent stickiness and help keep the dough tender.

A medium cantaloupe half contains about 60 calories, and enough vitamin A and C to supply more than the amount recommended daily for adults.

A medium plum contains only 25 calories.

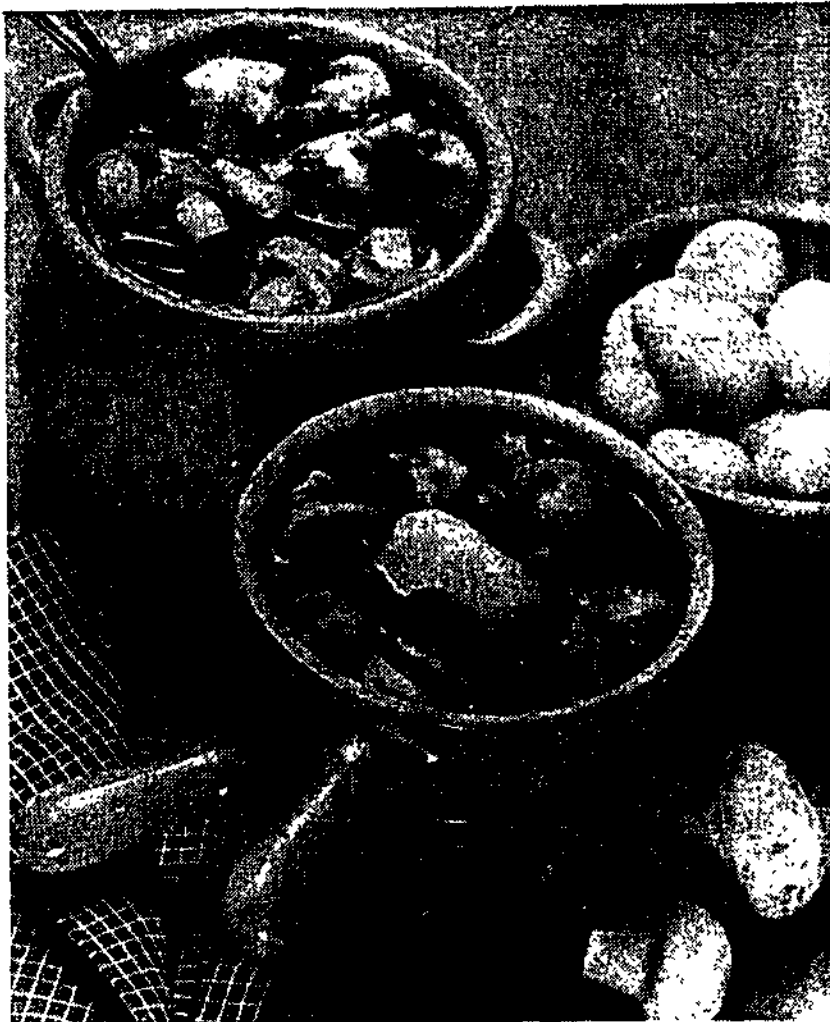

Meal-in-a-dish to serve outdoors

ed. Gently stir in parsley. Serve in bowl with a whole boiled potato. Yield: 6 portions.

SAVORY BREAD AND MUSHROOM PUDDING

- 1 package (1 lb.) fresh mushrooms
 4 tablespoons butter or margarine, divided
 3 cups 1/4-inch soft bread cubes
 3 cups milk
 6 eggs
 1 cup shredded Cheddar cheese
 1 1/2 teaspoons salt
 1/4 teaspoon ground black pepper
 1 can (10 3/4 oz.) condensed tomato soup
 1/2 cup water
 1/4 cup chopped parsley
- Rinse and pat dry mushrooms; chop half and slice half of the mushrooms; set sliced mushrooms aside for later use. In a skillet melt 2 tablespoons of the butter. Add chopped mushrooms; saute for 2 minutes; set aside. Place bread cubes in a large bowl. Scald milk; pour over bread cubes; let stand for 10 minutes. Lightly beat eggs; add to bread mixture along with cheese, salt, black pepper and sauteed mushrooms.

Pour mixture into a well buttered 1 1/2 to 2-quart casserole; bake in a preheated moderate oven (350 degrees) until a knife inserted into center comes out clean, about 50 to 60 minutes. In a medium saucepan melt remaining 2 tablespoons butter. Add reserved sliced mushrooms; saute for 2 minutes. Add soup, water and parsley. Bring to boiling point. Use as sauce over pudding. Yield: 6 portions.

Turkey pieces are budget buy

Turkey buffs who happen to favor a succulent drumstick, the white-meated breast or a plump thigh, don't have to buy a whole turkey. Enjoy the piece you like best. Individual turkey parts are available in the poultry section of most food stores.

For many families, this is a practical way to buy turkey. It is especially convenient for those who cook for only one or two or those who have limited refrigerator space. It saves time when planning a summer cook-out for a large group. You eliminate the bother of working with one or more whole turkeys just to get enough separate pieces for barbecuing or grilling.

Picnic wing sticks are easy to prepare and are delicious summer fare. Here are the ingredients for six servings.

- 6 (about 3 1/2 lbs.) turkey wings without tips, disjointed
 1/2 cup flour
 2 teaspoons salt
 1/2 teaspoon pepper
 1/2 teaspoon thyme
 1/2 cup fat or oil
 Water, if needed

Combine flour and seasonings, and use to coat turkey wings. Brown wings in fat or oil. Cover lightly and cook over low heat about 1 1/2 hours until turkey is tender. Add a small amount of water, if needed, during cooking to keep from sticking. Uncover last few minutes of cooking to crisp turkey, if desired.

Serve picnic wing sticks with assorted relishes, potato chips, and mixed vegetable casserole. Top off with a dessert of fruit and cookies.

Why a grapefruit?

Why is a grapefruit a grapefruit? The answer, from the U.S. Department of Agriculture:

"In 1814 horticulturist John J. Munro first called a variety of the Jamaican pummelo a grapefruit. He thought this fruit resembled the flavor of a grape.

"About 10 years later, another horticulturist again called it a grapefruit. The reason? Grapefruit is borne in bunches like grapes on large trees. The name caught on."

Industrial park can be built, soil expert says

by LYNN ASINOF

A soils expert contradicted a North Cook County Soil and Water Conservation District report by testifying that an industrial park can safely be built on the northwest corner of Hintz and Wolf roads in Wheeling.

Robert G. Lukas, testifying for the Wheeling Partnership, told the Wheeling Zoning Board that the conservation district's report dealt with only the top three or four feet of soil.

"I don't really disagree that much with their report," he said. "The problem is when they look at soils, they only look at the top three or four feet."

The conservation district report warned that soil conditions and a high water table would create severe construction problems. "Foundations, streets, parking lots and sidewalks on them (the soils) are subject to cracking and heaving," the report states.

LUKAS SAID that while the top few feet of soil would create these conditions, the soils are underlain by a "good, hard glacial till" beginning at five or six feet. He said that by sinking foundations into the more compact soils, there would be no problem in construction.

The soils expert said that while streets, sidewalks and parking lots would be built on the softer soils, special work could make these soils safe from heaving and cracking. He said the soils could be removed and replaced or dried and compacted to support the paving.

Trustee Albert Lang has expressed concern that streets and sidewalks built in this development may become a liability to the village because of the possible heaving and cracking.

Lukas said he had no expertise on other problems mentioned by the conservation district. These problems include possible erosion to the banks of the Wheeling Drainage Ditch, which borders the 41.8-acre parcel. The district also said that trees along the creek bank should be preserved and that special care should be taken to keep discharge from the development out of the creek.

WILLIAM McCANN, a real estate broker, testified in favor of the development, saying that the highest and best use of the property is an industrial park. He noted that other land in the area is now being developed for industry, and said this development would discourage a residential use of the property.

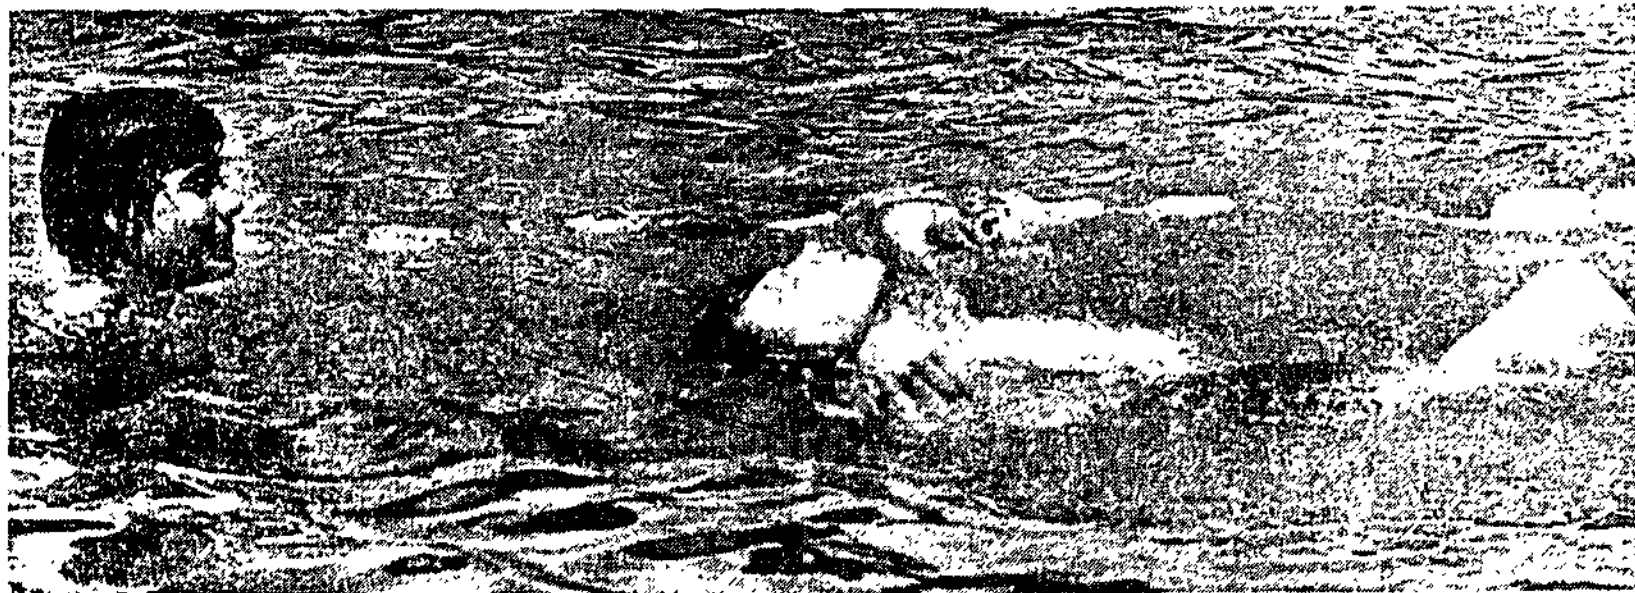

The site is separated from the Foxboro Apartments on the northeast by the creek. Developer Sigmund Lefkowitz, who was involved in the Foxboro project, is a partner in the industrial park proposal.

Zoning board members, however, continued hearings on the matter until July 30 so that a representative of the Federal Aviation Administration can testify as to why that agency has control over location of the buildings in the proposed industrial park.

Lefkowitz has told the zoning board that the FAA has called for special placement of the buildings in the proposed industrial park since the property is under the approach to Palwaukee Airport's runway.

VILLAGE ATTY. Paul Hamer has challenged the FAA's control over building placement, noting that the village has been calling for more stringent FAA control over the Palwaukee operations. He said that the FAA should not have control over the placement of buildings if it has no control over Palwaukee operations.

The property is now owned by Theodore and Marlon Melzer. Developers testified that Acco International, a firm that makes office supplies, plans to build its headquarters in the park. The park will be expanded as other industries become interested in the site.

BOB HOLLAND, right, completes the backstroke as part of his certification as an advanced beginning swimmer. Although Bob is totally sightless, he

by JOE SWICKARD

Kevin Kendrigan looked down, smiled and gave the girl a conspiratorial wink. "Yes. But don't tell anyone. It's a secret."

The "secret" Kendrigan was winking about is the Northwest Special Recreation Assn. Summer Day Camp. As director of the six-month-old association, Kendrigan could be called the man who "invented" the summer activities program in the Northwest suburbs.

The camp, which began in June and runs six weeks, provides recreational opportunities for children with handicaps or learning disabilities. Its main purpose, Kendrigan said, is to help the children "express themselves in activities as close to the normal population as possible."

THE ASSOCIATION is funded by nine area park districts for its administrative expenses. Wheeling and Palatine townships have given $15,000 and $10,000, respectively, to the association. Elk Grove Township has made a tentative commitment of $15,000.

The township's monies are used to pay for the activities such as the camp in summer and after-school and weekend programs during the fall and winter.

Five special camps serve 120 children this summer. The camps, at different locations throughout the three townships, offer programs for the visually handicapped, the physically handicapped and a joint camp for youngsters and children with learning disabilities.

Nonambulatory youths have a Saturday-only program at the Kirk Center in Palatine. All the other camps operate five days a week for six hours.

"One reason it's that long is to give the parents a chance to be by themselves for a while. It gives them a chance to go shopping or run errands or whatever without taking their child along," Kendrigan said.

THE CAMPS hardly are glorified babysitters, though.

At Recreation Park in Arlington Heights children were making full use of the facilities.

Because of the heat wave, the visually impaired youngsters were taking an extra-long session in the swimming pool. Jody Sticken, an instructor of the visually impaired during the school year, was testing the children in the pool.

Bob Holland, totally sightless, was going through his paces for a certificate as an advanced beginning swimmer. Treading water and the frontal float offered no problem for him, but there was some difficulty with the backstroke.

Using the pool-diving rope as a touch point, Bob completed his necessary 1 1/2 widths to pass, with a minimum of straying and course corrections.

Part of the camp for the sightless to the legally blind was in the pool, diving, splashing or practicing on kickboards.

"IT'S IMPORTANT to them. Many of them have never had their head under water before," Kendrigan said. To illustrate the point a boy leaped in the pool and started turning waterborne somersaults.

Prior to swimming these children had been tumbling and working out on the mats in the park field house.

Instructor Ed Guttman had the other campers under the trees for rest period after relay races. The children rest about as much as any child will on a beautiful summer day.

There are swings nearby, coloring books and tales to be discussed from the earlier story hour. Later it would be their turn in the pool followed by arts and crafts.

The activities are designed to strengthen their skills and coordination. Softball and tumbling improves body development while arts and crafts work on eye and hand coordination.

"Their self worth is improved. We have some competition for the same reason, but not for setting one against the other," Kendrigan said.

THE GAMES AND programs also give the children an opportunity to socialize, something that may not be readily available within their own neighborhood.

"Children are quick to pick up that these kids are not normal in some way. And kids can be cruel. The camp gives them a place where they can get together with other kids and have some fun," Kendrigan said.

"This is a preventive program, too. It makes them more sure of themselves, and more likely to succeed later."

And like any other summer day camp, there is a lot of setting under the trees and splashing in the pools. As the supervisors said, it is a place to give the kids a chance.

Day camp offers unhandicapped fun for youths

MUGGING IT up with Special Recreation Summer Camp staffer Donna Thorsson are Donald Hertel, left, and Oliver Oswald. The day camp offers summer fun and activities to 120.

Surveillance system tiff under study in closed parley

The Wheeling-Edwards Grove School Dist. 21 Board of Education will meet in closed session tonight to discuss the dispute concerning performance of an $85,000 surveillance system installed in local schools.

The session is scheduled to follow the regular business meeting which will begin at 8:15 p.m. at the Dist. 21 administration building, 999 W. Dundee Rd., Wheeling.

The school board three weeks ago canceled the contract with Temptron Inc. because of dissatisfaction with the electronic monitoring system designed to prevent fire and vandalism. The Insurance Co. of North America has been requested by the school board to complete the contract.

If the bonding company concludes after an investigation that Temptron has fulfilled the contract, the Dist. 21 school board will have no choice but to file suit against the firm.

Monday, Temptron officials asked for a meeting with the board to attempt to settle the matter out of court. In executive session tonight, the board will discuss whether it will agree to the session.

On the agenda of the regular public meeting, the board is slated to discuss:

- Hiring a physical education coordinator.
- Bids for physical education equipment.
- Renewal of membership in the Illinois Assn. of School Boards.
- Teacher resignations.

Maj. Farrell gets medal

Army Nurse Major John Farrell, whose wife, Edna, lives at 119 Sunrise Dr., Wheeling, was recently presented the Army Commendation medal at Fort Riley, Kansas.

Major Farrell earned the award while serving as chief of the clinic's nursing station, Irwin Army Hospital at the fort. He is presently assistant chief nurse with the hospital.

Zoners heed residents, urge shop center rejection

by LYNN ASINOF

Plans for a neighborhood shopping center adjacent to Lakeside Villas on Hintz Road were recommended for rejection by the Wheeling Zoning Board after more than 40 residents attended a public hearing to object to the project.

The center, which would feature a White Hen Pantry, was proposed by the Kulwin-Beider Construction Co. for property at 2324 and 2330 Hintz Rd. The site is occupied by two older frame houses.

The residents, mainly young couples, said the center would be a hazard to their children because it would attract increased traffic. "One could only surmise that children would increasingly ride their bicycles along Hintz Road to make use of the goods and services at the shopping center," said William Laytin, a member of the environmental commission and resident of Lakeside Villas.

IN ADDITION, the residents said they wanted the site for a park area, noting the large trees and foliage on the property. Bruce Schiff, 789 Lakeside Circle Dr., said the residents plan to push for a park on the site.

Jack Beider, representing the construction company, said most of the old frame houses along Hintz Road display for sale signs that advertise commercial development possibilities.

"It seems the owners of the homes believe the area could be commercial," he said.

The Lakeside Villas residents, however, said that any rezoning for the shopping center would set a precedent for further commercial development of that section of Hintz Road. They said they will fight to retain the residential character of the area, despite a possible shopping inconvenience.

A MAJOR ARGUMENT against the shopping center was that another retail business center is being constructed just west of the proposed site, at the northeast corner of Hintz and Buffalo Grove roads. This center will feature an IGA food store and other retail operations.

A petition signed by more than 200 residents was turned into the zoning board, listing objections to the proposed shopping center.

In voting against the center, zoning board members rejected the developer's argument that the area needed a convenient shopping area to serve the large number of residents in the new housing developments.

Comr. Alan Martin said that the shopping center now under construction "is probably the best spot for shopping if there is to be any in that area." He said the proposed White Hen Pantry center is in the middle of the block and would cause enough traffic problems.

OTHER ZONING board members said the size of the 1 1/2-acre lot is too small to support a shopping center that would meet village setback and parking requirements. They said they did not think the center could be built without variations being granted.

Comr. Hugh Sommerfield said he was also concerned about the possibility of spot zoning, since the area is residential.

The vote against recommending approval of the shopping center was unanimous, with commissioners Roman Dumas and Frank Wojek absent. The village board will vote on the matter at an upcoming board meeting.

Police wrapup

Second man sought in motel stabbing

Wheeling police are searching for one of two roommates suspected in the stabbing of a third roommate Tuesday night at the Wishing Well Motel, 379 N. Milwaukee Ave. The other roommate already has been arrested.

Being sought in the stabbing of Juan E. Torrez is Leopoldo S. Rodriguez, 20. Already charged with aggravated battery and unlawful use of weapons in the incident is Pablo A. Rodriguez, 24.

Torrez was taken to Holy Family Hospital in Des Plaines for treatment after the 7:35 p.m. incident. Hospital records however, indicate Pablo Rodriguez was treated for a stab wound in the left arm. Police said the men may have been mixing their names.

Police said when they arrived at the motel none of the three men could be found. A short search revealed Torrez behind a construction shed near the intersection of Milwaukee Avenue and Strong Street.

No motive for the stabbing was given by police. They did say, however, that Torrez was unsure exactly which of the two men had stabbed him.

Pablo Rodriguez is to appear July 19 in the Arlington Heights Branch of Circuit Court. U. S. Immigration officials also were called into the case.

Man arrested for assault

An Elk Grove Village man was charged with aggravated assault and unlawful use of a weapon, after he allegedly pointed a pistol at another motorist Tuesday afternoon in Wheeling.

William Lassie of Skokie told police he was cut off by a truck about 3:30 p.m. near the intersection of Wheeling and Hintz roads. Police, in tracing the semi-trailer, found it had been driven by Bruce Watkins, 31, of 168 Brantwood, Elk Grove Village, at the time of the alleged incident.

Watkins told police he could remember no such incident and denied he had a gun in his truck. Police said Watkins did have a piece of pipe in his truck.

Watkins was released after he posted $100 bond and he is to appear July 19 in the Arlington Heights branch of Circuit Court.

Safe, machines burglarized

An estimated $1,371 was stolen from a safe and two vending machines during a Monday night burglary at the Fluid Power Systems plant, 511 S. Glenn Ave., Wheeling police said.

Police said they discovered the burglary just before 3 a.m. when an alarm was triggered, indicating an overhead door had been opened. The manager of the plant was called to the scene and he discovered the office safe removed.

The safe later was found in the plant's repair shop. Police said its door was cut off and $500 removed. Some $750 also was taken from a bill and coin changer and another $121 from a cigarette machine.

The burglary occurred some time after 8 p.m. Monday night and before the 2:49 a.m. alarm.

$80 stolen from gas station

An estimated $80 cash was taken in another Wheeling burglary Monday night, this burglary at Shannon's Texaco, 13 N. Milwaukee Ave.

Police said two windows were completely broken out to provide entry for the burglary sometime between 8 p.m. Monday and 6:11 a.m. Tuesday. The cash was taken from a cash register but the thief, apparently mindful of the penny shortage, left all the pennies behind.

Youth bureau 'turns corner'

Omni-House: Youth Services Bureau is two-thirds of the way home in its quest for $30,000 in state funds for next year.

The grant application was unanimously approved Tuesday by the Chicago-Cook County Criminal Justice Commission, following earlier approval by a subcommittee of the commission.

The Illinois Law Enforcement Commission will make the final decision on the local counseling agency's request later this summer.

Originally, Omni-House and other youth services bureaus operating under the auspices of the ILEC were to be partially supported by state funds for only two years. Through the efforts of the Omni-House staff and other service bureau officials, the third-year funding recently was set up.

In addition to the $30,000 Omni-House hopes to receive from the ILEC, the agency will need to raise about $142,000 in local contributions to meet its budget for next year, said Peter Digre, executive director.

Planners to study Plum Grove development

The Wheeling Plan Commission tonight is scheduled to informally review plans for the Plum Creek development, a project that may soon be seeking annexation into the village.

The review was requested by the village board to determine if the project would meet village standards if it is annexed. County building permits already have been issued for Plum Creek, which is to be a 200-unit condominium project on Wolf Road just north of the Wheeling Drainage Ditch.

Some village officials feel that they may be blackmailed into accepting the project since county permits have already been approved.

The plan commission also is scheduled to continue its review of a proposed Ponderosa Steak House on Dundee Road west of the Wildwood Apartments. The property was originally part of the Wildwood complex and was to be used for parking.

The zoning board has asked the plan commission to decide if there is sufficient parking for the project without use of the proposed Ponderosa site.

Officers also are scheduled to be elected during the plan commission meeting, which will begin at 7:30 p.m. at the village hall, 235 W. Dundee Rd.

Sprinkling ban on west side

A sprinkling ban is in effect for residents in the western section of Wheeling that is served by Well No. 5.

Village Pres. Ted C. Scanlon called for the ban, saying the heat wave has caused power reductions that have made it difficult to keep the pumps working at full capacity. As a result, Scanlon said the water level in Well No. 5 is very low and will take some time to reach normal again.

The ban is expected to be in effect for at least a week Thursday.

Areas affected by the ban include the Hollywood Ridge subdivision, developments along McHenry Road, as well as the Mallard Lake Apartments, Lakeside Villas, Tahoe Village and other developments along Hintz Road.

Salary ordered stopped for cop awaiting hearing

by JOE FRANZ

The Buffalo Grove Fire and Police Commission has ordered the salary of Patrolman Floyd Merenkov stopped, pending the outcome of a hearing before that body.

The public hearing is scheduled for Saturday, July 20, at 10 a.m. in the board room of the municipal building, 50 Raupp Blvd. At that time the commission will hear arguments on both Merenkov's and the department's behalf.

Police Chief Harry Walsh suspended Merenkov last Friday and asked the commission to order his dismissal from the force. At the time of the suspension, Walsh said the patrolman would receive full pay.

WALSH SAID Wednesday it was the commission's decision to stop Merenkov's salary. He received full pay through Tuesday. "At the time I suspended him I did not order his salary stopped because I felt that was up to the fire and police commission," he said.

In a complaint filed with the commission, Walsh charges Merenkov with disobeying an order, insubordination and disrespect for a supervisor, taking action derogatory to the department and discrediting the force.

In turn, Merenkov has charged that other members of the department are guilty of theft and misconduct. He said he attempted to bring the cases of misconduct to Walsh's attention so corrective action could be taken. The result of his efforts, he said, was the charges filed against him.

Merenkov said he and his attorney are optimistic about the outcome of the hearing. "I am confident that we will win," he said.

SINCE HIS SUSPENSION, Merenkov suit 25 to 30 persons have called him or told him in personal conversations that they support him. Some of those who support him are employed by the village, he said.

"I have received a lot of public support which I did not expect," Merenkov said. "A lot of people have rallied to my support."

At the time of the suspension, he said he feared some of his supporters in the police department would not come forward because of threats of being fired. He said Wednesday, however, he now feels more confident.

"I really think I have some good staunch supporters in the department. I think the department is split down the middle on this matter," he said.

"I also feel better since talking to Mr. Larson (Village Mgr. Daniel Larson). I think I can count on him to make sure this thing is settled with a right and proper disposition."

Walsh has refused comment on the matter, saying his feelings will become public at the hearing before the fire and police commission.

IN THE MEANTIME, Merenkov, 27, has a temporary job with the Buffalo Grove Fire Department. Fire Chief Wayne Winter hired him Monday to fill in for vacationing firemen. He is being paid $20 a day.

Merenkov has been a volunteer fireman and emergency medical technician with the department for more than three years. Before joining the police department he was a full-time fireman in Des Plaines.

Since Merenkov joined the police department almost three years ago he has received two departmental commendations for outstanding police work.

College board used bad data in district choice: trustee

Trustee Thomas Mahoney of Buffalo Grove contends the Illinois Community College Board used misleading information when making its decision to place the northern part of the village in the College of Lake County district.

In a letter to the college board, Mahoney said a recommendation by its staff substantially misrepresented testimony that was made at a public hearing last April. The hearing was called to hear arguments for and against placing High School Dist. 125 within the boundaries of the College of Lake County-Lake County Buffalo Grove is within Dist. 125.

Despite Buffalo Grove's objections, the college board decided to place Dist. 125 in the College of Lake County district. Until then, the high school district was not in a junior college district.

Prior to the college board's decision, the village board passed a resolution asking that the Lake County section of the village be placed in the Harper College district, with the rest of the village.

THE STAFF recommendation to the college board states, "Thus, to keep the entire Stevenson district (Dist. 125) in the Harper College district because of the desires of a small portion of the Village of Buffalo Grove in Lake County would appear to the staff to be similar to allowing the tail to wag the dog."

Mahoney said the recommendation does not mention that a substantial number of Dist. 125 residents heretofore have attended Harper College. "Specifically, it omits completely testimony by two Dist. 125 officials that, at present, attendance by Dist. 125 residents is evenly split between College of Lake County and Harper," the letter states.

Mahoney proposed the village board take further action in an attempt to remove the northern part of Buffalo Grove from the boundaries of the College of Lake County. Board members are considering whether they should initiate petitions asking for a referendum to remove the village from that junior college district.

THE VILLAGE WOULD need 50 signatures in order to bring the matter to a referendum. If the referendum were passed the village could then try to get its northern area placed in the Harper district or leave it in no district, as in the past.

If the area is not in a district, students would have the option of attending a junior college of their choice. If that happens, however, it may place a financial burden on Dist. 125 which would have to reimburse students for the higher out-of-district tuitions.

by JOE SWICKARD

Kevin Kendrigan looked down, smiled and gave the girl a conspiratorial wink. "Yes. But don't tell anyone. It's a secret."

The "secret" Kendrigan was winking about is the Northwest Special Recreation Assn. Summer Day Camp. As director of the six-month-old association, Kendrigan could be called the man who "invented" the summer activities program in the Northwest suburbs.

The camp, which began in June and runs six weeks, provides recreational opportunities for children with handicaps or learning disabilities. Its main purpose, Kendrigan said, is to help the children "express themselves in activities as close to the normal population as possible."

THE ASSOCIATION is funded by nine area park districts for its administrative expenses. Wheeling and Palatine townships have given $15,000 and $10,000, respectively, to the association. Elk Grove Township has made a tentative commitment of $15,000.

The township's monies are used to pay for the activities such as the camp in summer and after-school and weekend programs during the fall and winter.

Five special camps serve 120 children this summer. The camps, at different locations throughout the three townships, offer programs for the visually handicapped, the physically handicapped and a joint camp for youngsters and children with learning disabilities.

Nonambulatory youths have a Saturday-only program at the Kirk Center in Palatine. All the other camps operate five days a week for six hours.

"One reason it's that long is to give the parents a chance to be by themselves for a while. It gives them a chance to go shopping or run errands or whatever without taking their child along," Kendrigan said.

THE CAMPS hardly are glorified babysitters, though.

At Recreation Park in Arlington Heights children were making full use of the facilities.

Because of the heat wave, the visually impaired youngsters were taking an extra-long session in the swimming pool. Jody Sticken, an instructor of the visually impaired during the school year, was testing the children in the pool.

Bob Holland, totally sightless, was going through his paces for a certificate as an advanced beginning swimmer. Treading water and the frontal float offered no problem for him, but there was some difficulty with the backstroke.

Using the pool-diving rope as a touch point, Bob completed his necessary 1 1/2 widths to pass, with a minimum of straying and course corrections.

Part of the camp for the sightless to the legally blind was in the pool, diving, splashing or practicing on kickboards.

"IT'S IMPORTANT to them. Many of them have never had their head under water before," Kendrigan said. To illustrate the point a boy leaped in the pool and started turning waterborne somersaults.

Prior to swimming these children had been tumbling and working out on the mats in the park field house.

Instructor Ed Guttman had the other campers under the trees for rest period after relay races. The children rest about as much as any child will on a beautiful summer day.

There are swings nearby, coloring books and tales to be discussed from the earlier story hour. Later it would be their turn in the pool followed by arts and crafts.

The activities are designed to strengthen their skills and coordination. Softball and tumbling improves body development while arts and crafts work on eye and hand coordination.

"Their self worth is improved. We have some competition for the same reason, but not for setting one against the other," Kendrigan said.

THE GAMES AND programs also give the children an opportunity to socialize, something that may not be readily available within their own neighborhood.

"Children are quick to pick up that these kids are not normal in some way. And kids can be cruel. The camp gives them a place where they can get together with other kids and have some fun," Kendrigan said.

"This is a preventive program, too. It makes them more sure of themselves, and more likely to succeed later."

And like any other summer day camp, there is a lot of settling under the trees and splashing in the pools. As the supervisors said, it is a place to give the kids a chance.

Stevenson to offer new program despite finances

A traditional academic program will be available to freshmen at Stevenson High School, Prairie View, next fall in addition to the freshmen studies program. This is despite the possibility that offering the second curriculum could put Dist. 125 in the red financially.

The Dist. 125 Board of Education in a special meeting Monday night agreed to offer the traditional curriculum in response to parents who have voiced criticism of the freshmen studies program adopted two years ago.

School board members Marion Slaga, William Swanson, Edward Smith and S. Arne Carlsson voted for the measure. Board members John Balmes and Frank Clayton were against the proposal. Robert Anderson, board president, abstained. Anderson estimated it could cost up to $100,000 for additional teachers, equipment, materials and supplies to implement the traditional program. The expenses would probably put the budget for the 1974-75 school year into the red, perhaps by as much as $75,000, he said.

Dist. 125 Business Mgr. Edwin Ellis said Tuesday, however, that it may be possible to trim the budget in some areas to cover the unexpected costs of setting up the extra program, unless there is a decrease in the assessed valuation of the district.

BECAUSE LAKE COUNTY property is being assessed at 1972 levels this year, the assessed valuation of Dist. 125 is expected to remain about the same as last year or just over $105 million. Ellis said exact figures should be available in about two weeks.

The business manager said he does not anticipate a referendum to raise educational fund rate that is currently $1.28 per hundred dollars of assessed valuation.

"A referendum might be necessary if we go deeply into the red, but I wouldn't say that it's a possibility right now," he commented.

The decision to offer the traditional program stems from parental objections to approach used in the freshmen studies program to teach math, English, science and social studies.

In the program, the four subjects are integrated and taught by a team of teachers using a central theme such as communications. Within the unit, students learn facts and skills in each area.

ELLIS SAID SOME parents believe students do not gain as much knowledge in the freshmen studies program as they would in a traditional curriculum where each subject is taught separately.

In a recent survey of students who have participated in the freshmen studies program and their parents, it appeared about one third of the parents favored the traditional program. Ellis said the figures were somewhat unreliable, however, because of the wording of the questionnaire.

Determining exactly how many students will enroll in both programs is one of the problems faced by Dist. 125 administrators as they attempt to set up the traditional program and work out scheduling before Aug. 28, the first day

'Key' students in new club

Service to the school and community is the goal of a newly organized group of students at Buffalo Grove High School called the KEY Club.

The name stands for Kiwanis Educates Youth and the club is sponsored by the Kiwanis Club of Wheeling Township.

Besides undertaking projects to better the local high school and benefit the village, another purpose of the club is to develop leadership and initiative among members, according to Jeff Rosenzweig, club president.

The club, which includes 15 sophomores, juniors and seniors, is making plans for setting up programs for youngsters in the area and senior citizens.

ROSENZWEIG SAID the group hopes to organize a "buddy program" in which members of the club would act as a sort of big brother to a child, taking him or her to baseball games, the beach or doing other similar things. Tentatively, the club plans to seek children who have only one parent, such as working mother, who isn't able to spend a lot of time with her son or daughter.

Visiting local senior citizen homes such as Addolorata Villa in Wheeling is also on the club's schedule.

Next fall, the group hopes to foster an awareness of good health at the high school by sponsoring programs about venereal disease and other problems.

Residents will soon begin seeing members of the club at the Buffalo Grove Mall and other area shopping centers selling drink holders designed for use in automobiles to raise money for service projects. The group also will aid the local Kiwanis clubs in the annual fund-raising Peanut Day next September.

Rosenzweig said besides the projects being considered by the group, the club is also open to suggestions for other ways of serving the school and community.

"We're just waiting to help serve and we'd like people to come to us with things we could do," he said. Rosenzweig added that the club is available to work with other local charitable organizations already involved in programs.

THE KEY CLUB IS open to all Buffalo Grove High School students and Rosenzweig said the group is looking for other teenagers who would like to join. The only qualification for membership is that members maintain a reasonable grade average in order to have time to devote to projects.

Anyone interested in becoming a member of the club or using its services may contact Rosenzweig at 255-2155.

Man, 20, charged in hit, run accident

A Buffalo Grove man is facing four charges from two police departments after he allegedly was involved in a hit-and-run accident this week.

Mark A. Rispano, 20, of 2 Villa Verde Dr., Buffalo Grove, was charged by Arlington Heights Police with improper lane usage, leaving the scene of an accident and failure to give information to police. Buffalo Grove police charged him with disorderly conduct in connection with filing a false police report.

According to the police departments, Rispano was the driver of a hit-and-run car Monday night and attempted to cover it up by reporting his car stolen early Tuesday morning.

Arlington Heights Police said Rispano's car struck another car being driven by Rosemary Krizan of Arlington Heights, as she was westbound on Central Road near Cleveland Avenue.

Buffalo Grove Police said Rispano telephoned their department early Tuesday morning and reported that his car had been stolen some time after 5 p.m. Monday.

Rispano later surrendered to Arlington Heights Police and reportedly admitted being the driver of the car.

He was issued the three citations and was released after posting his driver's license as bond. He is scheduled to appear in Arlington Heights branch of Circuit Court Aug. 14.

The Buffalo Grove charge carried a $25 bond. He is to appear in court Aug. 13 to answer the charge.

'Traditional' program set

school. Ellis said methods of surveying parents of the 300 incoming freshmen are being considered. The current estimate is that about 100 parents of students will opt for the traditional program while the rest will choose the freshmen studies program.

The business manager said the traditional program is being offered somewhat reluctantly because of the enthusiasm shown in the past by students for the freshmen studies program.

Ellis added that Dis. 123 officials have received many letters from parents since the freshmen studies program was implemented, saying that for the first time their children really wanted to go to school.

"WE DON'T SAY THAT the freshmen studies program is perfect. In fact, we recommended changes this spring such as including structured math classes, but we don't want to dampen the enthusiasm for the program," he said.

The action to establish the traditional freshmen program also takes into account proposals made to the school board over the past two months by citizens' committees established to consider, besides the freshmen studies program, math instruction and functions of guidance counselors.

The school board approved suggestions from the freshmen studies committee and the math committee and decided that:

• The freshmen curriculum will include both general math and first year algebra.

• Classes will meet for a minimum of 35 minutes per week.

• Standardized tests will be given to all algebra and geometry students.

• Placement in freshman math classes will be based on a prognostic test, a basic achievement test, parental wishes and recommendations from the students' eighth grade instructor.

• Results of any math testing will be relayed back to the student's elementary school, showing his standing as compared to scores of the total class. No individual names will be used and no comparison between elementary schools will be made.

• Freshmen offerings in English will be expanded, with added emphasis on vocabulary, spelling and writing skills.

A proposal to require two years of math for all Stevenson students as a requirement for graduation was referred to the education committee of the school board for further study.

Only three of 13 recommendations made by the guidance committee were acted upon by the board Monday night. The remaining suggestions will be discussed at the next regular school board meeting at 8 p.m. Monday at the high school.

1,000 youths will compete in athletics

More than 1,000 youths will participate Saturday in a regional sports meet sponsored by the Buffalo Grove Jaycees.

The boys and girls will be participating in 42 track and field events. The meet will be at the Buffalo Grove athletic field, Dundee and Arlington Heights roads, starting at 8:30 a.m.

The participants, 32 of which are from the Buffalo Grove area, are winners of earlier local meets. Admission is free.

Youth bureau 'turns corner'

Omni-House: Youth Services Bureau is two-thirds of the way home in its quest for $50,000 in state funds for next year.

The grant application was unanimously approved Tuesday by the Chicago-Cook County Criminal Justice Commission, following earlier approval by a subcommittee of the commission.

The Illinois Law Enforcement Commission will make the final decision on the local counseling agency's request later this summer.

Originally, Omni-House and other youth services bureaus operating under the auspices of the ILEC were to be partially supported by state funds for only two years. Through the efforts of the Omni-House staff and other service bureau officials, the third-year funding recently was set up.

In addition to the $50,000 Omni-House hopes to receive from the ILEC, the agency will need to raise about $142,000 in local contributions to meet its budget for next year, said Peter Digre, executive director.

Village questions use of property for batting cages

by JERRY THOMAS

Elk Grove Village Pres. Charles Zettek called the first strike on an Elk Grove Boys Baseball Assn. plan to construct three batting cages on village property and charge for their use.

Zettek Tuesday pointed out that he was in favor of the association using batting cages to train its players but had "serious reservations" about allowing the use of the village land for a permanent money-making venture for the club.

"I question the wisdom of letting you use village property at no cost, while conducting a commercial venture. Perhaps it is legal, since your association is a not-for-profit organization, but it could lead to nothing but problems and probably requests from other groups who would like to do the same thing," said Zettek at the village board meeting.

Zettek suggested that Tony Keyes, a member of the association who broached the subject to the board Tuesday, urge officers of the boys club to submit an explanatory letter to the board clearly outlining its plans for the venture before going further with plans. Several members of the board suggested a meeting with officers of the association.

THURSTEE Edward Kenna said he was concerned that the installation of batting cages would create a carnival type atmosphere.

The association plans to call for locating the facility in an area between the senior citizens housing development and a football field behind the Grove Shopping Center near the Arlington Heights and Biesterfeld roads intersection.

Keyes said the three 75-foot long batting cages with pitching machines would be placed side by side on a concrete slab about 75 feet by 45 feet.

Each cage would be 15 feet wide and completely enclosed. He said the area

Moonlighting policemen to patrol Cosman Lake

Moonlighting Elk Grove Village police will be hired by the Elk Grove Estates Homeowners Assn. to provide extra patrol and surveillance to the Cosman Lake area and common property.

Increased incidents of vandalism and trespassing on the private property and lake area prompted the association to seek aid from the village.

John Woods of the homeowners was turned down by the village board Tuesday when he requested it allow uniformed "moonlighting" Elk Grove Village police working for the organization to wear their village police uniform while on patrol.

However, the board did approve his request to allow off-duty police to work for the association.

VILLAGE PRES. Charles Zettek, explained that a village policy prohibits police from wearing their uniforms while working an extra job. "While working for a private association a moonlighting patrolman would not have police powers," he added.

"While the policeman is on duty as an employee of the association he could be identified as on duty by a passing citizen and this could create problems," said Zettek.

Neighborhood drug program set for fall

A neighborhood drug awareness program will be started this fall through the Schaumburg Township Committee on Youth.

The program will be sponsored by a host couple who will invite two to six couples to their home for a discussion about drugs with at least two youth workers from the area.

COY will present the idea of the program at the September meeting of the Schaumburg Area Council of PTAs to seek their support. Through the PTAs, COY will get hosts for the programs and work with the PTA health and safety committees to keep the program active.

Youth workers have been working with William Shatkus, principal at Dooley School in Schaumburg Township Dist. 54, to formulate the program. The idea was presented at a recent Dist. 54 Drug Abuse Committee meeting where it received support and where it was suggested that COY present the program through the PTA's.

The informal atmosphere and small number of people should help put people at ease to discuss drugs, said Claudia Tull, Outreach worker. She said by getting neighbors and friends together to discuss drugs, adults might be less afraid to ask questions about their neighborhood situation.

The program will include a short presentation by the workers describing the drugs in the area, services available to youth and presentation of a series of films.

Balloons to fly away in contest Saturday

Up and away! Balloons will start sailing from Lions Park, 180 Kennedy Blvd., Elk Grove Village, at 11:30 a.m. Saturday.

Registration for the annual Elk Grove Village Park District balloon-flying contest will begin at 10:30 a.m., at the park. As balloons leave the ground, they will carry cards with contestants' names and addresses. Each card asks the finder to mail the card when the balloon comes down.

The contestant whose balloon travels the farthest will win an airplane ride. Runnersup also will receive airplane rides.

Boundary committee's report

New students would crowd 'only Jay'

by FRAN SLIMMER
Already overcrowded John Jay School in Mount Prospect is the only Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 school that would suffer from additional students from new and planned apartment complexes within its boundaries, district boundary committee members agreed Tuesday.

A boundary change would be one way to solve the problem, a committee member said, although another also suggested mobile classrooms. Committee members will present alternatives and may select one at the next meeting, Tuesday, July 16, at 7:30 p.m. at the Dist. 59 administration building.

Six complexes are expected to be built within Jay School's boundaries during the next two years, and could provide between 100 and 200 new students. Erwin Poklaski, committee vice chairman, computed the number using multipliers — figuring, for example, six-tenths of a child for every three-and four-bedroom apartment.

The school's capacity is 590 students, and its principal predicts an enrollment of 617, without new construction, for the 1974-75 school year. Committee members figured maximum enrollment for the following two years, both with and without construction, and in all cases found it exceeded capacity.

IF KINDERGARTEN enrollment remained stable for the next few years, there could be 618 students in 1975-76 and 719 with new construction, the committee estimated. There could be 636 students the following year, 806 with new construction.

"These are definitely worse-case figures," Committee Member Emil Bahnamer said.

"There's no way a school with a 600 capacity could handle 800 students," Committee Secretary Jan Schulz said. She is also assistant secretary at Jay. "Some boundary change is in order," she suggested.

However, she said, the change should only be around the new apartment complexes, to be built near Algonquin and Busse roads.

The children aren't there yet, so they wouldn't be switching schools, Mrs. Schulz said. Only three Jay students live in that area, in the partially finished Crystal Towers complex, she said, and they could be given options to finish at Jay or go to another school.

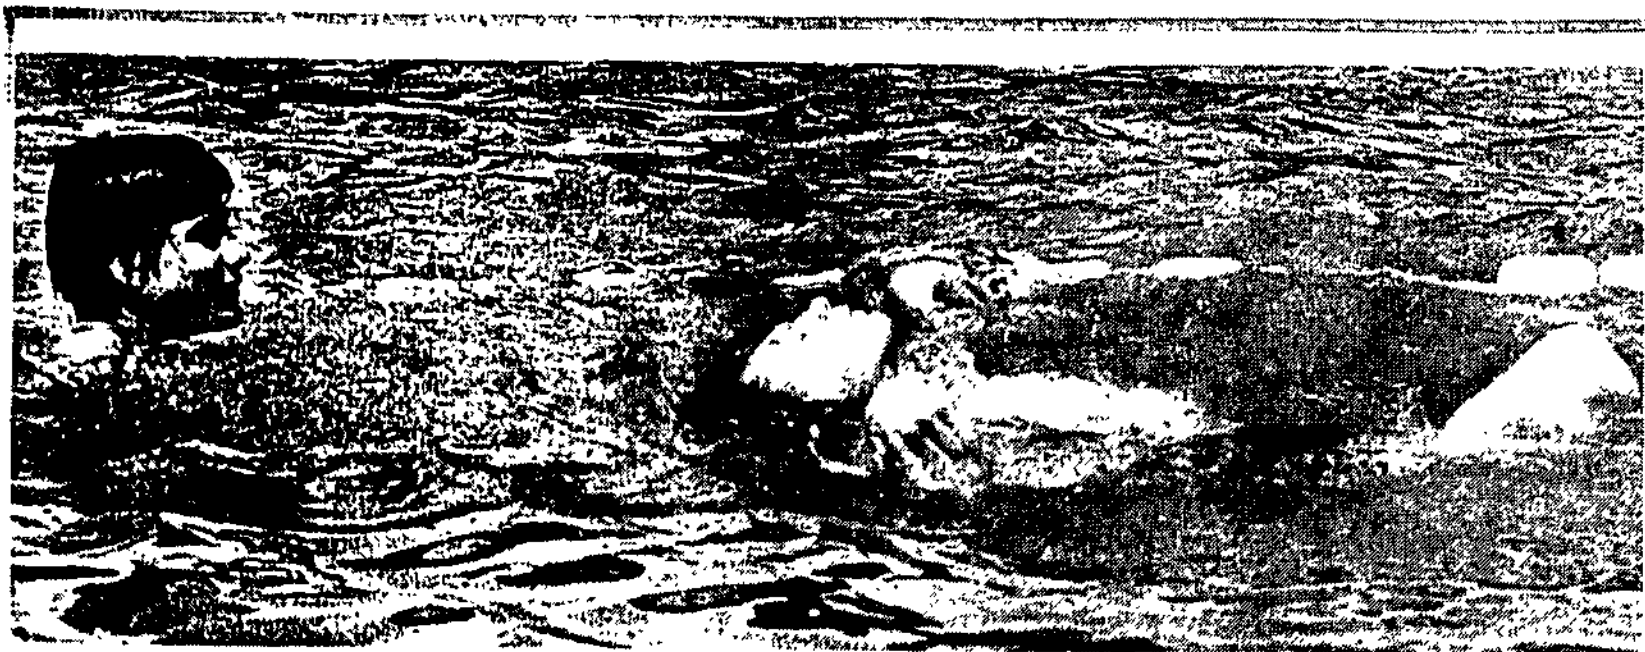

THE STUDENTS who would live in that area would be bused anyway, because it would be too dangerous for them to cross busy Busse or Algonquin roads, another committee member, Mary Kloster said. Students could be bused to Jay or another less crowded school, she said.

At least seven other complexes are planned within the boundaries of four other schools: Robert Frost and Forest View in Mount Prospect and Mark Hopkins and Rupley in Elk Grove Village. However, when the committee predicted maximum enrollment for the next three years, none of the four were over capacity.

Poklaski adjourned the meeting, asking members to come up with alternatives to overcrowding at Jay. After the adjournment, however, members discussed using mobile classrooms at Jay and moving the mobiles to other schools later if they become overcrowded. Members decided to check into costs and try to find teachers or administrators in the district who have had experience with mobile classrooms.

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS police Sgt. Richard Reid, director of the North West Police Academy, administers the oath to the 19 graduates Wednesday in ceremonies at the Arlington Park Towers Hotel. The academy is supported by 21 area suburbs and provides training to their new patrolmen. Capt. Irvin McDougal, of the Arlington Heights police and past president of the Illinois Police Assn., was the keynote speaker at the ceremony.

by JOE SWICKARD

The girl with the large blue eyes looked up and said, "Hi. You're the one who invented this, aren't you?" Kevin Kendrigan looked down, smiled and gave the girl a conspiratorial wink. "Yes. But don't tell anyone. It's a secret."

The "secret" Kendrigan was winking about is the Northwest Special Recreation Assn. Summer Day Camp. As director of the six-month-old association, Kendrigan could be called the man who "invented" the summer activities program in the Northwest suburbs.

The camp, which began in June and runs six weeks, provides recreational opportunities for children with handicaps or learning disabilities. Its main purpose, Kendrigan said, is to help the children "express themselves in activities as close to the normal population as possible."

THE ASSOCIATION is funded by nine area park districts for its administrative expenses. Wheeling and Palatine townships have given $15,000 and $10,000, respectively, to the association. Elk Grove Township has made a tentative commitment of $15,000.

The township's monies are used to pay for the activities such as the camp in summer and after-school and weekend programs during the fall and winter.

Five special camps serve 120 children this summer. The camps, at different locations throughout the three townships, offer programs for the visually handicapped, the physically handicapped and a joint camp for youngsters and children with learning disabilities.

Nonambulatory youths have a Saturday-only program at the Kirk Center in Palatine. All the other camps operate five days a week for six hours.

"One reason it's that long is to give the parents a chance to be by themselves for a while. It gives them a chance to go shopping or run errands or whatever without taking their child along," Kendrigan said.

THE CAMPS hardly are glorified babysitters, though.

At Recreation Park in Arlington Heights children were making full use of the facilities.

Because of the heat wave, the visually impaired youngsters were taking an extra-long session in the swimming pool. Jody Sticken, an instructor of the visually impaired during the school year, was testing the children in the pool.

Bob Holland, totally sightless, was going through his paces for a certificate as an advanced beginning swimmer. Treading water and the frontal float offered no problem for him, but there was some difficulty with the backstroke.

Using the pool-diving rope as a touch point, Bob completed his necessary 1 1/2 widths to pass, with a minimum of straying and course corrections.

Part of the camp for the sightless to the legally blind was in the pool, diving, splashing or practicing on kickboards.

"IT'S IMPORTANT to them. Many of them have never had their head under water before," Kendrigan said. To illustrate the point a boy leaped in the pool and started turning waterborne somersaults.

Prior to swimming these children had been tumbling and working out on the mats in the park field house.

Instructor Ed Guttman had the other campers under the trees for rest period after relay races. The children rest about as much as any child will on a beautiful summer day.

There are swings nearby, coloring books and tales to be discussed from the earlier story hour. Later it would be their turn in the pool followed by arts and crafts.

The activities are designed to strengthen their skills and coordination. Softball and tumbling improves body development while arts and crafts work on eye and hand coordination.

"Their self worth is improved. We have some competition for the same reason, but not for setting one against the other," Kendrigan said.

THE GAMES AND programs also give the children an opportunity to socialize, something that may not be readily available within their own neighborhood.

"Children are quick to pick up that these kids are not normal in some way. And kids can be cruel. The camp gives them a place where they can get together with other kids and have some fun," Kendrigan said.

"This is a preventive program, too. It makes them more sure of themselves, and more likely to succeed later."

And like any other summer day camp, there is a lot of setting under the trees and splashing in the pools. As the supervisors said, it is a place to give the kids a chance.

ould have permanent lighting but no parking lot. "We hope users will be able park in the nearby shopping center," he said.

Keyes said the association has not discussed prices or hours of operation. "We wanted to know how the board feels about letting us use the land first," he said.

THE BATTING CAGES and machinery sold cost the association about $26,000, said Keyes.

Although the cages could provide a instant source of funds for the association, it would take some time for the operation to pay for itself, he pointed out.

Keyes said he could not speak for the association because he was not a member of its board, but he believed the group would be agreeable to operating the batting cages free, as a recreational facility, after it had recouped installation and purchase costs.

"We even talked about letting other league or civic groups use the batting cages to make some money for their organizations," he said.

Although the board did not vote on the issue Tuesday, the discussion of the proposal drew a mixed reaction from trustees.

Keyes said he will arrange a meeting between the officers and board and at that time a more definite proposal will be outlined.

Administrative aide to run youth job service urged

An administrative assistant to direct the Youth Employment Service of Schaumburg Township was approved Tuesday for recommendation to the township revenue-sharing committee by the Committee on Youth.

The position would include direct contact with youth and agencies for YES and responsibility for the operation of YES. The person also would be responsible for completing all COY business and assisting the youth workers.

The position would be full-time and is modeled after the position in Elk Grove Village. During the past two years that Elk Grove has had a professional in this capacity, YES placements for the village have increased 400 per cent.

Since YES started in November in Schaumburg Township, 181 youths have applied for jobs and 115 have received positions through the service. These figures do not include babysitting jobs, although about 15 babysitting jobs per month have been filled through YES.

The administrative assistant would receive a starting salary of $9,000 if the current proposition is approved by the revenue-sharing committee and the Schaumburg Township Board of Auditors.

Moonlighting cops to patrol lake ation, would have to swear out a complaint against trespassers.

Trustee Edward Kenna, chairman of the judiciary, planning and zoning committee, said his committee has discussed security problems with the association.

He explained that normal police patrol of the area is not adequate because much of the commonly owned recreational property is inaccessible to patrolling policemen.

The hired patrol would be responsible for enforcing the association's private rules, not village ordinances, he added.

KENNA SAID members of the association feared hiring a private agency to patrol and instead wanted a trained officer. "You can almost make a bet that a private patrol agent with a gun on his hip would shoot someone who belongs there," said Kenna.

The homeowners association has also formally requested the village to enter the Estates areas private common property to enforce village ordinances when such violations are observed. In the past a citizen's complaint was needed.

Cosman Lake has been the scene of several incidents of boat borrowing in the past month. Police have received reports of boats released from tied moorings and found late at various parts of the lake.

Village board wrapup

Centex guarantees public upgrading

Centex Homes Corp. has filed a $1.2 million performance bond with Elk Grove Village guaranteeing the construction of public improvements in its newest area of development west of Ill. Rte. 53 near Meacham Road in Elk Grove Village.

The performance bond was issued from Safeco Insurance Companies and will be held by the village until the improvements are completed.

Plans for the 102-acre development called Winston Grove Subdivision, call for construction of 320 single-family homes. The builder received final plat approval in June.

Centex Homes Corp. has agreed to donate a fire station site near the Meacham and Nerge roads intersection, but it has not been selected as yet.

Construction of the homes is expected to start immediately.

Policeman to go to school

Lt. Richard Losch of the Elk Grove Village Police Dept. will attend a nine-month Traffic Police Administration Program at Northwestern University through an Illinois Law Enforcement Commission grant program.

Losch was appointed to the police department in January, 1961, and has been in charge of all department training for the past year. He is service division commander and trains community service officers, a new community service recently instituted by the department.

The ILEC will pay $4,979 and the village $1,506 of his total tuition and equipment costs for the program. Lt. Losch will be on paid leave during the nine-month period while he pursues the training option.

Property tax study tabled

Elk Grove Village has not dropped its study of property assessment practices at the county level, however the issue has been temporarily removed from the village board meeting agenda.

Illinois House action is not expected on a bill proposed in 1973 by local legislators that would require that all affected taxing bodies be notified during a tax appeal procedure.

Assistant Village Mgr. Robert Franz told Elk Grove Village board members Tuesday, the bill passed the Senate but is stuck in the House rules committee and local legislators do not expect action on it in this session.

The village adopted a resolution in support of the bill in April, 1973. It states that the village recommends that all affected taxing bodies be notified as part of the tax appeal process.

Franz asked that the issue be removed from the unfinished business portion of the board meeting agenda until January when house action is expected.

Municipal code on review

The Public Works Committee is reviewing changes and amendments to the municipal code regarding driveway, driveway aprons and sidewalk repairs.

The revisions should be ready for village board review and action in August. One amendment under consideration would allow homeowners to asphalt-cover driveway aprons and sidewalks in need of repair.

School discipline policy changes up for adoption

The long-discussed revisions in student discipline policy for High School Dist. 211 will be up for adoption today by the Dist. 211 Board of Education.

The board will meet at 8 p.m. in the district administration building, 1750 S. Roselle Rd., Palatine.

Among the changes in the policy being recommended by a discipline committee made up of administrators from the district's five high schools is one allowing administrators to recommend expulsion of a student for class truancy after the seventh incident, rather than after the fifth incident as provided now.

The proposed policy still includes a controversial provision that allows students to be expelled from school by the board of education for truancy. The policy has come under fire from board member Jean Flisler, who has contended that truancy does not constitute "gross disobedience and misbehavior," the only legal grounds for expulsion in Illinois.

Elks to sponsor clinic for handicapped kids

The Elk Grove Village Elks Lodge will sponsor a free evaluation clinic for physically handicapped children from 9 a.m. to noon Wednesday at the Niehoff Pavilion of Alexian Brothers Medical Center, 955 Bisner Road.

The purpose of the clinic, sponsored in cooperation with the Illinois Elks Physically Handicapped Children's Commission, is to identify any remedial problems for referral to appropriate physicians. Any family with a physically handicapped youth up to age 21 is encouraged to bring the child to the clinic. Children must be accompanied by a parent or guardian.

Dr. E. E. Gordon, chairman of the department of Rehabilitation Medicine at Alexian Brothers, will be the physician in charge.

Jones supports business efforts in downtown plan

Palatine Village Pres. Wendell E. Jones has called on free enterprise to provide the impetus for the redevelopment of downtown Palatine.

Jones asked the village board to adopt a resolution generally endorsing the proposed land use plan for downtown Palatine developed by the New Palatine Committee, a private group of downtown businessmen and land owners. The land use plan was referred to the planning, building and zoning committee of the village board for review.

"I believe that the over-all implementation of that plan will happen sooner if business leads the way than if government leads the way," said Jones.

The village will continue to have "limited responsibilities" for the redevelopment of downtown Palatine, said Jones. These include road improvements, parking facilities, utilities and enforcement of the July 1 ordinance eliminating nonconforming businesses.

A DETAILED STUDY of the parking needs of shoppers and commuters in the downtown area probably will be completed this year. Jones said the village could start providing off-street shopper parking as soon as the downtown needs are determined and start planning for the eventual construction of a parking ramp.

The Slade Street Fire Station, 117 W. Slade St., could be made available for development of a parking lot or for a trade of land, said Jones. The village has been discussing phasing out the Slade Street Fire Station for several years. Jones said he did not know if it would be necessary to construct another fire station prior to the phasing out of the Slade Street Station.

The village board Monday adopted the traffic engineering study recommendations of consultant Rolfe T. Gustus for the downtown area. The board said it would take the plans to the state for approval since most of the improvements are necessary along Palatine Road, a state road.

Jones said the village would start enforcing an ordinance immediately eliminating the use of wood frame single-family homes for business. A list of businesses operating out of former homes has been compiled by the village's planning and zoning department and turned over to Village Atty. Bradley Glass.

FOLLOWING ENDORSEMENT of the land use plan by the village board, it will go back to the New Palatine Committee for more detailed work.

Wilton Battles of Planning Horizons Inc., the village planner and consultant to the New Palatine Committee, has prepared a procedural plan to be followed for the redevelopment.

"We have developed a concept plan and the next step is a preliminary plan with details," said Battles. He said this might include a scale model and studies on parking, landscaping, roads, building heights and architecture.

The concept land use plan calls for a mix of commercial, office, recreation and multi-family residential use in an area generally bounded by Colfax Street on the north, Plum Grove Road on the east, Washington Street on the south and Smith Street on the west.

Inverness urged to get Barrington police service

A private consulting firm has recommended that Inverness seek part-time police protection from Barrington when the village's contract with Palatine police terminates in November.

The recommendation was part of a special study that the Inverness village board commissioned the firm — the Police Service Bureau — to do on crime and police protection needs of the village. The village paid the bureau $1,425 for the report, which was completed in one month.

Inverness village board members are also looking into the price and kind of police protection that can be contracted from other suburbs, such as Barrington and Hoffman Estates.

THE BOARD IS unhappy with the increased price for protection that the Palatine police have requested if the present contract is renewed. Walter Pugh, chairman of the Inverness police committee, said that the village presently is paying Palatine police $60,500 a year for protection. The requested increase would bring the cost up to $92,000 a year.

The bureau reports that the Palatine police department normally charges $65,000 to $70,000 for half-time police patrol, and that Barrington requests $40,000 for half-time services.

After surveying various suburban police and municipal officials, the bureau also recommended that Inverness maintain a 12 hour, part-time police patrol because the amount and type of crime in the village does not require a 24-hour police patrol. Palatine police presently offer Inverness 80 per cent patrol at various times around the clock. Pugh said that the village probably will have another study done to find out exactly when and where Palatine police presently patrol the village.

The bureau recommended first that Inverness check with Barrington for possible police protection. As a second alternative the bureau suggested that the village create its own police patrol, using guidelines and advice from the bureau. A third alternative offered in the report, was that Inverness contract either Palatine or Hoffman Estates for police protection, Pugh said.

In discussion with Inverness residents on the various possibilities, both the bureau and village board members found that it "was not a question of the quality of police service that Palatine is providing, but rather, the price for the service that is disturbing," Pugh said.

RUSSELL PUZEY, Inverness village board president, said the Barrington police force is equipped with a sufficient number of patrolmen to service Inverness. A recent report by BACOG (Barrington Area Council of Government) mentioned that Barrington has been expanding its police force to eventually serve most of the smaller surrounding villages, like Inverness.

Puzezy said that Palatine police have offered "adequate protection to Inverness and are eager to continue its service." He added that it was only "a question of price for police protection that was of concern to the board."

Palatine police chief Jerry Bratcher was not available for comment on the report.

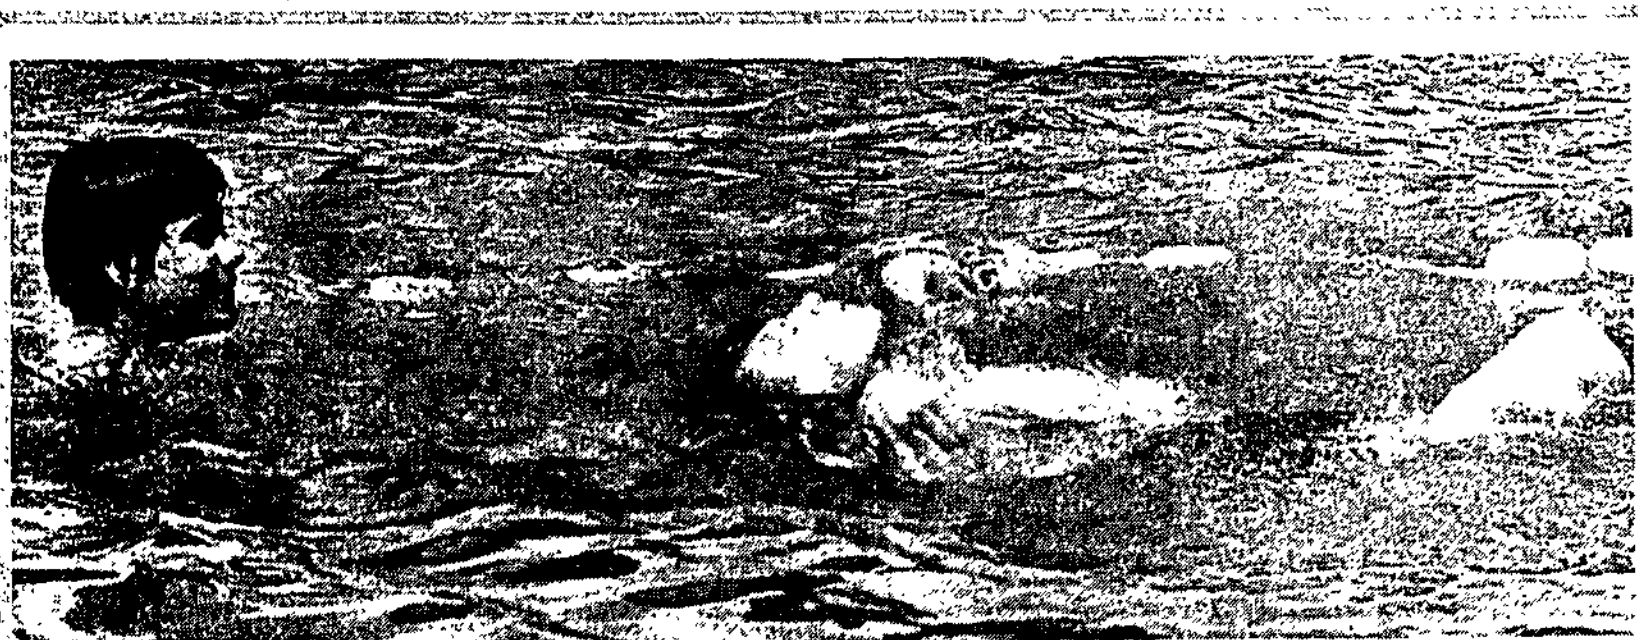

The Inverness board's police committee will review the Police Service Bureau report and make recommendations to the board for action at the August 13 meeting.

Youth pleads guilty to six burglaries

A Palatine youth was convicted this week for six burglaries he committed in Palatine between October and December, 1973.

Terry Reynolds, 17, 242 N. Cady, was found guilty of six counts of burglary and one count of arson after a plea of guilty in the Skokie branch of the Circuit Court. Presiding Chief Judge Harold Sullivan sentenced Reynolds to five years of probation, restitution and court costs, and six months assignment to a work-release program where he will work on weekdays and serve time on the weekends.

Reynolds pleaded guilty to stealing cash, goods and equipment from Palatine commercial businesses, which included West LaGrange Electric, Montgomery Ward and Co. and the Willow Creek Marathon.

Kevin Kendrigan looked down, smiled and gave the girl a conspiratorial wink. "Yes. But don't tell anyone. It's a secret."

The "secret" Kendrigan was winking about is the Northwest Special Recreation Assn. Summer Day Camp. As director of the six-month-old association, Kendrigan could be called the man who "invented" the summer activities program in the Northwest suburbs.

The camp, which began in June and runs six weeks, provides recreational opportunities for children with handicaps or learning disabilities. Its main purpose, Kendrigan said, is to help the children "express themselves in activities as close to the normal population as possible."

THE ASSOCIATION is funded by nine area park districts for its administrative expenses. Wheeling and Palatine townships have given $15,000 and $10,000, respectively, to the association. Elk Grove Township has made a tentative commitment of $15,000.

The township's monies are used to pay for the activities such as the camp in summer and after-school and weekend programs during the fall and winter.

Five special camps serve 120 children this summer. The camps, at different locations throughout the three townships, offer programs for the visually handicapped, the physically handicapped and a joint camp for youngsters and children with learning disabilities.

Nonambulatory youths have a Saturday-only program at the Kirk Center in Palatine. All the other camps operate five days a week for six hours.

"One reason it's that long is to give the parents a chance to be by themselves for a while. It gives them a chance to go shopping or run errands or whatever without taking their child along," Kendrigan said.

THE CAMPS hardly are glorified babysitters, though.

At Recreation Park in Arlington Heights children were making full use of the facilities.

Because of the heat wave, the visually impaired youngsters were taking an extra-long session in the swimming pool. Jody Slicker, an instructor of the visually impaired during the school year, was testing the children in the pool.

Bob Holland, totally sightless, was going through his paces for a certificate as an advanced beginning swimmer. Treading water and the frontal float offered no problem for him, but there was some difficulty with the backstroke.

Using the pool-diving rope as a touch point, Bob completed his necessary 1½ widths to pass, with a minimum of straying and course corrections.

Part of the camp for the sightless to the legally blind was in the pool, diving, splashing or practicing on kickboards.

"IT'S IMPORTANT to them. Many of them have never had their head under water before," Kendrigan said. To illustrate the point a boy leaped in the pool and started turning waterborne somersaults.

Prior to swimming these children had been tumbling and working out on the mats in the park field house.

Instructor Ed Guttman had the other campers under the trees for rest period after relay races. The children rest about as much as any child will on a beautiful summer day.

There are swings nearby, coloring books and tales to be discussed from the earlier story hour. Later it would be their turn in the pool followed by arts and crafts.

The activities are designed to strengthen their skills and coordination. Softball and tumbling improves body development while arts and crafts work on eye and hand coordination.

"Their self worth is improved. We have some competition for the same reason, but not for setting one against the other," Kendrigan said.

THE GAMES AND programs also give the children an opportunity to socialize, something that may not be readily available within their own neighborhood.

"Children are quick to pick up that these kids are not normal in some way. And kids can be cruel. The camp gives them a place where they can get together with other kids and have some fun," Kendrigan said. "This is a preventive program, too. It makes them more sure of themselves, and more likely to succeed later."

And like any other summer day camp, there is a lot of setting under the trees and splashing in the pools. As the supervisors said, it is a place to give the kids a chance.

Inverness police vote Aug. 10

Residents of Inverness will go to the polls Aug. 10 to decide whether to have a special tax for police protection in the village.

The Inverness Village Board believes that too much of the village's general funds are being used to pay for police protection. Road work and improvement projects are being delayed due to the lack of general municipal funds.

A special tax for the village's 2,000 residents would provide the approximate $50,000 that the village will need to pay for part-time police protection each year beginning next year.

According to state law, the village has the power to levy a tax for police protection which can be up to 40 cents per $100 assessed valuation, or $70,000, with voter approval.

Village Board President Russell Puzezy, said that it is important that the village "exercise this right under law to maintain and improve its present police protection."

The only polling place for the election will be at the village hall located in the fieldhouse at the north end of Highland Road, and will be open from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Inverness presently pays the Palatine Police Dept. $60,500 a year for full-time protection. Based on the advice of a local police consultant firm, the Inverness Village Board is seeking future part-time protection for the village, possibly from another suburban police department.

The village's contract with Palatine terminates in November.

Protest over longer programs

Clerks' strike delays races

A wildcat strike by parimutuel clerks delayed the start of the first race at Arlington Park Race Track by about 10 minutes Wednesday.

Ticket sellers and cashiers are reportedly unhappy about recently lengthened programs at the race track.

Many of the men behind the betting windows at Arlington also work evenings at Sportsman's Park in Cicero and are disturbed by the longer daytime program at Arlington.

Talks between the parimutuel clerks' union and Arlington Park officials were scheduled to be held Wednesday night. Ticket sellers reportedly want the last race to start at Arlington no later than 5:30 p.m. The scheduled post time of the last race Wednesday was 5:50 p.m.

A race track spokesman said Wednesday that the time between races had been lengthened on Tuesday because too many fans were being "shut out" at the betting windows.

School board hires new transportation director

A new director of transportation was hired by the Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 School Board last night to replace Walt Tinsley who died suddenly last week.

Don Weldner, formerly general manager of Ritzenthaler Bus Line, will start work in the district Aug. 1.

He was chosen from a total of three well-qualified candidates, according to director of personnel and informational services Paul Jung.

Weldner has worked for Ritzenthaler for the past 10 years. During the last six years he was in charge of the Arlington Heights and Wheeling terminals. These terminals served five school districts and several parochial schools, using more than 100 buses.

Weldner's salary for the coming year will be $18,500.

Between Tinsley's death and Aug. 1 one of the Dist. 15 principals, Martin Moon, has assumed the responsibilities of director of transportation.

No change in bus services is expected because of the change in personnel.

HOWEVER, the board also approved later starting times for Dist. 15 schools in the coming year. Most schools will begin at 8:30 a.m. and finish at 3 p.m. This is in response to a request from the state office of Superintendent of Public Instruction.

Children were going to school in the dark during part of the last school year because of the change from central standard to daylight savings time.

The only Dist. 15 school not starting at 8:30 a.m. will be Lake Louise, Sanborn-Wood and Willow Bend which will all start at 8:15 a.m. and end at 3:30 p.m. All four junior highs will start at 9:15 a.m. and finish at 4 p.m.

Revised Old Madrid plans to be reviewed tonight

Revised plans for the development of the 66-acre Old Madrid complex will be before the Palatine Zoning Board of Appeals again tonight for review.

No decision on the revised plans is expected by the zoning board at its meeting at 8 p.m. in the Slade Street Fire Station, 117 W. Slade St.

Representatives of Sellergren Inc., the developer, have been asked by the board to have answers to several questions the board posed two weeks ago. The board has asked the developer for a marketing study of the proposed development, landscaping and buffer plans, a construction timetable, establishment of a homeowners' association and reduction in parking in the commercial area.

Sellergren is asking to have the plans changed from the approved four 14-story apartment buildings and 26-acre commercial area to an 18-acre commercial area, 8-acre office area, 10-acre recreation area and nine condominium buildings ranging in height from five to seven stories.

Park district offers mobile recreation

The Salt Creek Park District now is offering a mobile recreation program to residents of Palatine Township.

The Mobile Recreation Unit will visit the Willow Creek Apartments Mondays, the Brookwood Apartments Tuesdays and the Arlington Park Race Track Mondays and Fridays, and will be open between 9 and 11:30 a.m.

Thursdays will be left open for a different site each week.

Park district plans Snoopy dog contest

The Palatine Park District will sponsor Snoopy's All-Star Contest on Saturday, July 20 at Community Park, 262 E. Palatine Rd.

Palatine youngsters interested in entering their dogs in the event must be 16 years old or younger. The dogs must be more than 6 months old.

Entry blanks are available at Community Park and must be returned by noon Friday, July 19.

The show will begin at 11 a.m. Awards will be given for dogs with the best costume, best tricks, smallest and largest dogs, the hairiest dogs, the best-groomed dog and the liveliest puppy.

Jaycees' Fourth donations hit $1,484

The Palatine Jaycees collected $1,484.67 in donations from residents at the Independence Day fireworks display last Thursday evening.

The money will be used to pay for the 50-minute fireworks display which cost $2,000. The entire day of Fourth of July activities sponsored by the Jaycees cost the organization $8,000.

Special census planned for Sept. 4 start

The long-awaited Rolling Meadows special census has been tentatively scheduled for Sept. 4, a spokesman for the U.S. Census Bureau in Chicago said Wednesday.

The census, originally authorized by the Rolling Meadows City Council in October, is being conducted to determine the population increase in the city since the last federal census in 1970.

Among other benefits, the city will receive additional state income and motor fuel tax rebates if the census shows an increase in population.

City officials have speculated the population may be as high as 25,000 persons, almost 6,000 more than the 19,178 reported in 1970.

THE 1970-75 BUDGET indicates the city expects to receive $175,000 in state income tax and $150,000 in motor fuel tax funds.

The city receives about $15 per person in tax rebates.

If the census figures show a population larger than 25,000, the city could be classified as home-rule community, giving it more power in making its own legislative decisions.

Increased population figures could have other ramifications for the city.

STATE STATUTES require cities with populations between 20,000 and 30,000 to have seven wards. The city now has five.

This would require the city to draw new ward boundary lines before elections next spring.

The cost of the census has been estimated at more than $8,000, based on estimated population figures.

The expected increases will probably come from developments built within the city since 1970, which include the Three Fountain condominiums, the Kingswalk, Brookwood, and Georgetown apartments, and Winthrop Village, Tall Oaks Dawn-gate, and Creekside subdivisions.

Three interviewed for sanitarian job

Three persons have been interviewed for the position of Rolling Meadows sanitarian, left vacant by the resignation of Donald Schindler, but Mayor Roland Meyer said a replacement may not be named.

Meyer said he would only be able to appoint a successor for the duration of his term of office, which expires April 30, and as a result, he may have difficulty persuading a potential candidate to take the Rolling Meadows post.

He said the city is also considering hiring an outside firm to handle the sanitarian's duties.

Meyer declined to name the sanitarian applicants because they are employed in other communities.

Schindler began working at a new position near Crivitz, Wis., July 1. He had been Rolling Meadows Sanitarian since 1971.

The sanitarian is responsible for health inspections, pollution control, pest control, and enforcement of health and sanitation codes.

Inverness urged to get Barrington police service

A private consulting firm has recommended that Inverness seek part-time police protection from Barrington when the village's contract with Palatine police terminates in November.

The recommendation was part of a special study that the Inverness village board commissioned the firm — the Police Service Bureau — to do on crime and police protection needs of the village. The village paid the bureau $1,425 for the report, which was completed in one month.

Inverness village board members are also looking into the price and kind of police protection that can be contracted from other suburbs, such as Barrington and Hoffman Estates.

THE BOARD is unhappy with the increased price for protection that the Palatine police have requested if the present contract is renewed. Walter Pugh, chairman of the Inverness police committee, said that the village presently is paying Palatine police $60,500 a year for protection. The requested increase would bring the cost up to $92,000 a year.

The bureau reports that the Palatine police department normally charges $65,000 to $70,000 for half-time police patrol, and that Barrington requests $40,000 for half-time services.

After surveying various suburban police and municipal officials, the bureau also recommended that Inverness maintain a 12 hour, part-time police patrol because the amount and type of crime in the village does not require a 24-hour police patrol. Palatine police presently offer Inverness 80 per cent patrol at various times around the clock. Pugh said that the village probably will have another study done to find out exactly when and where Palatine police presently patrol the village.

The bureau recommended first that Inverness check with Barrington for possible police protection. As a second alternative the bureau suggested that the village create its own police patrol, using guidelines and advice from the bureau. A third alternative offered in the report, was that Inverness contract either Palatine or Hoffman Estates for police protection, Pugh said.

In discussion with Inverness residents on the various possibilities, both the bureau and village board members found that it "was not a question of the quality of police service that Palatine is providing, but rather, the price for the service that is disturbing," Pugh said.

RUSSELL PUZEY, Inverness village board president, said the Barrington police force is equipped with a sufficient number of patrolmen to service Inverness. A recent report by BACOG (Barrington Area Council of Government) mentioned that Barrington has been expanding its police force to eventually serve most of the smaller surrounding villages, like Inverness.

Puzezy said that Palatine police have offered "adequate protection to Inverness and are eager to continue its service." He added that it was only "a question of price for police protection that was of concern to the board."

Palatine police chief Jerry Bratcher was not available for comment on the report.

The Inverness board's police committee will review the Police Service Bureau report and make recommendations to the board for action at the August 13 meeting.

Inverness to vote Aug. 10 on special tax for police

Residents of Inverness will go to the polls Aug. 10 to decide whether to have a special tax for police protection in the village.

City acts to change its sign ordinance

The Rolling Meadows City Council Tuesday passed an amendment to the city's sign ordinance allowing billboards to be erected to identify industries under construction.

No more than two billboards will be allowed per construction site, with each billboard extending no more than 15 feet off the ground.

The signs cannot be left standing longer than two years.

Discipline policy change studied

The long-discussed revisions in student discipline policy for High School Dist. 211 will be up for adoption today by the Dist. 211 Board of Education.

The board will meet at 8 p.m. in the district administration building, 1750 S. Roselle Rd., Palatine.

Among the changes in the policy being recommended by a discipline committee made up of administrators from the district's five high schools is one allowing administrators to recommend expulsion of a student for class truancy after the seventh incident, rather than after the fifth incident as provided now.

The proposed policy still includes a controversial provision that allows students to be expelled from school by the board of education for truancy. The policy has come under fire from board member Jean Flister, who has contended that truancy does not constitute "gross disobedience and misbehavior," the only legal grounds for expulsion in Illinois.

The discipline policy was the subject of several public meetings this spring at which parents, teachers and school administrators discussed the problem.

Heritage Center developers ask village for time

Developers of the proposed 2,400-unit Heritage Center are questioning feasibility of the project and asked the Schaumburg zoning board of appeals Wednesday for more time.

The development is planned for a 12-acre Schaumburg Road site just west of the Civic Center. The land, now owned by William Lampert, is under contract purchase by American Home Building Guild-Illinois.

Preliminary designs call for three 12-story buildings plus a number of mid-rise and two-story structures and a shopping center.

Though petitioners were asked to return to the zoning board Aug. 21, chairman Russell Parker opened the meeting to questions from about 75 Lancer Park single-family homeowners.

John Cieslinski, 314 Gareth Lane, presented petitions signed by 270 residents who object to the development which, if approved, would be built just north of their property.

"THE REQUEST to rezone we regard as harmful to the environmental quality of the area. We feel that it would place an unusual burden on traffic patterns, educational facilities, sewerage and water systems and other public utilities and urge you not to approve the request," Cieslinski said.

Eldon Prothe, 400 Summit Drive, called for a moratorium on all Schaumburg zoning actions until an investigation of the village by the office of the U.S. Atty. James R. Thompson has been completed.

Though zoners did not respond to Prothe's suggestions, an attorney for American Home Building Guild-Illinois assured residents the firm is not under federal investigation.

Parker and other board members emphasized that they have not yet received completed plans for the development and are not ready to make a decision.

Developer's representatives reportedly advised Schaumburg Dist. 54 this week that they have no plans to make either a money or land donation to the elementary school system.

The developers feel the 40-acre cultural civic center site donated to the village by Lambert in 1970 is adequate, a school spokesman said.

LUSH GREEN PASTURE along Schaumburg Road east of buildings if plans for Heritage Center, a 2,400-unit of the Civic Center will be replaced with high-rise housing and commercial development are realized.

K-Mart center architecture under study

The Hoffman Estates Plan Commission appeared Wednesday night to have gained architectural control over all buildings in a proposed K-Mart shopping center except the K-Mart store itself.

The center is proposed for the east side of Gannon Drive over 20 acres, stretching between Higgins and Golf roads. The view from the village municipal building east would look directly into the rear of the K-Mart building.

Representatives from E. N. Maisel and Assoc., developers for S. S. Kresge's K-Mart stores agreed to return for a special plan commission meeting at 8 p.m. next Wednesday to give a final answer on the architectural control question.

They indicated this week they believe the proposal would be acceptable to K-Mart. Under the plan Maisel is to bring architectural drawings for K-Mart building to next week's meeting and accept suggestions from the commission for changes members might desire. There is no guarantee those suggestions will be followed, but spokesmen say they would pass them along to K-Mart.

For the rest of the center — which will include a grocery store and smaller shops — the plan commission meeting as an architectural committee would have authority to demand architectural changes to provide compatibility with surrounding property.

IF MAISEL DISPUTED the demands, the commission planning consultant and Maisel's planner would jointly select a third architect to arbitrate the issues of disagreement.

Maisel also agreed to a tentative schedule for landscaping the property. Under the plan all perimeter landscaping would be in by May 15 next year and interior landscaping would be in by May 15 of the year following occupancy of the specific buildings.

K-Mart is seeking annexation of nine acres and rezoning of an adjoining 11 acres to provide a total 20-acre site with commercial zoning.

After plan commission hearings conclude the commission will submit a recommendation on K-Mart's petition to the village board.

TV, stereo, cash stolen from home

Burglars made off with about $1,720 worth of items Wednesday from the Richard Spak home, 150 Grissom Ln., Hoffman Estates.

Taken in the burglary were a portable television set, stereo equipment and $120 in cash, police were told.

Spak told authorities that the break-in occurred sometime between 8:30 p.m. Tuesday and 1 a.m. Wednesday.

Jones Road to stay open

Temporary closing of Jones Road has been indefinitely postponed but not affect the start of the Schaumburg-Hoffman Estates joint reconstruction project.

"We have decided against closing Jones Road because of lack of settlement of the cement truckdrivers' strike but will begin curb and gutter work there this week," explained Schaumburg Village Engineer Joseph Zgonina.

Zgonina earlier had announced plans to close the road Wednesday for approximately two months in order to proceed with work as quickly as possible.

He said the road will remain open to local traffic while curb and gutter work is in progress and a closing date will be announced as soon as the strike is settled.

Construction is being done by Du-Co Engineering, a subsidiary of Hoffman-Rosner Corp. with Schaumburg paying 39.7 per cent of the $289,332 total project cost.

Hoffman parks to consider Cottonwood parking area

The Hoffman Estates Park Board Tuesday will consider installation of a concrete apron for parking in Cottonwood Park to prevent possible congestion when an athletic group uses the park this fall.

The building and grounds committee will recommend the park board approve a concrete apron on Parkview Lane to the park be installed at a cost not to exceed $300. It will also be recommended that a maximum of 40 vehicles be allowed to park on the grass when the Hoffman Estates Athletic Assn. holds its football games for nine Saturdays this fall.

Residents along Parkview Lane have in the past complained to the park district about too many cars being parked on their street when athletic contests are played.

Fred Weaver, chairman of the building and grounds committee, said the 40 residents in the Parkview Lane area will be notified by letter of the plan. Weaver encouraged members of the HEAA to tell its members about parking procedures permitting parking only on one side of the street.

COMR. GEORGE RUSII, the other member of the committee, explained HEAA members could possibly park on Hassell Road or at the nearby fire station to prevent congestion near the park.

Flyers to explain Aug. 3 vote

Small campaign planned for fire transfer referendum

Only a limited information campaign is planned in advance of the Aug. 3 referendum in Winston Knolls and Windemere concerning the transfer from Palatine Rural to the Hoffman Estates Fire Protection District.

Dryle Rathman, Hoffman Estates trustee and chairman of a joint village — fire district committee, Wednesday said efforts to support the referendum probably will be limited to a hand-delivered flyer explaining the details of the referendum. The Winston Knolls Homeowners Assn. has volunteered its members to distribute the flyer, said Rathman.

Committee members will work individually this weekend to develop information to be included on the handout. They will meet again at 7 p.m. Monday to correlate their ideas, and in later sessions to draft the text of the flyer.

THE REFERENDUM is one step being taken to bring all areas of the village under the service jurisdiction of the Hoffman Estates district.

Other areas of the village which lie outside Hoffman Estates Fire District boundaries also are to be annexed to the district, but not by referendum process. Because they are sparsely populated areas, the transfer into the local fire district is to be via petition. Village Atty. George Knickerbacker Wednesday said he hopes to have the petitions ready for filing by Aug. 5. He hopes to have the petitions filed and court orders for the property transfers by the end of August.

Knickerbacker and an election judge will present the referendum results in Circuit Court Aug. 5, and if the vote is favorable for the transfer to the Hoffman Estates district, a court order likely will be issued within the following week.

The new district would then be transformed into a municipal fire department, owned and operated by the village.

TO ACCOMPLISH the changeover to municipal department, said Knickerbacker, the village must receive audits of the fire district, conveyance of all personal property owned by the district to the village through a bill of sale, and conveyance of all real estate through a deed.

The village currently is completing design of a fire station to serve the Winston Knolls and Windemere areas, as well as other northern areas soon to be developed, in the new Westbury development. Village and fire district officials have set a Dec. 1 target date to complete the change to a municipal department.

Country club trash problem being cleared up by owner

Garbage being dumped on the rear property of Golden Acres Country Club is being cleared up, said Robert Grossman, Schaumburg public health director.

Grossman met with George Sloan, owner of the Schaumburg club on Roselle Road north of Schaumburg Road, Wednesday to discuss the problem of dumping garbage in a low spot to the rear of the property.

Sloan had started bulldozing the pile of garbage by Wednesday and will be adding dirt in the low swampy area to fill it in.

The garbage had piled up about 5 feet high by 20 feet wide before it was brought to Grossman's attention.

Sloan said he had been considering moving the green back into that area and was filling it in with the debris. He told Grossman he would cooperate in solving the problem and will have additional garbage disposal service.

Grossman said routine inspections will be made of the property.

Administrative aide to run youth job service urged

An administrative assistant to direct the Youth Employment Service of Schaumburg Township was approved Tuesday for recommendation to the township revenue-sharing committee by the Committee on Youth.

The position would include direct contact with youth and agencies for YES and responsibility for the operation of YES. The person also would be responsible for completing all COY business and assisting the youth workers.

The position would be full-time and is modeled after the position in Elk Grove Village. During the past two years that Elk Grove has had a professional in this capacity, YES placements for the village have increased 400 per cent.

Since YES started in November in Schaumburg Township, 181 youths have applied for jobs and 115 have received positions through the service. These figures do not include babysitting jobs, although about 15 babysitting jobs per month have been filled through YES.

The administrative assistant would receive a starting salary of $8,000 if the current proposition is approved by the revenue-sharing committee and the Schaumburg Township Board of Auditors.

Small shopping center planned near Randhurst

by MARCIA KRAMER

Plans are being made to build a small shopping center west of the Randhurst Shopping Center near Mount Prospect, but at the same time the village is taking steps to annex the property as a single-family residential district.

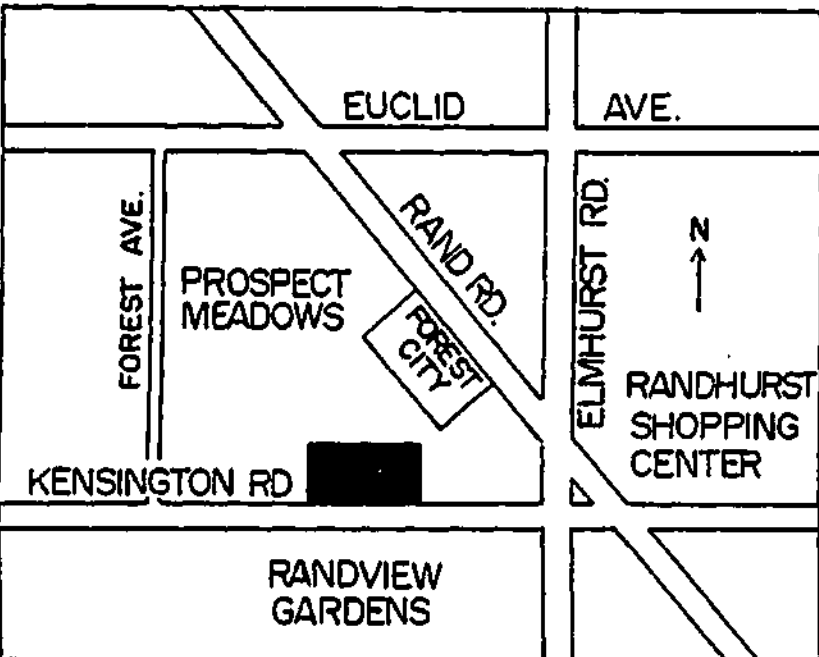

Village Mgr. Robert J. Eppley said the annexation is "not necessarily" intended to block construction of the neighborhood shopping center on the north side of Kensington Road, just west of Rand Road. "We just want to get it inside the village," he said.

Residents of the area, who border the site on two sides, may take advantage of

The 3.9-acre site is bounded by the Prospect Meadows subdivision on the west and the Randview Gardens subdivision on the south. William F. Maisei, president of the Prospect Meadows Homeowners Assn., was unavailable for comment Wednesday, but a resident of the area said residents probably would oppose the shopping center if it would bring additional traffic to the neighborhood.

KENSINGTON ROAD just west of the Randhurst Shopping Center is the site of a proposed shopping center that may encounter resistance from area residents if the property is annexed to Mount Prospect. The parcel currently is in unincorporated Wheeling Township.

Village building inspector fired for faking reports

by MARCIA KRAMER

A $12,500-a-year Mount Prospect building inspector was fired for skipping inspections and then filling out false reports to cover up, The Herald has learned.

Buell B. Dutton, village director of building and zoning, confirmed Tuesday night that an electrical inspector was discharged May 13 for not performing his job. Dutton refused to reveal this name, but it was learned Wednesday from other sources that it was Kenneth Tolstom, a village employee for three years.

Dutton said it is "almost impossible to determine" how often the former employee failed to conduct inspections of electrical circuits being installed in buildings.

Dutton said buildings the inspector was to have checked were subsequently examined by other inspectors "as far as we can determine. There is an unknown quantity as to how many he did not inspect," he said.

TOLSTOM WAS hired by Dutton's predecessor, Peter Reiten. According to one report, Tolstom was discovered sleeping

Mount Prospect Police Chief Ralph J. Doney Tuesday said organized searches for the reptile have concluded with all three being fruitless. The snake escaped last Friday night from a tank in the backyard of the Schneider residence, 1103 S. Busse Rd. Its owner is 15-year-old Richard Schneider.

Doney again urged anyone seeing the snake, which is two feet long and 2½ inches diameter, to call police and keep it in sight, but not to touch it. The snake is considered harmless to humans. Killer is a dull multi-colored gray, brown, black and white.

BOB HOLLAND, right, completes the backstroke as part of his certification as an advanced beginning swimmer. Although Bob is totally sightless, he and other youngsters in the day camp learn the basics of water safety and sports. He is guided by Mark Knudson, a junior leader.

The girl with the large blue eyes looked up and said, "Hi. You're the one who invented this, aren't you?" Kevin Kendrigan looked down, smiled and gave the girl a conspiratorial wink. "Yes. But don't tell anyone. It's a secret."

The "secret" Kendrigan was winking about is the Northwest Special Recreation Assn. Summer Day Camp. As director of the six-month-old association, Kendrigan could be called the man who "invented" the summer activities program in the Northwest suburbs.

The camp, which began in June and runs six weeks, provides recreational opportunities for children with handicaps or learning disabilities. Its main purpose, Kendrigan said, is to help the children "express themselves in activities as close to the normal population as possible."

THE ASSOCIATION is funded by nine area park districts for its administrative expenses. Wheeling and Palatine townships have given $15,000 and $10,000, respectively, to the association. Elk Grove Township has made a tentative commitment of $15,000.

The township's monies are used to pay for the activities such as the camp in summer and after-school and weekend programs during the fall and winter.

Five special camps serve 120 children this summer. The camps, at different locations throughout the three townships, offer programs for the visually handicapped, the physically handicapped and a joint camp for youngsters and children with learning disabilities.

Nonambulatory youths have a Saturday-only program at the Kirk Center in Palatine. All the other camps operate five days a week for six hours.

"One reason it's that long is to give the parents a chance to be by themselves for a while. It gives them a chance to go shopping or run errands or whatever without taking their child along," Kendrigan said.

THE CAMPS hardly are glorified babysitters, though.

At Recreation Park in Arlington Heights children were making full use of the facilities.

Because of the heat wave, the visually impaired youngsters were taking an extra-long session in the swimming pool. Jody Sticken, an instructor of the visually impaired during the school year, was testing the children in the pool.

Bob Holland, totally sightless, was going through his paces for a certificate as an advanced beginning swimmer. Treading water and the frontal float offered no problem for him, but there was some difficulty with the backstroke.

Using the pool-diving rope as a touch point, Bob completed his necessary 1½ widths to pass, with a minimum of straying and course corrections.

Part of the camp for the sightless to the legally blind was in the pool, diving, splashing or practicing on kickboards.

"IT'S IMPORTANT to them. Many of them have never had their head under water before," Kendrigan said. To illustrate the point a boy leaped in the pool and started turning waterborne somersaults.

Prior to swimming these children had been tumbling and working out on the mats in the park field house.

Instructor Ed Guttman had the other campers under the trees for rest period after relay races. The children rest about as much as any child will on a beautiful summer day.

There are swings nearby, coloring books and tales to be discussed from the earlier story hour. Later it would be their turn in the pool followed by arts and crafts.

The activities are designed to strengthen their skills and coordination. Softball and tumbling improves body development while arts and crafts work on eye and hand coordination.

"Their self worth is improved. We have some competition for the same reason, but not for setting one against the other," Kendrigan said.

THE GAMES AND programs also give the children an opportunity to socialize, something that may not be readily available within their own neighborhood.

"Children are quick to pick up that these kids are not normal in some way. And kids can be cruel. The camp gives them a place where they can get together with other kids and have some fun," Kendrigan said.

"This is a preventive program, too. It makes them more sure of themselves, and more likely to succeed later."

And like any other summer day camp, there is a lot of setting under the trees and splashing in the pools. As the supervisors said, it is a place to give the kids a chance.

Boundary committee's report

by FRAN SLIMMER

Already overcrowded John Jay School in Mount Prospect is the only Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 school that would suffer from additional students from new and planned apartment complexes within its boundaries, district boundary committee members agreed Tuesday.

A boundary change would be one way to solve the problem, a committee member said, although another also suggested mobile classrooms. Committee members will present alternatives and may select one at the next meeting, Tuesday, July 16, at 7:30 p.m. at the Dist. 59 administration building.

Six complexes are expected to be built within Jay School's boundaries during the next two years, and could provide between 100 and 200 new students. Erwin Poklacki, committee vice chairman, computed the number using multipliers—figuring, for example, six-tenths of a child for every three- and four-bedroom apartment.

The school's capacity is 590 students, and its principal predicts an enrollment of 617, without new construction, for the 1974-75 school year. Committee members figured maximum enrollment for the following two years, both with and without construction, and in all cases found it exceeded capacity.

IF KINDERGARTEN enrollment remained stable for the next few years, there could be 618 students in 1975-76 and 719 with new construction, the committee estimated. There could be 636 students the following year, 806 with new construction.

"These are definitely worse-case figures," Committee Member Emil Bahnmaler said.

"There's no way a school with a 600 capacity could handle 800 students," Committee Secretary Jan Schulz said. She is also assistant secretary at Jay. "Some boundary change is in order," she suggested.

However, she said, the change should only be around the new apartment complexes, to be built near Algonquin and Busse roads.

The children aren't there yet, so they wouldn't be switching schools, Mrs. Schulz said. Only three Jay students live in that area, in the partially finished Crystal Towers complex, she said, and they could be given options to finish at Jay or go to another school.

THE STUDENTS who would live in that area would be bused anyway, because it would be too dangerous for them to cross busy Busse or Algonquin roads, another committee member, Mary Kloster said. Students could be bused to Jay or another less crowded school, she said.

At least seven other complexes are planned within the boundaries of four other schools: Robert Frost and Forest View in Mount Prospect and Mark Hopkins and Ripley in Elk Grove Village. However, when the committee predicted maximum enrollment for the next three years, none of the four were over capacity.

Zoners expected to vote Aug. 7 on Rob Roy plan

The controversial plan to develop the Rob Roy Golf Course is expected to be voted on Aug. 7 by the Mount Prospect Zoning Board of Appeals.

The zoning board set the date for the third public hearing on plans to build 2,350 condominium units on the golf course after a marathon 4 1/2-hour session Tuesday night.

Testimony at the hearing played up the obvious credibility gap between the developer, Kenroy Inc., Skokie, and residents of the area. One resident, Mary Stemburgh, vice president of the Riverview Civic Assn., remarked that an impact study prepared by Kenroy is "filled with figures, numbers, projections and estimates designed to impress us with the economic benefits" of the project. She presented conflicting data that she said indicated the development, rather than bringing about an economic bonanza as Kenroy officials stated, would actually cause "economic hardships" for Mount Prospect and River Trails Dist. 26 taxpayers.

MEMBERS OF THE zoning board, particularly chairman Carolyn Krause, also appeared dubious at some of the assertions made by Kenroy officials. Their skepticism was not relieved when Kenroy introduced a revised series of population projections, including new estimates on the number of school children.

August C. Chidichimo, in presenting his revised figures, said he stands by the original projections, but "this is to answer questions that the original figures were too conservative." Using a different formula, he arrived at an estimated 540 grade school children and 169 high school students, versus the previous count of 359 grade school pupils and 106 high school students — an increase of 52.5 per cent — but still not as high as Dist. 26 officials' report. Supt. John Fridlund said in written testimony the school district expects almost double the original Kenroy estimate.

The over-all population figure also rose, from 4,531 to 5,347, which Chidichimo attributed to a change in the mix of units — 24 more townhouses and that many fewer condominiums.

KENROY IS SEEKING to annex the 6-acre course to Mount Prospect and zone it for condominiums. The course is east of Wheeling Road between Camp McDonald Road and Euclid Avenue in unincorporated Wheeling Township.

Mrs. Krause, a lawyer, challenged Kenroy officials with a series of questions: What about traffic — wouldn't it be affected by development of the Old Orchard Country Club a half mile west of Rob Roy? And schools — "obviously an additional school would be needed" for the youngsters who live at the development, who would pay for it? And what of the golf course itself — "Any rezoning would have to have in it the specific condition that the golf course area be maintained as permanent open space. I couldn't see in this case anything short of that."

Residents continued the barrage of questions: What would this development do to property values, to the environment? How about flooding? And who wants to live next to a construction site for 10 years?

"We... have suffered noticeable reductions in the quality of life we can enjoy as a result of zoning proceedings to increase the density or intensity of land use," said Ron Burton, chairman of the Northwest Suburban Council of Associations, an umbrella group of homeowners associations representing 10,000 residents in the immediate vicinity of Rob Roy.

"THE EXPERIENCES we have had with numerous small projects leave us 'gun-shy' and suspect of any proposed large-scale, high-density or high-intensity land use development," he added in an understatement.

Individuals and representatives of other groups, including the Prospect Heights Improvement Assn., also tramped to the microphone to voice their objections. In all, more than a dozen persons spoke.

Rebuttal arguments from Kenroy will be heard at the Aug. 7 hearing, when the zoning board is expected to vote on the project. Its recommendation would then go to the village board for action.

In the meantime, exhibits introduced by Kenroy will be available at the Mount Prospect Public Library, 14 E. Busse Ave., for the general public. The material will be placed on reserve, with no checkout permitted.

Fourth visit by 13-member unit weighing space

Study group to visit Feehanville

A citizens' committee studying space needs at schools in River Trails Dist. 26 will continue its schedule of building tours with a visit to Feehanville School Monday, July 22.

Feehanville will be the fourth school to be toured by the 13-member group. Park View, Bond and Indian Grove schools already have been scrutinized by the committee. Yet to be scheduled for a visit is Euclid School.

Committee chairman Marsha Lupton said the tour of Indian Grove was somewhat routine because the school, unlike others in the district, is not as severely plagued by space problems. However, Indian Grove will still receive the committee's attention, Mrs. Lupton said, to determine if ways can be found to improve space use at the school.

AS AT THE other three schools, Mrs. Lupton said the committee will be accompanied in its tour of Feehanville by both the school principal, James Ackley, and Supt. John Fridlund. Feehanville already was toured on an individual basis by committee members but the upcoming visit will be the first made to the school by the group as a whole.

The committee, organized in June, has been charged with the task of developing recommendations for improving space use at the schools so facilities can better meet the needs of educational programs and curriculum.

Mrs. Lupton said the committee plans to present to the board of education suggestions which will hopefully provide options for both open and self-contained classrooms at each school.

One of the committee's biggest challenges, Mrs. Lupton said, will be to develop for the board's consideration a list of priorities which will benefit the entire district without favoring certain schools.

MRS. LUPTON said the committee favors continuation of the neighborhood school concept, which will be kept in mind when recommendations are developed and forwarded to the board.

Following the completion of school tours, which Mrs. Lupton said should be done next month, the committee will begin discussions aimed at developing specific school-by-school recommendations.

In addition to Euclid, the committee also will make a second tour of Park View, which suffers most from lack of space, before it begins discussing possible solutions.

The committee has set a tentative October deadline for presenting its findings and suggestions to the board.

River Trails studies high-density policy

The River Trails Dist. 26 Board of Education may adopt as policy Supt. John Fridlund's five-point outline for evaluating proposed high-density, open-land development within the district.

Fridlund's report, presented to the board last week, represents his views on considerations a school district should make before condoning any proposed development of open land within school district boundaries.

"Schools are a reflection of the quality of a community," Fridlund said in the position paper. "Those charged with the responsibility for educating the community's youth are properly concerned with land use because land use affects the quality of educational experiences provided for boys and girls."

"ANY MANIPULATION of land use without serious consideration of the effect upon the quality of education must be construed as a gross misuse of the public interest," Fridlund said.

Fridlund's five-point outline states:

• Any potential developer must provide accurate and substantiated data on the effect the proposed land use will have on the pupil population of the school district. This data should be based on accepted standards of population using tables provided by an agency acceptable to the local school board. This presentation should include information on the relationship of any increased pupil population to any proposed or existing school facility.

• Any potential developer must provide accurate and substantiated data on the effect of the proposed land use on the financial resources and operation of the local Data should prove conclusively that the project will generate sufficient funds to pay for any school facility required as a result of the project, and that it will not adversely affect the per pupil expenditure level of the district.

• The project would not endanger the health and safety of the youth of the community by virtue of its existence and its physical relationship to local schools.

• Any land use that enhances the tax resource as a detriment in the quality of education should be viewed with favor.

• It would not be acceptable for any developer to present data that refers to the project as an isolated entity. Consideration must be extended to the impact the project will have on existing schools and their enrollments. If not, any data presented should be considered inconclusive.

FRIDLUND PRESENTED the position paper during the board's discussion of the proposed development of the Rob Roy Golf Course in Mount Prospect. Kenroy Inc. of Skokie is seeking to build a 2,350-unit apartment and condominium development on the 200-acre site.

Kenroy officials say the project would generate 359 elementary and junior high school-age students who would attend remains unincorporated, but could raise objections to commercial zoning if the parcel becomes part of the village.

EPPLEY DESCRIBED the involuntary annexation (without the owner's having to be notified) of the property "kind of sneaky in a way," but explained, "It's kind of bad to have an island in your town."

The property, in unincorporated Wheeling Township, is surrounded by the village, now that the Prospect Meadows subdivision has been annexed. Two of the acres have been earmarked for a shopping center.

The village board July 2 took preliminary action toward annexing the entire piece of property, and is expected to finalize the annexation at its next meeting Tuesday night.

When property is taken into the village, whether by petition of the owners or involuntarily at the village's initiative, it is automatically zoned R-X, which allows only single-family homes to be built.

Inspector fired

shortly before his dismissal. Dutton said he became suspicious of the inspector's working habits when he was assigned by Dutton to eliminate illegal signs in the village and "he wasn't doing it."

Dutton then checked with some developers in the village to determine whether they had ever seen the inspector at the building sites. They said they had not.

The inspector's vehicle subsequently is put under police surveillance for a week. Dutton declined to discuss details, but said the man was fired because there was ample evidence he hadn't been putting in a full eight-hour day over an extended period of time.

The owners must then approach the village for a zoning change, if desired.

THE KENSINGTON Road parcel currently is zoned for commercial use, which would be forfeited upon annexation. Eppeley said, however, the village generally grants property the same zoning use it had in the county because "it wouldn't be really fair" to the owners otherwise. "It makes for some unhappy people, but that's life."

Study will weigh library expansion at culture center

Arlington Heights Memorial Library officials have authorized a study to see if it is feasible to expand library facilities on the proposed cultural center site.

Library Board Pres. Richard Frisbie said that the library is considering the site because the cultural center plans have not materialized since 1963 and because of its proximity to the present library building just across the street.

"Until they (members of the Arlington Heights Cultural Commission, planning the center, get the money for building, the library is looking at the site as an alternative," Frisbie said. "The library has to do something about the lack of space."

The cultural commission hopes to bring a multi-use fine arts center to the area, providing concerts, theater, exhibits and other cultural activities.

CURRENTLY, the commission is soliciting $20,000 to $25,000 in donations for architects' fees and models. The model and plans will be used to raise $2.5 million for the center from area residents and firms.

Darryl Kenning, assistant village manager and municipal liaison to the cultural commission, said that approximately $10,000 to $12,000 had been pledged several weeks ago, but figures could have changed this week. Sidney Rosenfeld, cultural commission chairman, was unavailable for comment.

The new library study follows a feasibility study prepared late last year. That study called for an additional 25,000 square feet of space and room for more than 95,000 books.

The addition would be made by extending the existing floor level over the parking section on the west side of the building. The cost is estimated to be more than $1 million.

The library board authorized that the new study, to be prepared by Nicol, Nicol, Chaney and Vanek of Chicago, the architectural firm which designed the present library and made the first feasibility study.

The cost of the study is being negotiated, said Frisbie.

FRISBIE ADDED that the library is quickly looking for ways to expand because of the inflated costs that may occur by "waiting too long." By having a new study for building on the cultural center site, the library would be ready if and when the site is available, he said.

"If we had to start all over, we would have lost all the time," Frisbie said.

The library is currently compiling information for population and library use projections. "We've been doing our homework on population expansion," Frisbie said. "The immediate expansion isn't going to be the end of the problem forever."

Frisbie said that expansion should "take care of future needs."

The present building was designed to abide by the American Library Assn. recommendations to provide services for a population of 70,000. The library is falling short of the suggested quota by the ALA of 3.5 per capita or 245,000 books.

Central, Wilke, Kirchoff master plan is delayed

The Arlington Heights Plan Commission, acting on a letter from village attorney Jack M. Siegel, has deferred acting on the master plan proposal for the Central, Wilke and Kirchoff roads area until September.

The decision to delay action on the study also sets back James R. Huddleston's petition before the commission for an office building on Central Road at Wilke. The commission voted in January not to act on Huddleston's plan until the study was complete.

O. V. Anderson, plan commission chairman, said he had "no other choice" in recommending the postponement.

Siegel's letter to the commission asked for the postponement pending a possible out-of-court settlement of a lawsuit involving a 32-acre tract in the study area. He said it would be unwise to approve the study prior to the possible meeting between himself and attorneys for the land owners.

SIEGEL'S OPINION had been requested last month by the village master plan commission before they acted upon the study area on the southern edge of town.

The suit involves the Chez property between Kirchoff and Central roads that was involuntarily annexed to the village more than five years ago.

The owners, Jerry Chez, Eugene Chez and Marshall Turner, wanted the land zoned for multifamily development. However, when the village annexed the land, it came in with single family zoning.

A SUIT WAS filed in Federal District Court by the owners charging the village had violated their civil rights in the involuntary annexation.

Under state law, a municipality can forcibly annex land when it is surrounded by the corporate limits of the municipality.

Huddleston, a Rolling Meadows alderman, wants to build an office building in an area zoned for single-family homes. The plan commission first deferred action until Joe Kesler, village planner, made a study and recommended future uses for the area near the Wilke-Kirchoff retention basin.

Kesler submitted his plan in May to the plan commission and last month to the master plan commission. With Siegel's opinion, neither commission will act on the study until the Chez suit is settled.

Law doesn't mandate zoning change: Siegel

Village files low-income housing case appeal brief

There is no rule of law or judicial decision that requires Arlington Heights to change its zoning ordinance merely because a developer wants to build low- or moderate-income housing, Village Atty. Jack M. Siegel has told the U. S. Court Appeals.

In a 45-page brief filed with the court this week, Siegel answered the latest round of legal charges from the Metropolitan Housing Development Corp., which wants to develop 190 units of low-income housing on a 15-acre site next to St. Viator High School.

Any decision to rezone the 15 acres would have been spot zoning at its worst, and would have destroyed the integrity of the zoning pattern and master plan upon which neighboring property owners and the community in general have long relied, Siegel said.

MHDC is appealing a Feb. 22 ruling by U.S. District Court Judge Thomas R. McMillen which upheld the village board's 1971 decision not to rezone the Viatorian property from single to multiple family use.

THE TRIAL COURT found that the zoning decision was not racially discriminatory, and the appeals court should not substitute its judgment for these findings, Siegel said.

The appeals court also should not substitute its judgment for that of the village board, he said.

MHDC charges that the rezoning turn down was racially discriminatory because it deprived low-income minority persons of affordable housing near their Northwest suburban jobs.

The village board's action violated the federal Fair Housing Act, MHDC alleges.

However Siegel argues that the 1968 Fair Housing Act does not prohibit discrimination based on income levels, but merely on racial grounds.

The U.S. Supreme Court consistently has refused to classify housing as a fundamental constitutional right, he said.

IN ADDITION, the Fair Housing Act requires that lawsuits be filed within 180 days of the alleged discriminatory act, and the MHDC lawsuit was not filed until nine months after the village board's decision, Siegel said.

The trial record indicates that the Viatorian property is suitable for single-family development, and a vacancy rate of less than 1 per cent in Arlington Heights indicates a brisk demand for single-family homes, Siegel says.

The fact that the zoning ordinance makes the cost of developing the land more expensive than MHDC might desire does not invalidate the zoning, he says, nor does the fact that the zoning may have a greater impact on low-income persons.

The case is not one where the village rezoned land to keep out a housing project. (Continued on Page 5)

Clerks' strike delays races

A wildcat strike by pari-mutuel clerks delayed the start of the first race at Arlington Park Race Track by about 10 minutes Wednesday.

Ticket sellers and cashiers are reportedly unhappy about recently lengthened programs at the race track.

Many of the men behind the betting windows at Arlington also work evenings at Sportsman's Park in Cicero and are disturbed by the longer daytime program at Arlington.

Talks between the pari-mutuel clerks' union and Arlington Park officials were scheduled to be held Wednesday night.

Ticket sellers reportedly want the last race to start at Arlington no later than 5:30 p.m. The scheduled post time of the last race Wednesday was 5:50 p.m.

A race track spokesman said Wednesday that the time between races had been lengthened on Tuesday because too many fans were being "shut out" at the betting windows.

The standard time between thoroughbred races at Arlington Park is 25 minutes. Scheduled post times were stretched to 30 minutes for Wednesday's program.

The wildcat walkout posed no serious problem beyond the brief delay of the first race, according to the track spokesman.

Top union officials were not immediately available for comment on the scheduling problem.

Lawn sprinkling limited to 3 days

Village residents are being reminded that lawn sprinkling is limited to Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays only.

George Weinand, village information officer, said village water consumption is now at 13 million gallons daily. He said this is the peak load the water system could handle and still "recharge" itself.

Methodist preschool registration begins

Registration is being taken for vacation church school at the First United Methodist Church, 1903 E. Euclid, Arlington Heights.

Sessions will begin July 22 from 9:15 to 11:30 a.m. Monday through Friday until Aug. 2. Classes are open to all children who will be 4 years old by Dec. 1 through those who will have completed sixth grade.

All classes will be limited to 25 persons. Church members will be given preference in the preschool classes only.

The two weeks of classes will include outdoor activities, arts and craft projects, refreshments and Bible studies.

The fee is $3 per child or $6 per family. For further information, call the church office at CL 5-5112 before 1 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Village files Viator brief

ect, since the Viatorian land has been designated single-family property since the adoption of the village's 1959 master plan, Siegel said.

MHDC has attempted to transform a simple zoning case into a civil rights action, he states.

THE VILLAGE'S decision to prevent the development of multi-family housing at a density of 15 units per acre in the midst of a stable, well-established and uniform single family area was consistent with its long established policies and had none of the ulterior motives alleged by MHDC, according to the brief.

"As the trial court found, there was no racial motivation involved. The Village of Arlington Heights discriminates against no one," Siegel concluded.

MHDC now has two weeks to reply to Siegel's brief. After this, oral arguments will be scheduled before a three-judge panel.

A final decision by the appeals court is not expected before the end of the year.

Northpoint to offer auto pollution tests

The Northpoint Shopping Center, Arlington Heights at Rand roads, will sponsor a free auto pollution test from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., July 16-21 at the south parking lot.

Conducted by technicians from the Chicago Lung Assn., the test measures a car's output of carbon monoxide and unburned hydrocarbons.

Test results will tell the motorist whether his car meets the Chicago ordinance on exhaust emissions.

A special testing lane, located by the large Christmas Seal Auto Testing Unit, will be set up at the shopping center.

While seated in his car during the test, the motorist will see the results immediately recorded on a large dial.

A written report on the car will be given to each motorist as well as a list of needed adjustments if the car does not meet the Chicago standards.

Dwyer repaving project urged

The Arlington Heights Village Board's finance committee has recommended approval of a $211,000 Dwyer Avenue repaving project.

The low bid for the repaving is $37,000 above the original estimates.

If the village board accepts the committee recommendation Monday night, the Board of Local Improvements will meet Tuesday to award the construction contract.

The Dwyer repaving is planned to run from Campbell to Euclid.

The final decision will come from the village board.

Park-village wrapup

Parks seek funds to buy land

The Arlington Heights Park District has asked the Village of Arlington Heights for an estimated $121,000 to buy more than five acres of park land.

The park board also has asked for financial help in buying a four-acre park site south of the proposed Robert Hall shopping center at Arlington Heights and Palatine roads.

The cost of the four acres, owned by Palatine banker Gerald Fitzgerald, has not been estimated.

The money requests have been referred to the village board's finance committee.

Trustee Frank Palmatier, finance committee chairman, said the village "probably can do something" about the park land purchases. But it was "a little too soon" to recommend spending money for the land, he said.

The park board has proposed that the village use either federal revenue-sharing, or land dedication funds from builders to make the purchases.

Use of the funds has been disputed between village officials, and Park Commr. Kay Muller who has charged that the park district has been short-changed in the use of the money.

Specifically, park officials have asked for $58,237.50 to buy 1.8 acres of land adjacent to Frontier Park, 1933 N. Kenilworth; $30,000 for 1.3 acres at Greens Park, Olive and Douglas streets; $35,000 for a two-acre addition to Dryden Park, 700 S. Dryden; and an unspecified amount for the four-acre park near the proposed Robert Hall shopping center.

There are reports that the sale price was $60,000 an acre for the Arlington Heights Road property.

Legal unit to review law

The village board's legal committee will review Arlington Heights' public land dedication ordinance, especially the section on cash contributions, to see if the law permits spending the money for land acquisition anywhere in the village.

The present ordinance states that money donated by a developer must meet a land need "uniquely attributable to the proposed subdivision."

The committee also will examine amending the ordinance to apply to residential developments, such as condominium projects.

In practice, land and cash donations have been required of condominium apartment builders. However, the ordinance does not technically authorize such donations because it was written to apply only to single family subdivisions.

Parks lose on landfill study

The Arlington Heights Village Board has rejected a park district request to help fund a recreational use study of the village landfill at Dundee and Nichols roads.

Instead, the village administration will be asked to make a preliminary study of future park development at the landfill site.

Trustee Frank Palmatier said the village might want to someday reopen the landfill that was closed one year ago.

"I'm uncertain now if the landfill will ever be turned over to the park district," said Palmatier.

Panel to study creek upkeep

The need to regrade and maintain the banks of McDonald Creek through Camelot Park, 1005 E. Suffield Dr., has been referred to the village board's finance committee.

Residents who use the park have complained about the creek maintenance, but park officials say responsibility for the work has never been clearly assigned to either the park district or the village.

Advice sought on track annex

The village board will ask for a legal opinion on what pressures it may use to get Arlington Park Race Track to dis-annex from the Salt Creek Rural Park District and annex to the Arlington Heights Park District after the village's five-year annexation agreement with the track expires Oct. 20.

Village backs Rob-Roy plan

The village board has agreed to support the park district in a resolution calling on the Cook County Forest Preserve District to acquire and maintain the 200-acre Rob Roy Golf Course.

A total of 2,350 housing units are proposed for the golf course by Kenroy Inc.
